Mrs. W. W. Strickland was hostess at an informal sewing party this afternoon at the Country club, in compliment to Miss Helen Mitchell, whose marriage to Mr. Frank Elwood Miller will be an event of next week. The guests were members of Miss Mitchell's sewing club, and a few other intimate friends, and the bride's mother and sisters.

Miss Hazel Nelson had guests for tea Sunday afternoon for Miss Mitchell.

La Douzaine Bridge club met today with Mrs. J. A. Campbell at her home in Clay street. Mrs. Silas Porter was a guest of the club.

The elite Topeka society appeared Saturday afternoon at a tea given by one of the popular young matrons, Mrs. Paul Walker. The affair was the first large party that Mrs. Walker has given since her marriage, though her house has been opened for numerous small social functions. The party was one of the really successful social events, not only because the hostess uses taste and discrimination in the detail arrangement of party giving, but also because her attitude of friendliness has a quality of genuine sincerity that the formalities of social life do not dim nor cover.

Receiving with Mrs. Walker were her mother, Mrs. O. S. Morrow, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. D. Walker, of Holton. The hostess wore a Dresden silk gown, with cream back-ground, figured in bouquets of soft pink. The skirt was full, and below the pleated short overskirt of the material, was disclosed a wide band of lace. The yoke, skirt and sleeves were edged with brown fur. She carried a bouquet of old-fashioned flowers, sweet alyssum, anemones, little chrysanthemums and Ward roses.

Mrs. Morrow was gowned in black and white taffeta, in the fashionable wide stripes, finished with bands of black velvet. She wore over the shoulders a scarf of black tulle and lace. She carried a bouquet of red roses and fern, on a foundation of red. Mrs. A. D. Walker was gowned in lace. The foundation of the gown was blue satin, and was veiled with black lace and chiffon. Her bouquet was of roses and ferns.

The house was handsomely decorated, sunburst roses and yellow chrysanthemums predominating in the scheme of adornment. In the receiving room, clusters of large chrysanthemums stood in Dresden vases on the mantel, and bouquets of the same flowers were used on the piano. The dining room, adorned with features in decorative skill. In the center of the table was a piece of handsome black lace, and on it was placed a wide, low, crystal bowl of sunburst roses. Outlining the bowl and the lace mat were strands of ribbon in sunburst shade. The electrolier above the table was shaded in satin of black and white, and adorned with fringe, and above it were little white geese and butterflies. On the plate rail were sunburst roses and fern. The top of the sideboard was covered with a runner of black and white striped satin. The conservatory opens from the dining room, and in the dining room and conservatory were hung red cages of Hartz mountain song birds.

Marian Reid, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Reid, ushered the guests upstairs. She was one of the most useful orienters of the assisting groups of friends. She helped the callers in and out of their wraps, she saw that no one forgot her umbrella or scarf, and the knew which room each guest had entered to remove her cloak. She wore an accordeon pleated Georgette crepe over a pink silk slip.

Mrs. M. A. Low and Mrs. L. H. Munn sat at the table and did the pouring. Assisting in the dining room was an attractive group of young women, including Miss Bernice Emahizer, Miss Helen Spielman, Miss Frances Morrow, Miss Marguerite Koontz and Miss Grace Koontz. Mrs. Albert T. Reid stood at the dining room door, and welcomed the guests to that part of the house.

Mrs. Low wore a peach satin gown draped with black net, and a corsage bouquet of lavender orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Munn's gown was an imported creation of satin veiled in net richly embroidered in a rose design and trimmed with silver sequins. Her skirt was edged with black tulle and net. The skirt and bodice were trimmed with rows of narrow black double ruffles.

Miss Morrow wore a pretty afternoon frock of Dresden silk, with a trimming of white lace. The neck was round, and the sleeves short. Miss Helen Spielman's gown was of yellow taffeta, veiled in tulle. The drapery was caught in a bow at the back of the bodice. The wide skirt was of heavily brocaded Oriental material in shades of rich Persian color. Her slippers were of brocaded satin in gold and white. Miss Emahizer wore pink taffeta, veiled with white tulle, and a flaring overskirt of rose tulle, edged with silver band trimming. At the back of the gown, from the high waist line, hung a sash of wide velvet ribbon in a deep wine shade. Miss Koontz wore a gown of white, with overdrapes of gold lace, the long, straight bodice was finished with a flat ruffle of bright green tulle, and the bodice trimming was of green tulle. Her stockings and slippers were in green. Miss Marguerite Koontz's gown was of silver embroidered net and white taffeta, and the shoulder pieces were strands of pearl beads.

Mrs. Charles Mitchell, one of the assisting women, wore white satin. Mrs. Roy Crawford was gowned in a black suit, and her hat was one of the newest of new feminine trappings on display at the party. It was a sealskin chapeau in bonnet style, with an elastic band under the chin, and the front and sides were trimmed with heavy silk. Mrs. C. E. Gault was in white crepe de chine, made in jacket effect. Her hat was of black and white. Mrs. Tom King, a new member of the social set, and a guest of the guests, wore grey velvet and chiffon, with ostrich trimmed grey hat. Mrs. Forrest Loveland was gowned in white lace. The bodice was in tiers of lace, and the bodice was made with a graceful lace drape from the shoulders, at the back, falling half the length of the skirt.

Among the prominent Daughters of the American Revolution now in Washington to attend the silver jubilee of the D. A. R. is Mrs. George Thatcher Guernsey of Independence, Kan., who has announced her candidacy for president general of the organization in 1917.

In her honor a musical and reception under the auspices of the District of Columbia officers and Chaplain Woman's Christian Temperance union was held at headquarters in Sixth street. Mrs. Guernsey has been elected honorary president of the chapter union of the District.

A blanket invitation was extended to all working and professional women and Daughters of the American Revolution in the city to attend the reception. All the women high in club life received with Mrs. Guernsey.

Society at the University of Kansas, which is a society with customs all of its own, has been shocked and surprised. This K. U. co-ed has a maid. This is the first time in the history of the institution, so far as is known, that a girl student has married. The bride is Miss Mary Frances "Effie" Kansas City, Mo., and she lives in a suite of rooms in one of the best houses in the student district. It is said among the students that she is a good cook, and that there would be no other co-eds living in the same house with her.

When a young man calls on this young woman he meets at the door by the maid who takes his hat, coat and stick and says in regular maid fashion: "I'll tell Miss So and So that you are waiting."

This form is making such a hit with the K. U. men that the girl will have to hire a secretary to keep track of her dates pretty soon. The men are just falling over themselves trying to show the distinguished co-ed that they approve of the style she sets. They send her flowers, take her out to dinner, buy boxes for her at the footlocker, and take her motor riding.

Then, too, the girl is pretty, with lovely titian hair and dark blue eyes. Her maid keeps her faultlessly gowned in the latest frocks, and her maid brings her the pink of perfection, just as the "class" of Mount Oread, just ask any K. U. man and he'll tell you.

Friends who have been asked to assist at the tea to be given Saturday night by Mrs. A. Scott and Mrs. Willis Coston, at Mrs. Coston's home, are: Mrs. D. E. Estery, Mrs. H. C. Kibbe, Mrs. E. E. Ames, Mrs. Silas Porter, Mrs. Helen J. Mason, Mrs. D. Storrs, Mrs. Clarence Bowman and Mrs. William Macferran.

The Phi Delta Theta men of Washburn will give a motor riding party at the chapter house for the alumni members.

Gossip at the parties still turns to the guests and the matrimonial affairs of the chief executive. One of the pretty women at Saturday's party gives out as the latest she knows, a conversation she heard, something like this: "I wonder how the president would feel if his wife should appear again, as though she wasn't dead, in a dream, maybe."

"I think," the answer was, "that he would be dreadfully disappointed."

A party was given Saturday night by the Kappa Alpha Theta girls of Washburn college for some of the new students. A show was given during the evening, and those who had part in it were: Miss Marjorie Lyle, Miss Helen Welty, Miss Isabelle Savage, Miss Violet Trumble, Miss Mabel Lanham, Miss Gertrude Gray, Miss Louise Bell, Miss Frances Perry, Miss Ruth Koester, Miss Lois Segar, Miss Marguerite Kiene, Miss Katherine Harrison, Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Grace Wood, Miss Marie Miller, Miss Roxie Vancil and Miss Erma Zulavern.

The Tuesday Bridge-Luncheon club will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Frank Bradley. Her guests and substitutes will be: Mrs. Charles Morse and Mrs. A. F. Lewis of Chicago, Mrs. W. A. Marshall, Mrs. Silas Porter and Mrs. J. S. Dean.

Mrs. E. G. Foster entertained informally this afternoon for the girls of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority of Washburn, of which her daughter, Miss Miriam Foster, is a member. A number of the girls of the sorority will have a box party tonight at the chapter house. The hostess is Miss Freda Hempel. Miss Hempel is a member of the Sigma Alpha Iota national sorority. The members of the box party will be Miss Foster, Miss Dorothy Sims, Miss Carolyn, Miss Elsie Hobson, Miss Lydia Emery, Miss Eleanor Bartel, Miss Elsie Chapman, Miss Ethel Grant, Miss Emilie Hardy and Miss Grace Rickenbacher.

Mrs. Maria Messer of Denver, Colo., is visiting her uncle, Col. Veale, at 411 Illinois street, on her way to Evansville, Ind.
