

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown.

If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines when medicines are not needed, and when nature requires assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

It is half-inch Dresden ribbon, in delicate shades of pink and blue, and is applied in bow-knot motifs down the front, across the bottom, up the sides and around the bottom of the sleeves.

EVENING CHAT

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"I have done one better thing Than all the worthies did. And yet a better thence dost bring. Which is, to keep that hid." —John Donne.

Columbia university received a gift of the book of $800. That amount wasn't very unusual, I suppose. But the condition under which the gift was given was rather exceptional. For the donor of the gift insisted upon remaining entirely unknown.

Several other colleges and charities lately have also received lesser but none the less respectable donations under the same conditions.

It looks rather like an epidemic of anonymous giving.

For there are few people for whom I have a more thorough admiration than those, who atop the charity to do a good deed, have the fineness to want to keep it hid.

I never hear of an anonymous gift without thrilling with admiration to think that, somewhere in the obscurity behind it, is a man or woman fine enough to be able to absolutely do without praise or gratitude.

Cherish it as a beautiful thing. And let's the man who gives openly and receives the gratitude of his benefactors and the approval of his fellow-men, just a bit too apt to let these things make up some part of his motive for giving?

Is that making too cynical a statement? I wonder. But apply the test to yourself. Does the thought of the approval of your friends and the gratitude you will receive from those you benefit, ever influence your giving the least bit?
