

NOW HAVE CLUE?

Maple Hill Skeleton Mystery May Be Cleared Up.

Suspicion Points to Former Liveryman, Officials Say.

WARRANT FOR "RUFF" KING

Seek To Arrest Him in Connection With Case.

Inquest Was Held Over Bones Wednesday Afternoon.

"Ruff" King may be brought to Kansas to face a first degree murder charge. Arrangements were made today for the issuance of a warrant for King's arrest following the finding of a skeleton in a shed at the rear of a Maple Hill property formerly occupied by him. King is supposed to be in Colorado.

A human skeleton, supposed to be that of Reuben Gutshaw, was found this week in a gunny sack when a shed in Maple Hill was being cleared. Suspicion was pointed to King, a former Maple Hill liveryman, who left the town a year ago, it is said by officials. Suspicion inquiries were attended to King regarding other offenses and today Maple Hill people are discussing several mysterious disappearances.

King brought his horse to have sold a team of horses and other property to King. Then he disappeared. King's disappearance is supposed to be the statement that he assumed the young man had left the community. Gutshaw disappeared seven years ago. When the bones of a human body were found in the shed at the rear of King's former home, William Gutshaw, a brother of the missing man, said he believed the skeleton was that of his brother. His identification was based largely on an examination of the teeth and broken hair found in the sack. The skull of the skeleton had been crushed, indicating a crime.

William Gutshaw came to Topeka today and was in conference with H. J. Hopkins, attorney general. He returned to Wabunsee county and the sheriff at Alma will issue a warrant for King's arrest at once. Governor Allen will then be asked to issue an application for requisition on Governor Oliver H. Shoup of Colorado. Has Been Away a Year.

Although King has not lived in the Maple Hill home for a year, he has paid rent regularly. Gutshaw declared today he wanted the man returned to Wabunsee county to face trial for the murder of his brother. Reuben Gutshaw was supposed to have $500 or $700 in his possession at the time he disappeared.

A search of the former King home resulted in the finding of a number of pieces of cheap jewelry. This jewelry is believed to have been the property of an itinerant peddler who had appeared at Maple Hill nearly ten years ago. John Wood, also disappeared from the community and never was found. Horses and other property were in King's possession, it is stated, and the liveryman answered inquiries with the community and never had bought the property. He had supposed the men "had left the community."

An inquest over the skeleton was held by the sheriff, county attorney and coroner in the main street of the town.

ASKS FOR PROBE

Congressman Wants Congress To Investigate Editor's Trial.

See If Court Infringed Upon Right of Free Press.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Congressional investigation of the confinement of Edward T. Leech, editor of the Memphis Press, in jail for alleged contempt of court because of an editorial in his paper, was asked in the house today by Representative Baer, North Dakota.

Baer asked the probe to determine whether the constitutional right of a free press has been infringed on by the court.

Left Him His Shoes—That's All, Chicago.—The reason Walter Finnegan wore only a pair of shoes when he went to the police station was because they wouldn't fit two holdup men he met. They stripped him of everything else.
