TRIGG WEDS AGAIN.

Was Divorced From First Wife and Chicago University.

Chicago, April 11.—O. L. Trigg, who as professor of English literature at the University of Chicago, attracted wide notice by proclaiming that John D. Rockefeller is a greater genius than Shakespeare and that longfellow is overrated, according to information received here last night, has been married to Miss Ada Beall Cox of Canton, O. She was a member of a class taught by him at the University of Chicago. Later she engaged in settlement work at Philadelphia and New York.

Prof Trigg's connection with the University of Chicago, was severed some years ago, because of his views. It was testified at a trial in which he was divorced from a former wife that he did not regard marriage as conducive to morals. According to information here, the wedding of Miss Cox was performed yesterday at Turlock, Cal., by Mr. Trigg's father, who is pastor of a Methodist church at Watsonville, Cal.

THE PLACE FOR FUNSTON.
Announcement From Washington That He'll Head Leavenworth School.

Washington, April 11.—It was announced at the White House today that Brigadier General Frederick Funston would be detailed to succeed Major General Charles B. Hall at Fort Leavenworth. General Hall will be retired for age April 29. General Funston, however, will remain in command of the department of California until after the military demonstration in honor of Admiral Evans' fleet. May 4. Senator Curtis recently urged President Roosevelt to promote Funston to the grade of major general. The president was not inclined to do this. He called attention to the fact that Funston will not retire for age until 1927, and there will be ample time for him to attain the highest grades that might have been given him have been filled by the promotion of older officers, who otherwise would have been retired as brigadiers.

While the detail of General Funston to be president of the Fort Leavenworth school is not actually a promotion over the detail of department commander, it is regarded as one of the most desirable posts in the service. The president has decided upon Funston's transfer since the departure from the city of Secretary Taft, who has not been consulted concerning it. Major General Bell, chief of staff, readily approved the idea, however. General Funston has had no academic military training and his experience at Fort Leavenworth will be valuable to him. With nearly 20 years before him in the military service, war department officials say he should have the advantage of all training possible.

However, he is in good condition.

Missouri 1, Knox 0.
Columbia, Mo., April 11.—In the last half of the fourteenth inning Missouri university defeated Knox college on Rollins field Friday afternoon by the score of 1 to 0. The Knox team was defeated by the Chicago White Sox last Wednesday, 3 to 0. It was a game full of sensational work, although played on a muddy field. The Tigers' score was largely due to luck. Rider punched out a long fly, which Ellis caught, but slipped and fell, dropping the ball. Rider stopped at the second station. Gunlach then bunted and the throw hit him in the back. Rider scoring, and the game was over. Missouri failed to score a hit, while the visitors acquired four off of Gunby. Each side chalked up five errors.

The big Chicago American did not play and it now looks as though he has played his last game of professional ball unless he returns to Chicago and this he declares he will not do. If he should insist on playing with the team he owns it would have the effect of immediately placing that team among the outlaws.

MR. COLVILLE IS WIDE AWAKE.

Tells How He Consolidates Rural Schools in Sedgwick.

J. V. Colville, superintendent of schools in Sedgwick county, who is one of the most active advocates of rural school consolidation, has written a report of the consolidation work done in his county.

Five consolidated districts have been formed in Sedgwick county and half a dozen in other districts are soon to be consolidated. Mr. Colville says:

"There is hardly a neighborhood in the county that has not asked for a meeting to discuss consolidation. The patrons of the schools are interested in consolidation talk about it day after day. When they get people to think about it, a good meeting can be assured.

"I emphasize fairness above everything else. I will not listen to or tolerate any underhanded games. I plan all the arrangements openly. At the meeting I make a talk, and then give an opportunity for questions, and for the patrons to talk. Then I call for a vote, insisting that all opposed to the plan vote against it. Then a committee of two or three should be appointed from each district to canvass the district. This canvass should be made at once, and a report of the committee made. If the canvass shows a majority for consolidation in a sufficient number of districts, the election should be held. All favorable to the plan should be urged to vote early and then go and get their neighbors to do the same."

WITH WORTHLESS CHECK

A Man Tried to Buy a Requiem Mass From Father Scanlan.

Chicago, April 11.—An ingenious attempt to swindle the Rev. James M. Scanlan, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic church, was made last night by a man who tried to pass a worthless check in payment for a requiem high mass that was to be said for the visitor's deceased mother. The check, purported to be drawn on a Chicago bank for $18, and the man who presented it wanted $8 in currency, leaving $10 for the mass.

Father Scanlan asked the visitor why he had come to St. John's church to have the mass said, and the answers did not impress the priest with the man's assumed grief.

The police were notified, but before their arrival the stranger fled. Father Scanlan made no effort to hold the man, fearing he might be attacked with a deadly weapon.
