

ANOTHER YEAR OF WAR, BELIEF OF BOTH SIDES

British Gain Viewpoint From German Prisoners.

Victory Only When Every Village Is In Ruins.

CONCENTRATE ON RUMANIA Kaiser Throwing All Excess Against New Enemy.

Morale of German Soldier Is Changed, Say British.

(Copyright, 1916, by the Associated Press.)

British Front in France, via London, Oct. 19.—The war will last another year, according to the consensus of opinion among the British soldiers and their leaders. This is also the opinion of the Germans, if the views of prisoners count for anything.

Before the grand offensive started a high authority informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the German line would not be broken this summer and that slow operations wearing down the Germans would be inaugurated and would probably last through another summer.

Every Village a Fortress. "The Germans are determined to make every village on the western front a fortress which will yield only when reduced to powder by machine guns and every gully and crater a machine gun post to secure their defensive against a certain defeat."

"At a period when the weather is adverse to offensive operations elsewhere, the Germans are apparently concentrating every possible man and gun against Rumania. The view of the British officers is that the two nations hope to crush Rumania so that when they have to face a common allyed offensive in the spring they may not have to defend the immense length of the Rumanian frontier in addition to what they have had to defend this summer."

"It is a universal remark among the British that never has the morale of the prisoners varied more than now. You will notice that we are always taking prisoners and that the Germans get very few of ours," said a staff officer. "The small parties of our men are bound to get into very exposed positions in this kind of intricate operations at close quarters they die rather than yield. This shows their morale and the tenor of the situation. Some Germans have never fought better and some have never fought worse."
