

WEEKLY CHAMPION.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10.

The round house progresses slowly. W. H. Hardy, of Mineral Park, was in Prescott this week.

Bob Steen, our popular sheriff, was in town this week, looking after county taxes.

Lo k well to your sto e pipes. This is the season of the year for disastrous fires.

Harley Fay accompanied the party from here, who went in search of the san Gabriel mine.

Paddy Canavan, of Peach Springs, owns the handsome horse to be found in Northern Arizona.

Col Reed, of the Flagstaff Flag, passed through Peach Springs, west, yesterday morning.

C. R. Willas, the very popular passenger agent of the A. & P., is in Topeka, Kansas, on business for the company.

A. E. Fay's Peach Springs CHAMPION is a dear little paper. It takes well with the people upon the A. & P.—Courier.

Mr. Stevens hied himself away to Lost Basin and his gold mines on Sunday last in his new wagon filled with supplies.

It is to be hoped that our station agent, Mr. Ruby, and telegraph operator, Mr. Griffin, will be retained in their present positions.

Conductor Chamberlain arrived from Williams this morning. He has orders to take Conductor Ruhl's crew on the Fifth Division.

T. D. Reymert has purchased a half interest in the Tucson Index, and S. N. Holmes has bought the entire plant of the Prescott Miner.

Mr. Downey, the newly appointed yardmaster at this place is now on duty, and Mrs. Downey accompanies him to Peach Springs to reside.

Passengers on the emigrant train make Peach Springs lively during their long stop here, and drop considerable cash daily among our merchants.

Parties intending to visit Signal should address a letter in advance to the agent at Vucca. J. H. Moller, telli g how many and on what day they will arrive there.

Prescott will ask the Council of that city to submit a proposition to the people for the granting of a subsidy of $25,000 for the erection of a general reduction works.

A. J. White is coming along the line of the A. & P. canvassing for the Albuquerque Journal's New Year's issue, of which 20,000 copies will be issued. He was in Williams yesterday.

An order, we learn, will soon go into effect on the Fifth Division reducing the number of brakemen to two on all freight trains. The boys will soon be nailing up their records. Age is what tells!

Hon. L. J. Laselle, who left Kingman to reside in Mineral Park, a few months since, has returned again to his former place of business. We welcome the old standard bearer back to his moorings.

Mrs. E. H. Smith and her son, Allie, spent a short time in Peach Springs this week. Mrs. Smith now conducts the restaurant business of Kingman, and we are pleased to know, is meeting with success.

Conductor Nelson, who has fully recovered his health, has taken charge of his train, running between Peach Springs and the Needles. Conductor Chamberlain, who has been running Nelson's train during the illness of the latter, has gone to Williams to report to Division Superintendent Hardy.

On Wednesday the Atlantic & Pacific railroad company commenced running a regular emigrant train, with sleeping cars attached. The train left the union depot Albuquerque, at 12:01 p. m., railroad time, and it will haul all the emigrants coming over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road from the north.

Gov. Tritle, S. C. Miller and James Stewart think they will succeed in raising $1,000 which soon will be expended in making repairs on the road to Ash Fork. Citizens of Prescott have given $300; the United Verde Company give $300 and two of the supervisors have promised $400. This is a good move.—Courier.

Arthur Payne, a civil engineer well known throughout the Territory, died in San Francisco a few days ago. During the early days of Tombstone we knew the deceased well. He was then in the employ of an eastern mining corporation of which Mr. A. H. Siebbins, of Tombstone, was the resident manager. His death will be deeply mourned by a large number of friends.

Mr. W. Allison has purchased an interest in the Albuquerque Journal, and has assumed the position of assistant editor, that staunch and reliable journalist, Mr. Burke, remaining as the managing editor. The Journal Company is composed of men of the right stamp to make a paper successful, and from a small enterprise, known but little except in its immediate vicinity, it has reached out to its now vast proportions until it supplies a field which stamps it as the metropolitan paper of the Southwest.

Elsewhere will be found the advertisement of K. M. Garden, proprietor of the Windsor hotel, to whom allusion was made in last week's CHAMPION. The proprietor is well known along the line of the A. & P., and her many friends, when visiting Albuquerque, will most certainly give the Windsor a call—a first-class house in every particular, the head and front of which is the most popular caterer to the traveling public in New Mexico. Mr. J. E. Staley, formerly of the Armijo House, is now clerk at the Windsor, and is well and favorably known to the hotel patrons of the Southwest.

W. L. Van Horn, representative of the Albuquerque Journal, arrived in town this morning, and left on the western bound train this afternoon.

We are in receipt of a very handsomely printed invitation to attend a social hop, given in Wilson's hall, Flagstaff, last evening. We regret very much our inability to be present.

Mrs. F. A. Conant of Chicago, correspondent for Abbott's Monthly and The Living Church, with Chicago publications, and Mr. C. W. Conant, wholesale wool buyer, of Chicago, arrived in town last evening.

Last night, at about 6 o'clock, as some parties were coming out of the side door of Fay's restaurant, they discovered fire in the roof of Jack Commack's building. The alarm was given, a ladder obtained, and a pail of water put out the fire. Had it got a little more start, a serious conflagration could not have been prevented. This is the season of the year when fires occur most frequently, and our citizens should be prepared to fight it. Barrels of water ought to be standing at convenient places along the street.

The citizens of Globe are very anxious to secure a mail route to Winslow, on the A. & P. road, via Green Valley or Union Park. It is said that a mail route on the line proposed would accommodate and furnish at least 1,000 citizens with mail, who are now compelled to travel long distances—some of them nearly one hundred miles—for their mail. There seems to be good grounds for the establishment of mail service on the route proposed, and there are no good reasons why the people interested should not have it.

By an associated press telegraph dispatch, we learn that, on the 30th ult., a section of the wall of the Cook block, in Tombstone, which covers more ground than any other in the city, fell to the ground, bringing with it heavy timbers and the wooden awning, people barely escaping with their lives. We remember, nearly three years ago, when that same section of wall, after a rain which continued four weeks, fell to the ground, burying workmen in the debris. That block is a monument to the fair fame of Tombstone, the first of large dimensions erected in the city, and Ben Cook, its owner, will now see to it that its next crumble will be caused only by the withering hand of time.

Prescott is the hub of Central and Northern Arizona.—Courier.

But, John, the spokes and fellow of that "hub" don't seem to get into place. Prescott is dormant without its smelters and manufacturing. Her people sit quietly down and let Albuquerque, who two years ago was composed of but a handful of men, ride quietly over her, and become the great trading mart of Northern Arizona, while Prescott is not as lively a town for business as it was seven or eight years ago. Your people must awaken from that Rip Van Winkle sleep, quit hoarding their wealth, and make that "hub" consist of custom stamp mills, various manufacturing, etc., for which Prescott is so particularly adapted, before the spokes and fellows will groove in, forming the perfect circle.

We visited, this week, the great cave, located near the railroad, about eight miles east of Peach Springs, and procured therefrom some of the finest specimens of water and lime formation that were ever brought to the public gaze. It is useless for us to undertake to write at length a description of the cave, as that task was thoroughly done in a column article which appeared in the CHAMPION a few weeks since. From the time you enter at the mouth of the cave, until you descend to its lowest depths with candle in hand, the curious freaks of nature covering its walls inspire one with wonder and awe. It must be visited to be appreciated. An order has been issued by the railroad company for conductors to give lay-over checks to all passengers who desire to visit points of interest along the road.

The following details of the illness and subsequent death of Major Nick Nolan are found in a letter from Holbrook to the Albuquerque Journal:

Major Nicholas Nolan, a genial man, a brave soldier and an excellent officer, died here on the 25th instant, of mountain fever. He had been in town a week, having come down from Fort Apache to meet his family. His wife, accompanied by his two children and her sister, Miss Dyer, arrived here the first of the week from El Paso, Texas. She expected to meet her husband at Fort Apache, but instead found him here, but stricken with his last illness. It adds to the poignancy of her grief that her husband remained unconscious from before her arrival up to the time that death supervened. Major Nolan was a veteran in the service, and was a participant in the first memorable engagement at Bull Run. His body was taken to Fort Wingate, where it was interred Saturday afternoon with the military honors due him.

Everything is on tip-toe at this point, in the expectancy of the mill and mine of the Indian Queen Company starting up in a few days. Mr. Howell is expected home by the 10th or 12th inst., when a new smelter is to be put up to do custom work. This will give our miners an opportunity to dispose of their ores, which will make all kinds of business prosperous and the community correspondingly happy.

Our popular merchant, M. Abernethy, is still absent in the east. Mr. Ernest Crocker, who has charge of the business in his absence, is discharging the responsible duties of his position with great credit, and perfect satisfaction to the public.

Messrs. Davis & House, the butchers, are doing a large business in supplying our town and the people along the line of the railroad with fresh beef of the most delicious kind, daily.

Dr. W. E. Day is completing a very comfortable and convenient residence and drug store, which will soon be ready for occupancy. The doctor enjoys a liberal patronage here and in this vicinity, and has been very successful in his practice.

Chas. Spencer, the cattle man, who has 2,000 head of stock in the Music Mountains, has been in town this week. Charlie wears his prosperity with the ease and grace of a sensible man, and we are always pleased to see him.

Our school, under the direction of Miss Belle Van Buskirk, is getting along nicely. Parents, teacher and scholars are all well satisfied.

Rumors are rife in town of a wedding to occur in the near future, and if by hook or crook (er) it should come off, your reporter will be there to see.

Abernethy & Co. are receiving a large stock of merchandise preparatory to the expected large increase of trade on the starting of the mill and work in the Indian Queen mine.

Mrs. J. T. Davis, the estimable lady who feeds the hungry at her popular restaurant, is one of the best caterers to be found in the Territory.

Mrs. Moss, correspondent for eastern mining journals, has been in town this week, and visited the Indian Queen mine.

Parties visiting Hackberry will now find at the depot, on the arrival of all regular trains, a conveyance to town, and John House on hand to take care of baggage and look after the welfare of passengers.

Our telegraph operator at the station is one of the boys along the line who is going to stick to his place, notwithstanding the reduction in his salary. He says it is a long winter before him, and he don't propose to go out in the cold at this season of the year.

Sheriff Stein has been here this week, on his annual tax collecting tour. B.

Kingman Items. Jack Owens has bonded a one-third interest in his copper mine to Abe Bateman for $5,000, and it is understood the bond is a go. Jack will make a brief visit to San Francisco.

Jimmy Carnavan, on seeing Rev. Father Deraches, of Prescott, in town, departed immediately for Mineral Park, looking after his lady, to whom he extended his aching heart. Hasn't returned yet, but the people have hopes that Uncle Jim will secure the coveted prize.

James Smith steps down and out of the saloon business. L. J. Laselle, who has been sojourning at the Park, assumes his old place with Ryan. Kingman's bright "smiles" haunt Lou still, and we welcome his return.

Joe Gilson, the former restaurant man, is now to take up the pick and drill, going to mining for Mr. Bateman.

Adobe Simonds has gone to San Francisco, it is said, to be married! Shades of mortality, can such things be?

Ike Cochran has sold his corral to Belden & Peasley. It is proposed to stock up the establishment with a first class lot of horses.

Mrs. Gilson's little boy has been very sick for the past few days, but is now improving and considered out of danger.

Mr. Jones, our popular railroad agent, who succeeded Mr. Shaw, has sent in his resignation under the reduction order, and is now awaiting the appearance of his successor, when he will go east.

Ben Spear writes from San Francisco that he wants no more of Arizona, that he has all the money he wants, and, so far as he is concerned, the new hotel can rest on its "ores." Simonds says he may turn it into a lively stable or perhaps a dance hall!

G. W. Beecher has just returned from San Francisco with the largest stock of goods ever brought to Kingman. The new firm is now Welton & Beecher, with a store here and at the Park.

Budd Grounds, of the old firm of Welton & Grounds, has retired from the firm, and will pay his undivided attention to his mining interests.

Lawson, the butcher, will have turkeys, chickens, etc., for the holidays.

Mr. Halsey is erecting an elegant new dwelling house.

Mr. Kohler has erected a dwelling house on Fourth street.

W. H. Hardy is about to commence the erection of a large warehouse at this point. It will be a great accommodation to those receiving goods at this place.

W. H. Taggart & Co. are now supplying their trade with poultry and fresh oysters from Kansas City, and fresh made sausage from California.

E. H. Smith, whose avordupois reaches above 200 pounds, met with an accident, on Tuesday last, in jumping from a car, which doubled him up in fine style. Fatty is not much on the rough, but on the tumble he is immense. With the exception of a few bruises, he finally brought up on his plus, not much hurt.

Mrs. E. H. Smith and her little son, who has been seriously ill, have gone to Peach Springs, on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Fay.

A Grand Supper. On Wednesday evening of this week, Mr. Harley Fay, proprietor of the popular restaurant and billiard parlor of Peach Springs, on receipt of supposed reliable information that Judge Russell and Hon. L. J. Laselle, accompanied by some ladies, would arrive in town that evening, on a trip to the Grand Canon, prepared a reception for the party and a few friends in town. The table was spread in the private parlor, and fairly groaned under the weight of the delicate viands furnished for the occasion. Poultry, fresh fish and oysters, and innumerable side dishes, together with choice wines, were there in profusion. The party did not arrive, much to the disappointment of Mr. Fay, but the supper was served just the same, and the friends at home had a most enjoyable time; the Judge and Lou Laselle lost a square meal, for which they will mourn for many days.
