SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1889.

COL. WOLFLEY has again been confirmed as Governor of Arizona.

JUDGE PRINCE was confirmed by the senate as governor of New Mexico.

THE American base ball teams, after a trip around the world, are on their way home.

ERWIN BOONT, the actor, is dangerously ill, and will probably never appear on the stage again.

THE Albuquerque city election resulted in a victory for the Republicans. They elected 5 out of 8 candidates and a mayor.

A BILL making it a misdemeanor to herd sheep within three miles of any town, passed the legislature and was signed by the Governor.

THE Clifton Clarion has again put in an appearance at this office after a short rest. It looks brighter than ever, and we wish it every success.

THE Democrats of Council and House met and entered a protest against the action of the Republican members in not allowing Zulick to run the machine to suit himself. What sublime all.—Prospector.

FAIR Arizona is preparing to tog herself out in long dresses. Delegates to a constitutional convention will be elected next November and other steps taken to place the territory into the sisterhood of states.

THE Cushing Geological surveying party has discovered the site of a buried city south of Gallup. The debris of this ruined pre-historic city extends for a distance of six miles, and gives evidence of contained a large population.

HON. J. H. HEADLEY, of the Territorial Council, went through last night en route home. He announces himself as a candidate for re-election from the southern district two years hence. He says he will be a candidate all the time.—Tucson Star.

THE two Indians who participated in the murder of Deihl; were sentenced this morning. One received ten and other fifteen years imprisonment. The Indian who helped murder Jones got fifteen years imprisonment.—Phoenix Arizona.

All three judges of the supreme court decided that the Atlantic and Pacific railroad should pay its taxes, not only in Apache County, but in the counties of Yavapai and Mohave. An appeal has already been taken to the supreme court of the United States.

THE Phoenix Arizonan has right ideas concerning a north railroad. It says: A north and south railroad, wood give us cheap lumber, a market for our agriculture products, a summer resort for our citizens, all of which would be fully returned by winter sojourners from Northern Arizona.

THE President received his first month's salary on the 27th. It amounted to $3,888.88, and was delivered to him in the form of a Treasury draft. It was for the month of March, minus the first three days. Mr. Cleveland received the President's salary for that portion the month.

INSTEAD of sending the Tonto Apaches to the military reserve on the Verde, they should either be kept at San Carlos or sent out of the territory. Never noted as a very brave tribe, they have the reputation of being the most treacherous and greatest thieves of any Indians on the coast.

THE Star of Tucson is authority for the statement that it was Col. Thorp, of Flagstaff, who presented President Harrison with the gold-bound book which contained the Colonel's biography and endorsements of his application for the Governorship of Arizona, and says that those that have seen a copy of the volume say the endorsements were from many distinguished men of several states.

COUNCILMAN Wm. H. HARDY, in a letter to the Mohave Miner, says: The farmers of Maricopa are mostly land poor, they have but little time to work. Something is likely to happen in town and they are afraid they will miss it, so most of their time is spent in town. Some of these farmers raise a larger crop of hell than they do of wheat and barley. This will soon be remedied, men of life and enterprise are coming in and the land will soon be owned by them and will be cultivated to perfection. Ten years hence Salt River valley will look like a different country.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

News and Notes Concerning the Capital from our Correspondent.

Washington, March 25th, 1889. The important diplomatic appointments were completed Wednesday, and the wild and woolly West came in victorious at last. It appeared that New York confidently concluded to distribute the main offices among her valorous patriots, and to put the other positions on the shelf for a rainy day. The politicians regarded the appointment of Senator Everts to the English mission as certain, and it is still probable that if he had asked for it, it might have been given him. The same people had fixed upon William Walter Phelps for a first class mission, and that he did not get it is not Willie's fault. The truth is that the President knows that Willie is not so vitally important a factor in American politics as he himself has fondly imagined.

The selection of Robert T. Lincoln for the English mission is regarded in Washington as an excellent choice, though the nomination is a great surprise. In the first place it was not supposed that Mr. Lincoln wanted the appointment, and in the second place, he was not classed among the Americans rich enough to afford the honor of spending vast sums yearly from private funds to support such a brilliant social position. Exactly what sort of Minister he will make should not be hard to determine in the light of his record as Secretary of War. In that position he firmly resisted every effort of the regular Army officers to plunge their arms into the Treasury any further than their elbows. No other Secretary in the last score of years has attempted to do that. He also evinced a calm disregard for the cheap clamor of small factions. The appointment thus appears satisfactory.

However Mr. Lincoln's appointment may strike the Irish interested in the cause of Home Rule—and it would appear that it should impress them favorably—it goes without saying that the selection will be popular in the rural neighborhoods, where new men are slowly learned of and old names are reluctantly parted with. To these people, the people who do the voting, the sending of Robert Lincoln to England revives only generous recollections of the magnificent American liberator. Abraham Lincoln's son must be a thorough going American.

Murat Halstead is one of the dozen American Journalists whose names are known to the people at large. With Mr. Reid's appointment, this nomination completes a strong representation of newspapers in the diplomatic service. At present our relations with Germany are in a fair way to settlement, but it is cheering to know that a military looking man, with an immense power for distributing sanguinary ink over large areas of paper, will be right there to jealously guard our honor, by the year, or the number of words.

When the Republic was a great deal younger she often flew in the face of the proverb as to choosing young men for action and old men for counsel. After a long time she has done so again in sending Allen Thorndike Rice to Russia. Mr. Rice is distinctively an aggressive young man, with a healthy mind, a fine literary training following upon a singularly thorough education, and an indomitable courage. When he took possession of the North American Review a few years ago, he was less than twenty-five years of age, and the stock of the magazine was practically worth less than twenty-five cents. Today it is the most fortunate of the high class monthlies.

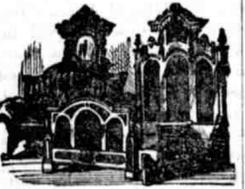

It was expected that opposition to Mr. Rice's confirmation might be very strong among Democrats who believe him to be the author of the Arthur Richmond letters, which so scored Bayard and his policy. There being apparently no proof of the authorship, the opposition, may however, be futile, as it would of course be, in the end, useless.

Patrick Egan's nomination for Minister to Chili is regarded as a graceful recognition of the Irish vote, though just what Mr. Egan can do for Home Rule while in Chili is hard to determine. It is expected that Patrick Ford will be the next Irishman appointed to a prominent office.

Mr. Wanamaker has put his large luxuriant Philadelphia feet into the soup by attempting to run the Post office Department in the same way he conducts his store, by consulting only himself as to appointments. His selection of a postmaster for Philadelphia in open opposition to Senator Quay will result in the making of a new slate for Pennsylvania, from which both his man and Senator Quay's will be carefully omitted.

The Senate will hardly adjourn before next Friday, and in consequence appointments in the next few days will be very numerous.

Wonderful Results. Results of an individual following the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Severe cases of scrofula, upon which other preparations have been powerless, yield to the peculiar curative power of this medicine. Distressing cases of dyspepsia, excruciating complaints of the kidneys and liver, agonizing headache, and pain of salt rheum, disagreeable cases of catarrh, and aches and pains of rheumatism, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, and at the same time tones the stomach, creates an appetite, and gives strength to every function of the body. Give it a trial.

General Debility. "For four years my wife suffered with large tumor bunches on the glands under the arms, and general debility of the whole system. She became so poor in health that we were on the verge of despair regarding her recovery. Physicians did not seem to understand her case; at all events she never derived any benefit from their treatment. She finally concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The immediate effect was so marked and satisfactory that she continued to take it, and this is the result: She has gained in weight

From 84 to 111 Pounds and is stronger and in better health than she has been for years. The tumor bunches under her arms have diminished, and we believe Hood's Sarsaparilla will be too good for them in time." J. J. NEWMAN, 226 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.
