CLEMENS' EULOGY

Members of Shawnee Bar Association Deliver One.

He Had Qualities That Go to Make a Great Lawyer.

A MAN OF MANY PARTS.

Was Exceedingly Modest in Appraisal of His Powers.

His Death Will Be Serious Loss to Legal Profession.

For the second time this week the members of the Shawnee County Bar association met in the district court room today and passed resolutions of respect for one of their deceased members.

Short eulogies were delivered this morning on G. C. Clemens who died early Sunday morning.

Resolutions of respect were read and adopted and will be sent to the widow of the deceased and presented to the federal and supreme courts and made a portion of the records of the district court.

The committee consisting of W. H. Rosington, chairman, E. C. Allen, David Overmyer, Z. T. Hazen and Judge A. W. Dana drafted the following memorial resolutions which were read and adopted:

Your committee to whom was assigned the sad and difficult task of drafting resolutions commemorative of the death of G. C. Clemens, who began his professional career in this city more than 37 years ago and had it concluded by death on Sunday last, has the honor to present to you in the form of a brief address as suitable to the occasion and in consequence, as it happens to know, with the wish of Mr. Clemens if he could be present to press it. He always asserted his great contempt for the formal mortuary resolutions that were offered on such occasions as this as being entirely untrue, sincere and, as he expressed it, 'adding a new terror to death.' His decease, occurring so close upon that of our brother, H. B. Welch, serves, as Edmund Burke once said, to sensibly remind us what shadows we are and what shadows we pursue.

As lawyers as a rule are a long lived race, and these two men died when they and their friends might have reasonably expected that the world might have had for many years the benefit of their ripened talents and powers.

Practically the entire professional life of Mr. Clemens was spent here. He was admitted to the bar in the supreme court of Ohio at Columbus in 1869, after passing a very brilliant and remarkable examination.

Long afterwards he moved to Topeka and within a short time after his arrival his name became known to the ordinary citizen in the law, but as the possessor of unusual talents as an advocate. He seemed to have been specially endowed with nature with the necessary mental habits and qualities that go to the making of a great lawyer.

'We all have our points of self-approbation and conceit, as we all in the greatest or least degree possess the follies of humanity.' It would have been natural and justifiable if Mr. Clemens had himself put a high value on his skill and talents, but upon that score he was always modest and self-depreciatory. If he had any conceit, it was never shown. He was content to let the belief in his professional and extraordinary talents in literature and powers as a political revolutionist.

With his career and accomplishments, it is not surprising that he was called to do here; it is only as a brother in the law that we here commemorate him and deplore the great loss resulting from his death. We knew the best and the worst of him. He had lived with us for nearly forty years in the open light of day, with a complacency often, indeed, that his true friends regretted.

His death will be a serious loss to the legal profession. He was exceedingly modest in appraisal of his powers.
