Willing to Work.

If girls marry the men they love, even though they are poor, they must be willing to work for them, and thus do their share in sustaining the property of the firm. They should certainly know how to cook, and they ought to be ashamed to marry any such man until they have learned the art of cooking. For such a girl to marry such a man would be neither more nor less than a social fraud, unless she shall before engagement inform him fully of her ignorance on this subject. It is well, then, to have these schools of cookery to which girls whose mothers have not taught them the art can go and learn. And we hope the day is near at hand when girls that are candidates for matrimony will pride themselves more on their ability to cook a good dinner than on their ability to dance, sing, play, or waste time in any agreeable way. The ideal girl, the consumptive, tight-laced, party-going, piano-playing, French-talking, fashionable girl, can be no proper wife for a poor man. This language the girls may think unkind, but it is not. It is better for girls that are not fitted to be a poor man's wife to remain with their parents than to become such.—Leslie's Lady's Magazine.
