THANKSGIVING.

Next Thursday is the day set apart on which to publicly give thanks for the blessings of the past year. Many people are so constituted that they can see no good in anything and look only on the dark side of life. They never enjoy the sunshine nor fully appreciate the mere joy of living. It is indeed a poor life that contains no bright spots.

In the church and in the home we should express our gratitude for the bright spots and for the sunshine which may be found in the life of every individual. Around the family circle there may be a vacant chair of some one far away in the land of the living or called to the great beyond.

Let us remember these absent ones and renew with grateful hearts our thanks for the ties we have of father, mother, sister, brother, son and daughter, and those precious influences which bind the family and the home.

Give thanks to your country for the peace, the union and the liberty enjoyed throughout the land.

Give thanks to the noble men and women who are daily doing noble deeds and making sacrifices unknown to the world, but which go to make life brighter and more worth living.

Give thanks to the innumerable host of fellow beings whose life is wholesome, who in some small way help to lighten each others burdens and make the rugged paths of life smoother and happier by their self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of humanity.

Render thanks to the Giver of all Good for being alive, for the blessings which you have received, and if your measure of happiness has been small that your fortunes are no worse than they are. There is no one but who can find something for which to be thankful this Thanksgiving Day. Let us therefore give thanks for what we have.

DUTIES OF GRAND JURORS.

In his charge to the grand jury, Judge Parsons has given a clear, intelligent outline of the duties and responsibilities of a grand juror. He shows the importance of a grand jury to the community in compelling honest and upright administration in office by public servants. There is no better public monitor than the grand jury system to guard against wrong-doing by public officials. The scope of their investigations is unlimited and the influence for good which they exert most powerful. The secrecy of the grand jury's deliberations, which heretofore appear to have been lightly regarded, cannot be too strongly impressed upon grand jurors. Secrecy of action permits a grand jury to sift to the very bottom every matter of a public nature demanding investigation and inquiry. The public records and the administration of every government official is open to examination and criticism, and grand jurors should not be deterred from doing their whole duty by fear of disclosure of their votes or expressed sentiments within the sacred precincts of the jury room. Judge Parsons has endeavored to impress upon the present grand jury the importance of keeping such information inviolate.

If POLITICS is going to be the governing factor in the appointment of a new postmaster, it will not be necessary to regard a candidate's honesty or business ability, which of all places is most required in the post office department, where corruption has too long run rampant at Washington.

THE service of the wireless speaks for itself and no substantial business house finds fault with the promptness in receipt or delivery of messages.

Dr. N. RUSSEL delivered on last Tuesday night the first of a series of lectures on the social conditions of the Far East. His address on "China" is the result of several years' study of the Chinese character and what he says may be taken as the opinion of a student who strives to find the solution of a problem which appeals to him. It is to be hoped the public may have the benefit of his intimate knowledge of this very deep subject, and later that his lecture on Russia may be given to a larger audience.

Old Thankgivin' Days.

If dreams could bring them back again, the old Thankgivin' Days; If wishes had the cheery art of alterin' our ways, I'd sit again by grandpa's board an' see his kindly face; I'd view the table, bounty stored, and listen to his "grace;" And if the blessing halted some I would not twist, I know, As did my sister and myself, oh, long, long years ago, For now Thankgivin's not the same; it lacks the genial cheer That glorified an' hallowed it, since grandpa isn't here.

The blessing that he asked was long, or so it seemed to me; It covered everything in sight an' some you couldn't see. The turkey an' the President, the things of cheer and joy—I wriggled less to hear him bless "this orphaned girl and boy." "An' bless our Congress, too," he said, "with all its sharps an' flats, An' please forgive the errin' ones that's known as Democrats." And while the mighty turkey steamed and forth its odors dealt, I pinched my sister 'neath the board to show her how I felt.

To all things mortal comes an end, and so the blessing passed. And grandpa and the turkey met in conflict dire at last. And how we children ate and ate, unmindful of the load, Till auntie said in warning tones: "Them children will explode!" We didn't mind what auntie said; we ate an' ate an' ate. An' frequent was our bland request: "Some more upon my plate?" And when a wreck alone remained upon the festal board, While grandpa offered final thanks, we lack of room deplored.

If dream could bring them back again, the old Thankgivin' Days; If I could hear my grandpa's voice in words of grateful praise; If at the board my sister sat, not worn and gray and old, But in her eyes the light of skies when mornings were of gold, Then, though the blessing wandered on through minutes growing long, To cover all the peopled earth and life's tumultuous throng, Still would I sit in full content, or cry "Amen!" with zeal. For it would take a host of words to speak the thanks I'd feel. A. J. WATERHOUSE.

Honokaa Liquor Co.

Articles of association of the Honokaa Wine and Liquor Co., Ltd., have been filed in the office of the Treasurer of Hawaii by W. C. Peacock, J. G. Rothwell, C. S. Weight, R. L. Auerbach and H. W. Adams. The principal office will be Honolulu and the purpose is to take over the liquor and tobacco business heretofore conducted at Honokaa, Hamakua, Hawaii, by William Russel, Joseph Burkinshaw, Simon Bond and W. C. Peacock & Co., Ltd. The privileges of a hotel business, of acting as agents, of dealing in real and personal property up to three times the amount of its capital stock, of dealing in shares and bonds of other corporations and of doing "any other act or business, agricultural, mercantile or otherwise," are asked by the corporation. The capital stock is $6250 with the privilege of increasing it to $200,000, the share being of the par value of $25 each. The term is fifty years and the officers for the first year are: J. G. Rothwell, president; William Russel, vice president; C. S. Weight, treasurer; R. L. Auerbach, secretary; Joseph Burkinshaw, director; A. W. T. Bottomley, auditor. The Peacock company takes 160 shares, William Russel 20, Simon Bond and Joseph Burkinshaw 10 each and the five incorporators one each.

Bananas Thrown Overboard.

California is very strict in the enforcement of her law regarding inspection of fruits and plants dangerous to State agriculture. On the last trip of the Enterprise, the San Francisco inspectors boarded the vessel to examine her cargo of bananas. In one shipment of 40 bunches 33 were dumped overboard because of scale. Reports received indicate that some Hilo shippers are careless in this respect and also are sending small, inferior bunches of fruit, which are invariably rejected by commission merchants or disposed of to peddlers, who sell at prices which ruin the regular market. One shipper who exercises some discretion in the quality of fruit shipped, realized on his last shipment 67 1/2 cents per bunch. These were well packed and arrived in good condition. According to the market reports, the banana market will be good from now on for Hawaiian fruit, few shipments being received from New Orleans.
