Japanese Women.

It is gratifying to find that even during the long years of her isolation Japan showed herself superior to other Oriental countries in the opportunities she allowed to her women; and there can be no doubt that she has had her reward in the preservation of that spirit of refinement which has attracted the outer world. Japanese women of any but the very lowest classes have a simplicity, grace, and inborn tastefulness which are most attractive. Indeed, such qualities as these are so predominant that we desiderate more evidence of force of character. Their simplicity often seems childishness, and their modesty timidity, and that in spite of the self-possession which a thorough training in etiquette has imparted. We wish we could see more show of spirit, less slavish conventionalism. At least this is so with the better classes; among the commonalty, as we shall find, there is often what we should consider undue freedom. Perhaps we ask ourselves whether these elegant ladies are not deficient in nous; their refinement is most pleasing, but unrelieved by evidence of intellectual vigour, it is apt to become insipid.

The past history of the country is the best answer to our doubts. Even under the restrictions and enforced humility of feudalism, the spirit of Japanese women has made itself permanently felt. For, notwithstanding the comparative freedom in the old days, they were unduly kept down. Even yet there are ladies in Tokiyo who have never set eyes on a foreigner, although scores of the intruders may have passed their very gates. But the barrier here was only prejudice and a false notion of propriety which kept them from mingling with the crowd of their own countrymen; there was no law to interfere with their freedom of movement. Any despotic laws which feudalism imposed on them are now fast disappearing. As wives and householders the last few years have brought them more liberty; and wider spheres of usefulness have been opened by the increased facilities for education. In nursing the sick, teaching the young, cultivating those artistic accomplishments in which she has so well shown her ability to excel, and in a thousand other ways which increasing light shall reveal to her, we may anticipate a bright and useful future for the Japanese women. And all honour to the enlightened Empress Haruku, who is proving herself so worthy to be a leader in the advancement of her sex.—Land of the Morning.

A. M. MELLIS, Esq., NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 6th, 1881.

Honolulu, Sandwich Islands,
Dear Sir: Your valued favor of November 18th is to hand, containing your order to which we have given our closest attention, and you may rest assured we have spared no pains to make this initial order satisfactory, having closely followed your instructions, sincerely hoping by fair dealing to secure your entire patronage in the Clothing Line.

We are willing to make you our Special Agent for the Hawaiian Islands, and consequently can offer you Special Inducements on prices, as we are thoroughly satisfied that a proper representation of our goods will, as has always been the case in the past, take precedence above all other makes of Ready Made Clothing, as we are here, driving our competitors out of the market.

We inclose you a large and varied selection of samples of our Spring and Summer Stock for 1882 now being manufactured. They comprise many Novelties and are especially adapted for the Tropical Climes.

We have shipped your goods as requested via Panama, San Francisco, and by steamer to the care of your Agents, and you will find in this letter your bill of lading, &c. Hoping for an early continuance of your patronage.

We remain, very truly yours,
The International Clothing Co., DONALD FITZGERALD, President.
N. B.—As it is my intention to visit the colonies of Australia shortly, I shall stop to see you on my way. Yours above.

With the above I take pleasure in informing the public that I have opened a full line of
