ELUDES KIDNAPPERS.

H. E. Cooper's Son Has an Exciting Experience.

Three unknown armed ruffians this morning stole the 13-year-old son of Superintendent Cooper from Punahou Preparatory School and forced him at the point of a pistol to Round Top, declaring that his father would have to hand over a handsome sum before he saw his son Theodore again.

One of the men went ahead to point out the path and see that their actions were not observed, while the other two fellows brought up the rear, one with a club and the other with a drawn revolver which he held pointed at the frightened youth.

Theodore, terrorized and uncertain as to his ultimate fate, slipped on the grass many times as he ran trembling ahead at the gruff commands of the kidnapers. For this they compelled him to, remove his shoes and stockings, that his bare feet might the better hold the ground.

As the queer procession neared the summit of Round Top, the child thieves becoming thirsty with their exertions, looked around for water and made for a tank in the neighborhood. Noticing that the gun carrier laid his weapon down to slack his thirst, the boy, realizing his opportunity, made a break for liberty, running as fast as his bruised and bleeding bare feet could carry him in his headlong rush for freedom. Theodore had almost reached a turn in the road when a shot rang out and a bullet whistled past his ear. The next moment he was around the corner and flying for home, where, arriving in such a state of fright that he could barely relate his experience, he informed his startled mother of the events of the morning.

Theodore states that one of the men was stationed in the basement of the school and that the other two were in the grounds. He had occasion to go in the basement and was held up at the pistol's point and told that unless he did what he was ordered to do he would be shot.
