PROSPECTUS.

THE undersigned, believing that a cheap daily Whig newspaper at the seat of Government would prove a valuable auxiliary to the Whig cause during the approaching Presidential contest, will publish, on the first Monday in November next, a thorough and decided Whig paper, entitled,

THE WHIG STANDARD,

- 1. "A sound National Currency, regulated by the will and authority of the Nation;" 2. "An adequate revenue, with fair protection to American industry;" 3. "Just restraints on the Executive Power, embracing further restrictions on the exercise of the Veto;"

To this announcement we believe every true and ardent Whig will favorably respond. The hearts of the Whig army, whose ranks were unbroken, and whose banners floated unstricken during the campaign of '40, must, everywhere, swell with glorious pride at the memory of the past, and their hopes encouraged by their joyous anticipations of the future.

THE WONDERFUL CURES. Performed by Dr. SWAYNE'S Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, in Pulmonary Consumption, have excited the astonishment of all who have witnessed its marvellous effects; there is no account of a medicine, from the earliest ages furnishing a parallel; the almost miraculous cures effected by this extraordinary medicine, are unprecedented. One among the many certificates may be seen below.

DR. SWAYNE'S Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, in Pulmonary Consumption, has been used in this or any other country. I am certain I have witnessed more than one hundred cases where it has been attended with complete success. I am using it myself in an obstinate attack of Bronchitis, in which it proved effectual in an exceedingly short time, considering the severity of the case. I can recommend it in the fullest confidence of its superior virtues; I would advise that no family should be without it; it is very pleasant and always beneficial; without doubt, and often ten times its price. The public are assured there is no quackery about it.

ST. NICHOLAS ANNUAL, for 1844, for little boys and girls, with engravings. THE CHILD'S GEM, a holiday gift for 1844.

SUGAR, TEA, COFFEE, GLAZED BUTTER, SHAMS, FLOUR, AND BUCK WHEAT.—The subscriber respectfully returns thanks to his customers, and the public generally, for past encouragement, and offers a complete assortment of Family Groceries of the best quality and perfectly fresh, having been purchased at the first establishments. He will be constantly receiving new goods, which, together with his present stock, will be sold at the very lowest cash prices.

BARGAINS IN BOOTS AND SHOES!—The subscriber informs his friends and customers that he has a fine assortment of Boots and Shoes, yet on hand, consisting of men's boots and bottees, brogans and nullifiers, ladies' walking shoes, ties, and slippers, boys' boots, bottees, and brogans, misses' boots, buskins, ties, and slippers; together with servants' and children's boots and shoes; which will be sold very low for cash.

HOVERS BLACK INK.—The above ink is kept constantly on hand by R. FARNHAM, corner of 11th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, who is agent for the manufacturer, and will supply the trade at manufacturer's prices, wholesale and retail. This ink has acquired a celebrated character, and is in extensive use. The following certificates are from Dr. Thomas P. Jones, of the Patent Office, and Dr. F. Hall, late Professor of Chemistry at the Medical College of this city:

Mr. Joseph E. Hoyer: Sir: I have made use of your Black Ink sufficiently long to ascertain that it possesses all the desirable qualities which are necessary in the employment of steel pens more fully than any kind of ink that I had previously essayed, and I have got pretty well through the catalogue. I have not taken the trouble to test it chemically, as this has been already done by others whose certificates are as satisfactory to me as though the experiments had been made by myself.

Mr. Joseph E. Hoyer: Sir: I have examined and used part of the specimens of ink which you left with me, and am prepared to speak favorably of them both. Since I began to use metallic pens, I have never been able to obtain ink which would not more or less corrode, and speedily destroy them. Yours appears to be free from every corrosive ingredient. The marking ink possesses, in my opinion, all the qualities which are requisite to give to the article a very high character. Yours, respectfully,

DANIEL CAMPBELL, late Polkinton & Campbell, Saddle, Harness, and Trunk maker, Pennsylvania Avenue, five doors east of Gadsby's hotel, continues to manufacture Saddles, Bridles, Carriage, Waggon, Cart, and Plough Harness, Trunks, Valises, and Saddle Bags, of all kinds. Military equipments made to order.

LIME.—The subscriber, having at length procured a supply of pure Limestone, will be prepared to furnish the customers of the Hamburg Lime Kilns with Lime, on Tuesday, the 28th inst., and for the remainder of the season, at 95 cents per barrel at the Kilns, at $1 delivered, as heretofore. The Lime being burnt with wood is suitable for plastering.

YE WHIGS! FROM THE ASHES OF HARRISON RISING. Like the Phoenix, more loyal, more glorious, and true. To the rescue! the rescue! each traitor surprising; Oh remember, remember, old Tippecanoe.

Here's another worth having! hurrah, Henry Clay! Here's a man for a President, worthy the nation; No pigny in stature, and no pigny in brain, His head and his shoulders were made for the station, And his keen searching eye wears no crocodile stain.

Oh hurrah for the patriot, worthy the day! Be sure he'll be true to the good of the stranger, For he's good to his country, and that is his pledge; He'll not think of self, when the right is in danger, With no lie will he be "somerset" over the hedge.

Even the foreigner prospers, if he wins the day. The "bridge for the breach" has betrayed and deceived you, With a quicksand foundation, and rotten in plank, Astride of the land, to distraction "will lead you," While the chasm is hidden, by weeds, foul and rank.

Here's the strong pass for freemen! hurrah, Henry Clay! Too long has our ill-treated country been wailing; Too long have the quacks their experiments tried, Too long have we blushed for our honor fast fading, Too long has our eagle been mocked and defied.

Oh our stars may yet glitter if he wins the day. Come Whigs! cast a vote then, no traitor can yet; Fix your eyes upon Ashland—the patriot's there; He's a true man, a wise man; the land has no dute, Oh the stripes and the stars, he will guard them with care.

Alluding to Mr. Calhoun's political gymnastics. AN IRISHMAN'S COURTSHIP. "Her eyes are as black as Kilkenny's furd coal, But her heart is more hard nor its marble, I'm sure."

Master Dermott O'Foy, a merry-faced, sly-looking rogue, who appeared from his style of dress and almost unintelligible brogue, to have been very recently imported from the land of hotheaten, appeared on a peace-warrant at Clarkenswell to explain why he threatened and put in fear Miss Peggy O'Flannigan, a pretty dark-eyed lass, living in Unicorn-court, Holborn.

"O, an' please yer wershchip," said Peggy, blushing ever and anon as she proceeded with her story, "yer wershchip, the niver a foot, since this young gentleman here, that's Master O'Foy, kem over, I can set out side of my own dure but he follies me up the court an' down the court, an' as far as the pump an' back, an' to market, an' back, an' everywhere I go, until the bare life is worried out ov' me, yer wershchip, so it is."

"But what did he threaten to do to you?" asked the magistrate. "Well, sir, (replied Peggy,) I'll tell ye. So when he sees me come out ov' me dure he jumps close by me side an' begins with his coaxed an' his blarneyin'."

"An' sure Miss Peggy O'Flannigan," ses he, "an' its yer own beautiful eyes that ud coax a turtle dove from its mate or a canary bird," ses he. "Erra go your ways, Mistress O'Foy," ses I, "for," ses I, "it isn't wid de like of you that I want to keep company at all, so no more of your blarney if you please, sir," ses I.

"Ethim, me jewl!" ses he, "an' I'm thinkin' that Dermott O'Foy will be a mighty happy fellow when he makes Mrs. O'Foy of the purty smilin' black-eyed Peggy O'Flannigan," ses he. "Troth, my boy-o," ses I, "there's two parties to consent to that, an' one of them you'll never have," ses I; ses I, "Oh, indeed, Miss Peggy," ses he, "dare an' die for it is my maxem," ses he, an' so yer wershchip, for every night when he get' drunk he comes to the court and stands watchin' outside my dure with a murtheren great stick, an' swares be this an' be that, with terrible oaths yer wershchip, that he'll bate the brains out ov' any man he sees coming to the house. Well, yer wershchip, on Thursday night he kem in the same way an' he almost bate the life out ov' Jerry O'Mery, that's me sister-in-law's foster-brother's first cousin, yer wershchip, an'—

"Aha!" shouted Mr. O'Foy, exultingly, "an' right well he deserved it, the spalpeen. That's him that's thryin' to prevent you being Mrs. O'Foy, Peggy, igrab."

"Peggy (resuming, without deigning to notice the interruption,) an' Pether Moriarity an' Tim McCarthy, an' goodness knows how many more, yer wershchip."

"But," said the clerk, "you have not told us yet what he threatened to do to you." "Well, sir, yer wershchip," continued Peggy, "on that same he danced about the court, an' flourished the stick, an' swore that I should never see the blessed stu twice more if I didn't spake to the priest the next mornin', sir."

"And are you afraid he'll do you some serious injury?" inquired the magistrate. "O deed, yis, sir," replied Peggy, "I am afraid of my life, sir, an' I dare't go as far as the pump without Jerry O'Meara—

"D'ye hear that, yer honor?" exclaimed Mr. O'Foy, rather excitedly, "it's him—it's Jerry O'Meara that it's all about, sir."

"O babsheishin'," retorted Peggy, angrily, "beside, yer wershchip, he's always mad drunk."

"Arrah! thin, Peggy, allanna machree," said Dermott, with a sly, cunning look at the lady, "sure is't it dhrinkin' health an' more fortune to purry Mrs. O'Foy as is to be, an' bad seran to Jerry O'Meara so often, that makes me so babsheishin' drunk?" (a laugh.)

"O, the little I know or want to know how or why ye get dhrunk," answered Peggy, carelessly, "look ye here, sir," (handing a letter to the magistrate, "that's what I found tied to the handle of the pump one day when I went out, I didn't know he was watchin' me in a hall door when I took it.")

The clerk opened the letter, and read the following half scolding, half coaxing poultice of effusion, which created much merriment in court, Master O'Foy joining as heartily as any one.

To the Lovely an' Adorable Miss Peggy O'Flannigan. Erra, Peggy, me darlin', why is it ye're snarlin', an' yer purty lip curlin' at Dermott O'Foy? So cruel, so tazin', but thin ye're so plaisin'!

Och! Peggy, machree, won't ye marry me, joy? Yer looks are so thindier, yer love's a hot cinder, That's searchin' an' burnin' yer own Munther boy. Be the powers, I'm smitten, but it's mad I'll be gettin' if you don't pity the case of poor Dermott O'Foy.

Yer skin, soft as silk, an' as white as snow milk, An' PIP bats all the spalpeen for your sake, my joy; I'll whack Moriarity, an' Pether McCarthy, So Peggy, me collees, marry Dermott O'Foy.

Magistrate.—"Well, his affection appears to be very strong for you, but I suppose you have no great liking for him?" "O, deed, Miss Peggy," said Dermott, looking at her, half smiling, half vexed, "Deedin no shee sheng."

Magistrate.—"Well, Mr. O'Foy, what have you to say to this charge of threatening Miss Flannigan?" Mr. O'Foy, seemed suddenly to have lost all his wonted assurance, for he first looked imploringly at Peggy, then he turned his eyes to the bench, and then he twisted his hat, but he said nothing, and held down his head like a school-boy in fear of the birch.

Magistrate.—"Well, Mr. O'Foy, your mode of courteship, you will find, won't do in this civilized country. Miss Flannigan has evidently a strong disinclination to receive your addresses, and she must be protected from annoyance and violent conduct. You must, therefore, find bail to keep the peace towards all Her Majesty's subjects for six months, by which time, probably, your passion will have somewhat cooled."

Bail not being forthcoming, Master Dermott O'Foy was sent to prison over the sorrows of unrequited love in a brood.

TWO PARENTS AND TEACHERS.—The subscriber has just received from the North a large assortment of School Books. The best editions have been carefully selected and well bound, consisting of every kind of school book and other requisites that are used in the District and the surrounding country, and will be sold at unusually low prices.
