 In one of his novels Charles Dickens describes interestingly how like a public enemy the British Government treated the British inventor, and how like the greatest of public benefactors the same inventor was treated on the Continent of Europe. So far as the Continent is concerned the conditions now seem to have been reversed. A workman in Frankfort, Germany, who invented a substance used in finishing velvet, has been fined for imparting information concerning his invention to a person outside the establishment in which he was employed. The Court said that it was the duty of the man to make experiments, and that his inventions were the property of his employers.

Train the girls to use their arms and legs in the gymnasium half an hour a day, and there will be a new race of strapping, blooming, happy-looking lasses, who will accomplish more work in the class-rooms in a week than they are now capable of in a month. Lack of steady and well-directed exercise is the bane of many a schoolgirl's life. A gymnasium should be attached to every school, public and private, if the State has to step in and require it, thinks the New York Sun. Girls are well enough in their way, but they are monotonous and mentally depressing. Give the girls plenty of exercise, and the doctors and the undertakers will not have so much to do.

The perpetrators of many heinous crimes have asserted that they acted under the influence of hypnotism. Such pleas are practically worthless, but they receive more attention than they deserve. Crime will not be committed under hypnotic influence except by a subject who is willing to commit it while in his normal condition. He cannot be made to do anything repugnant to his moral nature, no matter how insistent may be the suggestions and commands to do it. Charcot, the French scientist, whose investigations extended over a period of thirty years, and whose experiments were conducted among the outcasts of society, challenged the production of one authentic crime committed under the influence of hypnotic suggestion.

Congress May Adjourn in June. Adjournment early in June is planned by Republican leaders in Congress, and many important measures now pending will go over to the next session.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.
To Keep Silver Bright.
 When the clerk in the pure and plated silverware department opens a show-case you may detect the pungent odor of camphor. Inquiry reveals the fact that large blocks of gum camphor are deposited here and there in the case, and that the effect of the effluvia is to keep the metal from tarnishing. "It would be practically impossible to keep our silver clean and bright without camphor," explained the floor-walker.—New York Press.

Cleaning Walls.
 The very best material to clean wall-paper and fresco, painted or kalsomined walls is stale rye bread. This bread is used in preference to anything else by artists to clean drawings in charcoal. There are manufactured wall cleaners which do this work very well, but they do the work no better than the old-fashioned bread cleaner. Wheat bread that is two or three days old will do the work almost as well as the rye bread, which is sold for the purpose.

Selecting Cooking Utensils.
 Always buy steel-finished ironware, and see that the surface is absolutely smooth and without blemishes. Nothing in other materials can take the place of iron (in certain vessels) for long, slow cooking, where an even temperature is to be maintained. In pots those of granite or porcelain-lined are the best, but much care must be exercised in selecting them, as a single blemish in such linings means quick chipping off from that point, soon rendering the vessel useless. Tinware of cheap quality is the avenue of greatest extravagance in kitchen furnishings. The best is the only kind worth buying at all nowadays. There is a great difference in the appearance of good and poor tin, the latter being very bright, while the former is dull.—Ella Morris Kretschmar, in the Woman's Home Companion.

Table Decorations.
 Fairy lamps are used effectively with some decorations. A harp-shaped one of red poinsettia, provided with a circular flower piece below, is sometimes used to frame a circular plate glass mirror. Another decoration suggested by a florist might consist of a fairy lampset in the midst of a bank of pink roses and ferns, the three arched pieces being brought over the lamp and united in one piece to support a scattering cluster of roses and asparagus. The arches themselves should be trimmed with the feathery asparagus, with here and there a pink rosebud interwoven with the green.

A novel centre piece may be made of ribbon shaped to look like a large double bow. The ribbon really covers a small box or pan filled with damp moss or cotton, in which are placed tulips or lilies of the valley, with their foliage, and maidenhair fern or asparagus. Lilies of the valley make a very pretty decoration massed simply in a circular silver box. A spray of fine, feathery fern rising at one side of the box and backed by a tall bow of green ribbon, at the base of which are some roses and rosebuds, gives an original touch to the whole.

For a patriotic dinner or luncheon table three small silken flags on gilded staffs may be draped at the back of or in the centre of a deep bowl of roses, asparagus and other flowers chosen to harmonize with the colors of the flags. The flags should always represent the nationality of the guests. If all those invited are Americans the several flags, such as the star spangled banner, the union jack and similar flags, may be combined. Should there be a guest of honor who is connected with the navy the naval flags should be used in miniature. If anyone connected with the army is a guest the army corps flags should be represented.—Washington Star.

Recipes.
Brown Cookies—One cupful of molasses, one cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of butter or lard, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda in half a cupful of boiling water. Sufficient flour to make a soft dough.
Chocolate Caramels—To make chocolate caramels grate two squares of chocolate and dissolve in a little water. Add this to two cups of sugar and a cup of water. Boil and finish them in the same manner as the coffee caramels.

Piquant Sandwiches—Break with a fork to a creamy mass a quarter of a pound of soft, creamy cheese. Add half a cup of shredded cress, blend together and spread on small rye-bread slices, sprinkle thick with finely chopped nuts, dust with salt and place together in pairs.
Cold Roast Beef Boiled—Cut thin slices from the underdone parts of the roast, season with salt and pepper, place upon the gridiron over nice coals, turn them quickly two or three times, as it cooks quicker than when entirely raw, and serve as soon as done, while very hot with a bit of butter on each slice.

Cream of Rice With Prunes—Cook one-fourth of a cupful of rice in a cupful and a half of milk. Make a boiled custard with three yolks of eggs, half a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of milk. Add half a package of gelatin softened in cold water and strain over the rice. Let cool. Fold in a pint of whipped cream, twelve sifted prunes and lemon juice. Serve surrounded with cooked prunes.

Omelet Bonne Femme—Cut one ounce of salt pork into dice; also two tablespoonfuls of crust off a fresh loaf of bread cut the same way. Fry together in one ounce of butter for two minutes, adding a chopped boiled potato, pinch of parsley, two saltspoonfuls of salt and dust of pepper. Beat six eggs for four minutes, turn into the other ingredients in the pan and proceed as for a plain omelet.

Lincoln's Tribute to Common Men.
 A Lincoln story which shows that the great emancipator was quick at repartee, and effective as well, was told a short time since. Two hero worshipers had long desired to meet Abraham Lincoln, but when the coveted privilege was finally granted they were unspeakably disappointed in the personality of the rail-splitting president. They gazed at him in silence and then one of them exclaimed in a dissatisfied voice: "Why, Lincoln is just a common-looking man like us!" The great emancipator turned to the speaker and said gently: "Yes, my friend, but I have the consolation of knowing that God loves common-looking men!" "How do you make that out?" queried the other interestedly. "Oh, because he made so many of them!"

Deaf Mutes in America.
 Seven out of every 10,000 inhabitants of the United States are deaf and dumb. The affliction is much less common among the negroes than among the whites.

A BUSINESS POINTER.
 Several Washington merchants are afraid to invite the trade of suburban people for fear it might offend some of their city customers who don't consider it "the proper thing" to be seen in a store with country people. They want the cash of country people when the same can be secured without any outward sign of a desire to reach out for it. One of the largest hardware firms in the city recently refused to advertise in the columns of the Citizen and gave the following reason: "We're not out after suburban business for the reason that we consider the trade of the people of Virginia and Maryland not particularly desirable." Gustave Hartig, the hardware man of 509 and 511 H Street, N. E., is of a different opinion. He wants the trade of country people and he is getting it. When you deal with him you are dealing with a square business man and a friend. Dec. 10-11

A CASE OF NERVE.
A Young Man Who Did Not Care to Live Unterrified by Danger.
 When the New York Yacht Club squadron was at Cottage City last summer, the writer met one of the most prominent members of the club, a man who had just returned from a trip around the world. The conversation turned on daring and courage, and this drew forth the remark from the yachtsman that a friend of his who was on board the Dauntless in her race across the ocean showed the greatest nerve of any man he heard of in years. It seems that when the boat was in mid-ocean a hurricane came on, and all about was blue. The Dauntless was holed and making bad weather. The wind and sea were something fearful, and it looked for two days as if the yacht would founder. Capt. Samuels told all hands that it looked very bad, and he did not think she would ride it through. All hands were on deck for hours, save one guest below, who during all this time lay in his berth reading a novel. With the idea of intimating to the young man that the captain said to him: "We are all liable to be lost." The guest replied: "Under the circumstances, we are just as well here as in a lifeboat or anywhere else, and he resumed his reading. Capt. Samuels went on deck, and he told the other guests that the man down in the cabin was either the biggest fool he ever saw or the bravest man. "He has no fear, and prefers reading his novel to making preparations for a last chance. I don't know what to make of him. Besides, he wants to know when dinner will be ready." Happily, the wind and sea went down, and the Dauntless reached port. There were facts in the case that Capt. Samuels did not know. The fearless guest, it seems, had for a long time been a source of great concern to his friends lest he might do away with himself. He had melancholia, which the great excitement of the trip, it was thought, might cure. So, in fact, he did not care whether he lived or died; in fact, it is believed that he hoped the old ship would go down. He is now in excellent health and at present making a trip around the world.—Boston Herald.

The Power of Imagination.
 Stories illustrating the power of imagination are many. Here is a new one. It comes from a recent number of the Psychological Review which relates an interesting experiment made by Mr. Slosson with the view of demonstrating how easily this faculty of imagination may be called into play. In the course of a popular lecture, Mr. Slosson presented before his audience a bottle which he uncorked with elaborate precautions, and then, watch in hand, asked those present to indicate the exact moment at which a peculiar odor was perceived by them. Within fifteen seconds, those immediately in front of him held up their hands, and within forty seconds, those at the other end of the room declared that they distinctly perceived the odor. There was an obstinate minority, largely composed of men, who stoutly declared their inability to detect any odor, but Mr. Slosson believes that many more would have given in, had he not been compelled to bring the experiment to a close within a minute of opening the bottle, several persons in the front rank finding the odor so powerful that they hastily quitted the room. The bottle contained nothing but distilled water. It would be interesting to know the effect of the explanation on the audience, but this part of the story is left to the imagination of the reader.
