The Brewers Give Up Their "Joint" Fight. Haul Their Stocks Away from Kansas City, Kansas. NO HOPE OF REOPENING Given Permits by Police to Remove Their Liquors. City Is Practically Dry for First Time in Years.

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 26.—Hopeless of being permitted to reopen their places of business again soon, the brewers are hauling their goods away as fast as they can get permits from Chief Murray to open their doors long enough to load their wagoons. The stocks are being transferred to the saloons of Missouri. The entire stocks of many of the saloons in Armourdale and the First ward and of a few on Minnesota avenue were taken out Saturday. Chief Murray said that within a week he believed there would not be a drop of liquor in any of the places formerly occupied by "joints."

Chief Murray did not strictly request any of the brewers to remove their goods, but he suggested that it might prevent future trouble if they would do so. As a result the Helm, Rochester, Greenlee, Val Blatz and Elyar companies have already been given written permits to get their stuff away. So far, none has yet removed the fixtures, but this is expected to follow the removal of the stocks. In many cases, where the stock is owned by the brewery, however, the fixtures are the individual property of the men who operated the places.

There were only a few independent saloons here. In most of these cases the proprietor owned the building in which the stock was kept. As yet this class of jointists has done nothing toward removing the goods, but is expected to do so soon. Where the stocks are being taken away officers have been stationed to prevent any attempt at selling the liquor. When the doors are opened the brewer is required to be shown before they will allow any interruption of the goods.

The object of requiring a permit, Chief Murray explained, was to prevent any attempt to open the doors of the places with a view of disposing of any of the liquor. Also, other irregularities might result in the brewery, which should be allowed to go ahead indiscriminately.

In all its history this town was never more completely a dry town than now. When the liquor shall have been taken from all the places the bars will be turned to the walls, except where they may be used for other purposes. The leading jointists of the city said that there was no encouragement that the sale of liquor would ever be permitted in that city again. This man owned his own stock. He intimated that he might open a place in Kansas City, Mo.

There is very little encouragement for a man to open a place here, he said. "I feel that it would be better to go to a state where saloons can be run legally. Even under the most liberal laws a man in charge of the liquor business in Kansas is always uneasy. He never knows when he may be suddenly arrested or his place may be closed. It is better to go to a state where the majority of saloons in this city have been of the poorer class. One does not feel disposed to invest much money in a business which he knows is outlawed."

JURY COULDN'T AGREE. No Verdict in Mrs. Haines' Suit at Fort Scott. Fort Scott, Kas., Oct. 26.—The jury in the case of Mrs. H. B. Haines against the estate of the late C. W. Goodlander was discharged by the district court after having been out for three days without being able to reach a verdict. The case is sensational.

C. W. Goodlander, president of the Citizens' National bank and one of the founders of the town, was killed by leaving a large estate. Mrs. Haines, proprietor of a railroad dining hall, presented a claim for $26,000 against the estate.

Her claim was based on a note that she claims was accidentally burned. The defense was that the whole thing was a fraud. The case was tried before a jury in the probate court and a verdict found in favor of the estate.

Mrs. Haines appealed to the district court. The case was retried alone and resulted in a disagreement. The jury stood five for the plaintiff and seven for the defendant on the first ballot and never changed their vote until the next trial.

C., special to the World. They are detained at the request of the New York police. The day before Leonard disappeared Miss Katherine Miller, also a resident of East Orange, was reported missing. The young woman, who is six years older than Leonard, declared that she had agreed that they had been married before starting from New York.

AFTER-DINNER COFFEE. IT WILL HURT NOBODY IF TAKEN IN FORM OF JELLY. Coffee is very commonly drunk after dinner, a custom which, perhaps, is justified, particularly when wine drinking accompanies the meal, for coffee is a stimulant to alcohol. A hot draught of coffee is undoubtedly a powerful stimulant, enabling both mental and physical faculties to be borne. On the other hand, a cup of hot coffee disagrees with many persons, and digestion is disturbed rather than aided, there is interference with the normal chemistry of the digestive process. Coffee, when drunk in excess, causes the collapse which follows alcoholic stimulation, and the relief which is given by coffee, is in fact, a relief from the effects of alcohol. The excessive drinking of coffee is, in any case, an evil habit, and it is often forgotten that coffee, as well as tea, is a stimulant, and can be taken in other ways, and in none better than in the form of jelly. A clear coffee jelly after dinner is every bit as good as the hot infusion, while it is free from some of the drawbacks of the latter. Haskell Won from K. U. in Saturday's Contest.

Indians Did It in First Inning, Aided by Luck.

KANSAS LOST NERVE. In Second Half Weeks' Men Did Best Work.

Played Rings Around the Noble Red Men.

Topeka Players Were a Factor Worthy of Mention.

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 26.—Kansas university, under the splendid coaching of that great Michigan player, Weeks, met its first defeat Saturday on McCook field at the hands of the Haskell Indians by the score of 12 to 6. Kansas has herself to blame for the loss of the game. She had the best material on the gridiron and on ability to play the game should easily have won from the redskins.

In the first half K. U. made a miserable effort at playing football. The Indians started by a fumble which was followed up by booting the ball for more than fifty yards down the field when P. Hauser for Haskell finally secured the pigskin and carried the ball the remaining distance to a touchdown.

This "fumble" score gave the Indians great encouragement, while on the other hand it dampened the spirit of the K. U. players to a point from which they never recovered during the first half. On a deceiving rush play, the Indians took advantage of the nervous Kansas team and scored their second and last score before the half closed.

When the second half opened Kansas went into the game with a spirit and dash which would easily have won the game at West Point. The game was followed up by booting the ball for more than fifty yards down the field when P. Hauser for Haskell finally secured the pigskin and carried the ball the remaining distance to a touchdown.

Princeton 17; Dartmouth 0. Princeton, N. J., Oct. 26.—Princeton defeated Dartmouth by a score of 17 to 0. The game was a fight to the finish, and instead of staying in the second half, Dartmouth played a much better offense. Up to the time the first goal was scored the game was a pretty even exchange of kicks on the third down, in which Princeton steadily gained. The visitors fumbled on the eight-yard line and Kafer scored on a hurdle. After Dartmouth had made her first down Vaughan crawled from under the pile and stole down the field for 65 yards, when Miller outran him and prevented a score. First half: 6 to 0.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The largest crowd that ever attended a football game at West Point witnessed the annual contest between West Point and Yale, the New Haven representatives winning by a score of 17 to 5. The game started with a kickoff by Yale. The ball changed hands frequently, but West Pointers were gainers in almost every point. Prince punted every time the army goal was threatened, and Yale, while the wind was against her, could not gain any advantage. By hard rushes through the line and around the ends the Army got the ball to Yale's 40 yard line. Here a fumble gave Yale the leather and Bowman punted. Hackett tried for a fair catch on the Army's 40 yard line and was given 20 yards for interference. This brought the ball to Yale's 20 yard line, where Hackett held the ball for a place kick, and Doe kicked a pretty goal. In the next formation Yale pulled herself together and went to work in earnest. The Army team was forced steadily back until Owsley got possession of the ball and rushed over the goal line for a touchdown. Bowman kicked goal. In the third play the second kick Mitchell kicked a goal from the field on a safe catch. This was followed up with heavy line work until Mitchell was forced over West Point's goal line for a touchdown. Bowman kicked goal. Final score: Yale, 17; West Point, 5.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 26.—The University of Nebraska administered a decisive defeat to Colorado university on the gridiron, the Cornhuskers piling up six touchdowns for a total of 41 points, and not permitting the Mountaineers to even menace the Nebraska goal. Advertisement for Rheumatism. 'Rheumatism Is Not a Skin Disease.'
