

LIKE RESTLESS SPIRITS.

SOCIETY PEOPLE STILL FLITTING HITHER AND THITHER.

Echoes of the Gay Times at Some of the More Fashionable Resorts Where Well-Known Washingtonians are Taking Their Summer Ease.

Gaiety has begun at Red Sulphur in earnest. On Thursday last the guests of that famous resort gave the most brilliant hop ever held in Monroe County. Early in the evening the ball-room was crowded to suffocation, young and old, all eager to indulge in the pleasures of the dance to which the delicious strains of melody from the orchestra of fifteen pieces gave renewed zest. The events of the evening were the grand march and exhibition military lancers, given under the direction of Mr. Harry S. Morris, of the famous Seventh Regiment of New York, and Mr. Charles L. Gleason, of the Washington High School Cadets, after which dancing continued until a late hour. A handsome collation was provided by that model host, Dr. J. K. B. Gleason, whose hearty welcome made the large number of guests present from outside depart with the sincere wish that their future sojourn at the Virginia or West Virginia resorts might be under the careful care of their evening's host. Among the many present were Miss Geor. of Baltimore; Dr. and Mrs. Houghton, of New York; Mrs. Clarke, of Owensboro, Ky.; Mrs. Hughes and Miss Lilly Smith, of Richmond, Va.; Miss Power and Miss Hogue, of Charleston, W. Va.; Miss Janney, Lincoln, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Miss Bealle, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; United States Senator Kenna, ex-United States District Attorney General Watts, Colonel and Mrs. Chancellor, Colonel Blubaugh, of the Governor's staff; Miss Belle Gleason and Miss Aylmer.

Among the Baltimoreans and Washingtonians and others whiling away the hot August days at cool Deer Park, on the dome of the Allegheny Mountains, are P. T. Thompson, Miss Mary P. Thompson, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. John Camerack, Washington; John O. Donovan, A. J. Parsons, Baltimore; Mrs. Joyce and the Misses Joyce, Baltimore; Mr. J. P. Biay's, Annapolis; Miss V. King, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Miller, Washington; Mr. Belrne Say, Miss Stevens, Baltimore; Dr. L. L. Adams, Washington, and M. D. Jenkins, Harry Tighman, Baltimore. The season at Deer Park is very gay. Some form of amusement is provided for the guests every day. Already the rush of visitors from the seashore has set in, and during the closing days of August and early September the season will reach its height. Those at Oakland are Robert C. Read, Cumberland; Charles Selden, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Walker, Miss Roach, Washington; Mr. George W. Vallant, Mr. A. Brechhofer, Mr. W. J. Julier, Mr. L. Blum, Mrs. Blum, and Miss Blum, Baltimore; Mr. Cummings, P. S. Lawry, Louis Goldsmith, and Benjamin J. Eslin, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Waggoner are expected home to-morrow, and their large circle of friends in this city and Georgetown look forward with great pleasure to the advent of the young bride. At present Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner are at Bay Shore visiting Mr. Waggoner's eldest daughter, Mrs. Eugene Ives, with whom his younger children have been passing the summer. Into this charming home circle, the bride has been most warmly welcomed. Her home-coming is an event of affectionate interest to relatives and friends in this city. Mrs. Thomas E. Waggoner, is the daughter of Colonel Eugene Waggoner, an ex-Confederate officer. Her mother's maiden name was Felicia Sauvé, and, no doubt, Mrs. Waggoner will find many friends among the old pupils of the Visitation Convent in Georgetown, where her mother was educated. Mrs. Waggoner's grandfather, who was a Senator from Louisiana, years before the war, is remembered by his contemporaries as one of the most polished, courtly men in the United States Senate.

A most delightful supper was given Thursday night at the Hygeia Hotel, Old Point Comfort, by Mrs. Judge Clark, of Waco, Tex. Her guests were Mrs. Henry Gays, of St. Louis; Miss Helene Truitt, of Mobile, Ala., and Miss Ella Rose Smoot, of Alexandria, Va. The gentlemen present were Major Hess, Captain Adams, Major Smith, and Mr. De Janon, of Washington. Later on in the evening, after the dances were over, the charming hostess entertained a party of friends on the piazza, during which time the soft strains of the violin, mandolin, and banjo floated out into the air. All expressed themselves as having had a most delightful evening.

Attorney General Miller returned from Cape May early in the week and, with Mrs. Miller, expects to reach Secretary Proctor's home in Vermont by Tuesday. After a short stay with the Proctors, the Attorney General and his wife will journey through Vermont, going at their leisure and as inclination prompts. They will travel with their own horses and make what stops they please. It will be a very thorough and unconventional vacation trip. Miss Jessie Miller will visit friends in New York while her parents are in Vermont.
