

OAKLAND AFFAIR TOLD ON STAND BY MRS. AZLEIN

Woman Tells of Her Relations With Henry Hamilton.

Flirtation at Revival Meeting Was the First Step.

HE CAME TO HER HOME Husband Was Not There—Children Were in Bed.

Testifies to Meeting in a Barn Near Topeka.

Flirtation and revival meetings are curiously mixed in the Hamilton-Azlein "white slave" case on trial in the first division of the district court. Henry Hamilton, retired farmer living in Oakland, is charged by Mrs. Stella Azlein, a young married woman, with having enticed her into improper relations with him, and she testified today that it all began with a flirtation at a revival meeting.

The courtroom is crowded today. Many Oakland people are attending. A dozen or more women are listening to the more or less sensational testimony, but Mrs. Azlein's testimony, more sensational than that of any other witness, was a disappointment to the crowd. She kept her hand to her mouth and directed her answers in a low tone to the jury. Frequently her words failed to reach even the attorneys.

Mrs. Azlein is a small, black haired, black-eyed woman, slender almost to emaciation. When not in the stand, her broad black hat hid her face from the courtroom audience and even when on the stand she seldom lifted her eyes from the floor. Off the stand she sat behind the county attorney and his assistants with her husband, a young, blonde-haired man. They chatted together frequently and the husband gave only a casual ear to the testimony.

On the other side of the long table sat Henry Hamilton with his attorneys. He listened to every scrap of testimony and consulted with his counsel at frequent intervals. He is an ordinary-looking middle-aged man, smooth-shaven and plainly dressed. He was a widower at the time of his alleged relations with Mrs. Azlein, but has since married. He has two children in their teens and is reputed to be the owner of considerable property.

Re-Told Her Story.

Mrs. Azlein was on the stand most of the morning session. She retold the story related by her at the preliminary hearing held in the court of Topeka last summer. Most of her story was brought out by questions.

She stated that she met Hamilton at a revival meeting in Oakland last December while her husband was in town. He left about the middle of the month and met her at the court of Topeka last summer. Most of her story was brought out by questions.

She stated that she met Hamilton at a revival meeting in Oakland last December while her husband was in town. He left about the middle of the month and met her at the court of Topeka last summer. Most of her story was brought out by questions.

Children Were in Bed.

She told the jury that the children were in bed at the time and that there was a neighbor's child sleeping with them. She didn't know the neighbor's name, but she said she persuaded her to let him in but she did say he went in, then she broke in and met him on the stairs. She said she had never had any previous experience with Hamilton in the house that night that she told at the preliminary.

Then Mrs. Azlein came to the point in her story upon which the state bases its "white slave" charge.

"One Sunday night," she said, "I was on my way to the Christian church when I met Hamilton at the corner of Chester and Thomas and he stopped me and suggested that we go to his house. I did not want to go, but after while we went to a vacant house across the street from where he now lives, but his keys wouldn't fit and I couldn't get in.

"Well," he said to me, "I got a mighty good barn, and we went to the barn. I didn't want to go with him at all but he said to me, 'If you don't go I'll tell what we have done.' So your old man will find it out."

Cross-Examination.

On cross-examination Ed Rooney, attorney for Hamilton, attempted to show by Mrs. Azlein that this case is preliminary to a damage suit against the wealthy Oakland man. By numerous questions he brought out that Mrs. Azlein had furnished the office of an attorney today before they reached the court house and discussed a damage suit with the attorney.

Mrs. Azlein admitted having visited the office of M. O. Lecl, but stated that her husband carried on the conversation and that she knew nothing of its purpose.

WOMAN MOB OF 500 STORM CITY OFFICE FOR MILK

N. Y. Mothers, Babes in Arms, Become Desperate.

Drag Driver Off Wagon in East Side Riot.

SEND DEPUTIES UP-STATE Endeavor to Suppress Picketing by Dairymen.

Six Months Demand 45 Cent Increase; 35 Cents Offered.

New York, Oct. 5.—A serious disorder growing out of the milk situation took place here today when it was necessary to call police reserves to disperse more than 500 women, mostly foreigners, many with babies in arms, who stormed the two health department milk stations in Harlem. The women had previously canvassed stores in the neighborhood in search of milk for their children and finding none for sale they gathered at the city stations. A few were admitted. Those on the outside fearing that the supply would be exhausted before they could be served rushed the doors of the building.

Mob Seizes Milk Wagon Supply.

New York, Oct. 5.—The milk famine got to the riot stage today. Police blotters showed trouble on the East Side where famished women and children took desperate steps. In one instance, a driver was dragged from his cart, while a mob of 200 drained it of every drop of milk.

Police have been established in some sections. There are no portions doled out. One man started a row when he refused a larger quantity but women behind him made him desist by threats to attack him if he persisted.

Up-state the night riders are busy and extra deputies have been called, particularly in northern Westchester county to guard creameries against attack.

Pinch Greater Than Ever.

While distributors had new sources of supply, city officials estimated that the milk shortage would be any time since dairymen up-state refused to sell to the Big Three at existing rates.

One hope of a break in the deadlock was the fact that there were signs of weakening upon the part of the dairymen. The Big Three have already offered a 35-cent per quart increase for October, while other dairymen have offered a 31-cent increase. The farmers are standing out for a 45-cent raise and a six month contract.

talked about a damage case?" was asked.

"I don't know that we've talked so much about it," she replied.

"What do you mean by 'so much'?" Then you have talked about it."

"No, we haven't," said the woman. "Well, are you going to bring a damage case?" asked Rooney.

"I don't know what we'll do. We want to get this case settled first."

Mrs. Azlein testified that the statement on the part of Hamilton, once when she was at his house.

"I'll see you in a while. I'll give you my money."

At the same time she denied having said anything to lead him to believe she didn't have his money.

Defendant's Testimony.

One of the first escapades of Mr. Hamilton and Mrs. Azlein, according to her testimony, was a trip to Topeka and an afternoon at a local theater, which time, she said, he tried to get her to go to a room with him. In connection with this alleged trip Hamilton's attorney offered the following notes as evidence: "The defendant identified it as one she had written to Hamilton:

"Where was you today? I said go to town Thursday on that paper. What made you go yesterday? I seen you on the corner but could not go. I can talk better than I can write. I would like to see you tomorrow but don't know for sure. If you will take a car between one and two but if you are on the car I am don't let on. And whatever you do keep this to yourself. Now live and care and if she does, I should worry. Burn, burn, burn, burn. This will burn."

Irwin Phillips of 223 Forest avenue followed Mrs. Azlein on the stand. He testified that Hamilton had furnished him on one occasion, "I may have flirted with her a little, but all these other allegations are false on my part. I have no corroborative evidence—nothing to support Mrs. Azlein's story. The court held that the letter introduced by the defense and admitted by Mrs. Azlein was sufficient corroborative evidence to permit it to go to the jury. The court held that the motion and the case proceeded.

CZAR RECALLS GRAND DUKE TO FIGHT BULGARS

From Caucasus Triumphs to Russo-Rumania Drive.

Is Signal for Double-Barreled Allies Offensive.

CRUSH BULGARIA IS WAR CRY

Bucharest Reports Victories in Dobruja Campaign.

London, Oct. 5.—The Grand Duke Nicholas, former commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, has been recalled from the Caucasus to command the Russo-Rumanian drive against Bulgaria, said a Stockholm dispatch received here today. The grand duke will be given supreme command of all the Russian and Rumanian forces operating in Dobruja and on the Danube. He may act as an adviser of the Rumanian commanders in Transylvania.

The Stockholm report, as yet unconfirmed from Petrograd, aroused the greatest interest here because of the renewal of heavy fighting in the Balkans both on the Rumanian frontier and Macedonia.

The arrival of the grand duke on the Rumanian border it is believed will be the signal for the opening of the double-barreled allied offensive against Bulgaria and close the Austro-German road to Constantinople.

Force Teutons Back in Dobruja.

Bucharest dispatches today reported distinct victories for the Russo-Rumanians in the new offensive in Dobruja where the Teutons, center and right wing have been pressed back and also claimed further progress in Transylvania.

No temperature was made of the fighting south of Bucharest where Berlin asserts the Rumanians have been thrown back across the Danube. In Macedonia further progress on the allied left wing and are now about two miles across the Serbo-Greek frontier.

IDEAL FALL WEATHER That Is the Prospect Held Out by the Weather Bureau.

Hourly temperature readings furnished by the weather bureau:

7 o'clock	64	11 o'clock	68
8 o'clock	65	12 o'clock	71
9 o'clock	67	1 o'clock	72
10 o'clock	68	2 o'clock	73

Temperatures today averaged 7 degrees above normal. The wind is blowing at the rate of 12 miles an hour from the north.

The temperature at 2 o'clock today was 13 degrees lower than at the same time Wednesday.

August weather prevailed last night and this morning, but a change to the real October brand is scheduled for tonight. The expected showers were sidetracked, and the outlook now is for a clear, bright day. The night was warm, but the wind has shifted to the northeast and the mercury this morning was sluggish. From a minimum of 63 degrees at 8:30 o'clock this morning the temperature had risen only 3 degrees by 9 o'clock. Last night's temperatures were 12 degrees above normal.

The forecast calls for fair weather tonight and Friday; cooler tonight and tomorrow, and a shower or two on the latter part of the week. Nearly every-thing killable was lost when the first frost occurred, according to S. D. Florida, local weather observer. He said that the frost during the night was heavy and that many of the fruit plants that were saved by being covered then can be preserved by the same means tonight. "Tomorrow," said Mr. Florida this morning, "will be an ideal fall day, and a normal day at this time of the year is the finest thing that can occur."

Today it was expected that the mercury would not go above 70 degrees, and Friday will be about the same. The wind will blow from the east of eight miles an hour this morning and was expected to increase before evening. The highest temperature on record for this date is 88 degrees, established in 1912. The low record, 24 degrees, occurred in 1891. Tonight the temperature is expected to be close to 40 degrees.

PREDICT DOLLAR EGGS Boston Already Paying 70 Cents and Hens Still Indisposed.

Boston, Oct. 5.—With the price of "fresh-from-the-nest" eggs climbing to 85 and 70 cents a dozen during the first days of October, a price of 11 dozen is anticipated before the end of winter.

The retail price of eggs is going to be 75 cents a dozen within a short time, and Massachusetts consumers will be fortunate if they are not paying a dollar a dozen before spring," said Secretary Wheeler of the board of agriculture.

The ill effect on the hens of the late and unfavorable spring is assigned as chief cause of the scarcity.

St. Johns and Kelvin technical high schools have found that the loaf can be baked for four and a half cents, and they claim this loaf is more nutritious than either the baker's loaf or the average housewife's unscientific bread.

LIVES LOST AS FIRE DESTROYS CHURCH COLLEGE

Two Aged Priests Trapped on Fifth Floor.

Score of Firemen Buried as Building Collapses.

LOSS WILL REACH $300,000

Hundred Students and 30 of Faculty Escape Flames.

Number of Firemen Dead in Ruins Yet Unknown.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—About noon the fourth floor of the college building collapsed and twenty firemen plunged to the basement. Six were taken out badly injured. Others are in the wreckage.

Four others were missing an hour and a half after the floor collapsed. The loss is estimated at more than $300,000.

The roof of the building was one of the most elaborate wireless stations in the United States. It was used frequently in investigations to determine the relations between sun spot activity and atmospheric magnetism. Two wings of the building were saved and the part destroyed was the central section—the original college building.

One Victim 92 Years Old.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—Brother Cormac, 92, and Brother Clement, 78, and an aged attendant are missing and believed dead in the fire that struck the Christian Brothers college here today.

The fire, which started at 7:30, spread rapidly, and in less than an hour had almost completely destroyed the institution, which was one of the largest Catholic schools in the United States.

Jumps From Fifth Floor.

All the faculty except two and all students were accounted for. Most of the students had not arrived for the day's work when the fire started. The room of the two men who perished on the fifth floor, of the infirmary was swept by the fire, and it is not thought either could have escaped.

The assistant nurse who was injured was Lewis Nolan who jumped from a fifth story window in the infirmary, as firemen were climbing ladders to rescue him. He was in St. Louisville, Ill. It is thought that his injuries will prove fatal.

100 Students at Breakfast.

Brother Alban saw flames creeping across the fifth floor, and without taking time to discover the cause of the fire, he rushed downstairs and gave the alarm. He was followed by the students and faculty members who were in the dining room rushed out of the building but by that time the fire had reached the fourth floor. The firemen were delayed in the flames enveloped Nolan and he leaped to the lawn below.

The building destroyed was a six-story structure. Apparently the fire started on the fourth or fifth floor near the elevator shaft and spread quickly to the cupola which spans a rotunda in the center of the building. About an hour after the fire was discovered the cupola collapsed and fell into the rotunda.

The college building was a block from the nearest water plugs and several blocks from other plugs, and for this reason the firemen were delayed in playing streams of water on the blaze. The water pressure also was inadequate, due to the fact that the building was on a high elevation. When the cupola collapsed into the rotunda, the second floor burst into flames and the building was completely gutted. The building could not be saved. Just before the salvage corps, who were in the building, they were ordered to leave. They got out just in time.

The sacred vessels in the college chapel were rescued by Brothers. The natural history and curio museum, in the corridor, was destroyed. This museum was started by Brother Cormac, who is believed to have perished in the fire.

HIGHER PAY IN TOPEKA Painters and Paperhangers Strike for One Day—Win Out.

Forty members of the painters and paperhangers union "walked out" Wednesday as the result of a difference with the master paperhangers and employers over wages and allowances for drayage. The points in dispute were: a request from the men for an increase in wages ranging from 2 1/2 to 5 cents a roll, and a request that the custom of compelling the men to pay drayage on tools to and from the jobs be discontinued.

By a verbal compromise Wednesday afternoon which will be ratified at the union meeting tonight, the employers granted the wage increase, but denied the request for a drayage allowance.

The wage increase brought the men back to work this morning, and unless the local union fail to approve the compromise in its meeting tonight, the strike is off.

FEDERAL UNION THE NEXT MOVE

Unskilled Laborers To Be Enrolled in the Ranks.

Plan to Offset the Work of the I. W. W.

WILL FIX A SCALE OF WAGES

Will Include the Kitchen Maids and Rug Beaters.

Also the Large Contingent of "Odd Job" Men.

A "federal union" to enroll the common or unskilled laborers and workers in the minor crafts, in the city, will be the next move on the part of labor organizations in Topeka. The new union is the result of a movement in organized labor to offset the evil policy of the I. W. W. and to educate the common laborer in the idea of unionism.

This was announced today by Frank Brassas, general secretary of the I. W. W. in Topeka, and other prominent union men of the city who organized the "federal union." The I. W. W. will be started some time within the next month, with a meeting in Industrial Hall.

"At a conservative estimate there are 3,000 common laborers or workers in minor and unorganized crafts in Topeka," Frank Brassas said today. "It is the latest plank in the national platform of the A. F. of L. to reach out after these. Many have surrendered to the affiliation with the I. W. W. We will go after these also. As the membership of the different minor crafts in the federal union increases, the I. W. W. will be separated from the 'federal' and local unions formed."

The formation of several new locals will undoubtedly be an upshot of the organization.

When the federal union becomes stronger a big program of fixing and bettering wages for unskilled labor will be entered upon. The housewife of the future in Topeka may be expected, according to a definite union scale, the man who beats her rugs and makes the beds.

The federal union becomes larger the different classes of unskilled labor are to be organized into local unions. But the largest class in Topeka may be expected to make it the biggest local in the city.
