The Trial Trip of the Ehukai.

On Friday, at 2:30 p.m., she cast off from the wharf carrying a large number of Mr. Cooke's friends, who had been invited to witness the trial—all told there were 65 on board. It was very soon observed that she answered to the slightest movement of the wheel, and that perfect control of her course could be had. For a little while the breeze was faint and hardly perceptible but soon after passing the bell buoy the wind sprang up and the little vessel danced along over the waves, much to the comfort of our reporter whose harrowing feelings on the subject of the friends he had left on shore overcame him. It was not sea sickness—oh, no—it was merely grief at being thus rudely torn from the embraces of his companions who had bidden him farewell on the wharf with a tear in one eye and a wink in the other.

The bell buoy was reached at 17 minutes to 3 and shortly afterwards the schooner went on the in-shore tack, to allow the Waialele to come up and then have a trial of speed. As soon as the Waialele was abreast the Ehukai went round and then an exciting race began amidst opposing cheers from both vessels. Mr. A. F. Cooke, who was now steering the Ehukai, took his hat off and baring his manly locks to the breeze, encircled them with a white handkerchief and elevating himself behind the wheel, steered ahead determined to win or perish in the attempt. Very soon the Waialele was distanced and ironical cheers greeted her attempted manoeuvre of getting to windward and taking the wind out of our sails.

At 9 minutes past 3 the Waialele gave up the unequal contest and turned for home. The commander of the Ehukai speedily followed suit and the homeward chase commenced. In less time than it takes to write it however, the Waialele, notwithstanding start was passed. On approaching the Consuelo, Mr. Cooke to test the powers of the vessel put her about and sailed back past the Waialele and then turning again arrived at the anchorage as soon as her, at about 4:15. Throughout the trip was most enjoyable, and you can imagine the fervors with which our reporter was received into the bosoms of his anxious friends, and the thoughtful inquiries as to his health. We deem it necessary to state here that the story of 3 sharks inviting our reporter to follow his dinner is a pure fabrication, circulated by some persons envious of his command over his feelings during the trip.

The view of the shore as the vessel passed along was magnificent, and probably few of our readers have ever enjoyed a better panorama than was seen on this trip. We noticed the Marine Railway is rapidly approaching completion and now forms a conspicuous feature in the view of the harbor.

The Ehukai is built by James Dower, and is of 45 tons burthen. On the trip her draught was 5 feet. The keel was laid in February last. She is built for inter island trade, and will go to Waialua weekly.

The band will give a second moonlight concert, at Emma Square, on this evening.

Farewell to Miss Comly.

One of those pleasant, informal, enjoyable reunions, whose tendency is to sweeten and happily life, occurred at the residence of the Hon. J. I. Dowsett, last Friday evening. The occasion was to do honor to Miss Comly, who is about to return, along with her parents, to her home in Ohio. The company consisted of young folks—young Hawaii and young America harmoniously blending and forgetting all national distinctions. The guests assembled by invitation of Mrs. Dowsett. The early part of the evening passed in music, dancing, and cheerful talk. Adjournment to an adjacent building followed at 11 o'clock, the purpose of which was to participate in a spread of delicacies and luxuries that would have gratified and satisfied the gastronomic cravings of Epicurus. After this was a repetition of the first part of the programme—more dancing, more music, more pleasant intercourse. At one o'clock came the hour for dispersing, and everybody was sorry. Sorry that the evening's pleasure had ended, sorry to part company with the generous host and hostess, sorry to separate from each other, and sorry, most of all, to bid adieu to the young lady in whose honor the festivities had taken place. For the company was composed of the intimate personal friends and companions of Miss Comly, whose affection and confidence she had inspired, by gentleness of demeanor and goodness of heart, during her stay of five years in Honolulu.

A Reasonable Plea.

Daughter of Cabinet Minister:—"It would give me great pleasure to use my influence with papa for the appointment you want, but it is already filled." Applicant:—"Oh, but surely he could put in a subordinate as well. There must be nothing-to-do enough for two!"

Marshal Parke is hard at work, as usual, and with the new duties as Police Commissioner, will have a heavy load of work.

By the tern James Townsend Messrs. Allen & Robinson have received 214,000 feet of assorted red-wood lumber.

The steamer C. R. Bishop brought 1218 bags sugar, 584 bags paddy, 104 bags rice, and 66 bbls molasses.

We call attention to the tea and matting advertised by Messrs Waterhouse, in another column. The tea is well worth a trial.

Select your furniture or you piano from the really choice stock to be seen in Mr. Wells' Fort St. Store. The only etagere imported into the Islands for sale, is on view.

It is rumored that Mr. Boyd, of the Interior Office, has accepted Mr. Smithies' offer of Master of the Horse, to his proposed Siam Legation. We wish Mr. Boyd joy.

The brig Hazard, Captain Miller, 14 days from San Francisco, arrived at Kahului, on the 23rd instant. She brought a general cargo. Mrs. H. Wiggers and 2 children, and 50 Chinese were passengers.

On Monday last, at noon, an old man named Makoonoona, upwards of 70 years old, was returning to his home in the valley below the bridge at Waihee, and coming along the top of a bank 50 feet high, he was attacked by a pet ram belonging to a native named Solomon Hole. The first blow knocked the old man down, and the second rolled him over a nearly perpendicular precipice. He struck the bottom on his head and cut an awful gash 3 inches in length. He died instantaneously.

On Friday night while the Band was playing, an unheard of effect occurred. In one of the pieces a piccolo solo was to be played. The performer was a little nervous, and Mr. Berger questioned him before the piece began as to his ability to go through with it. But when the solo was about half finished, to the surprise of everybody, the soloist laid down his instrument and sang the remainder of it, in the proper key, and with all the marks of expression required. We believe also that a mistake occurred in printing the name of one selection in the programmes. We mention this as Mr. Berger was accused of substituting one piece for another.

Mr. Furneaux has just finished three fine pictures of the scenery of Puna, Hawaii. The first is what is known as the Green Lake, Kapohe. The water of the lake is green, and the rich tropical foliage growing on the banks, by its reflection, aids in producing the intense verdant green of the water. Within a stone's throw of the Green Lake is a warm spring, crescent shaped, and of a vivid ultramarine in color, which forms the subject of the second picture. The spring, named the Blue Lake, is 90 deg. in temperature and 900 feet above the level of the sea. The water is wonderfully clear and, strange to relate, at this elevation, it has a regular rise and fall which is said to correspond to the tide of the ocean. The third view is a moonlight scene on the beach, at Kau, near Puna. Some natives are landing their nets, and in the background are some cocoanut and lauhala trees. The effect of the tropical moonlight on the water is enchanting. We look on these three pictures, either as a triptych or singly, as being chef-d'oeuvres of landscape painting. They are well worth a visit.

The Gazette's mail issue yesterday is a monument of newspaper enterprise. It reflects the greatest credit on the energy of Mr. Grieve.

The steamer Australia arrived at 1 p. m. yesterday from the colonies. She left Sydney on Aug. 10, and Auckland on the 15. She experienced rough weather between Auckland and Honolulu.

Yesterday at 12:45 p.m. the fire bell was rung vigorously. The fire was on the roof of Ramsay's store, on Hotel street. In a short time the fire was put out.

This is not the regular shopping season, but ladies will use such articles as fans, pocket-books, gloves, handkerchiefs, ties, shawls of all descriptions—all of which they will find at the Honolulu Clothing Emporium of A. M. Mellis. 177

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Feer gave a dinner party at the Consulate to the French residents. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and the party did not break up till a late hour.

We call public attention to the fact that registered letters and newspapers must be deposited in the Post Office one hour before the advertised time of closing.

FRIDAY evening was a great Celestial feast-day, corresponding to the Feast of All Souls. Outside the theatre joss-sticks, candles, and paper prayers for the dead were burnt: cakes, fruit, nuts were thrown into the air: and gin, pork, chicken, and rice were arranged on mats with plates, bowls, and chopsticks laid out as for a dinner. Inside, Joss was specially decorated for the occasion, and sticks of cinnamon and sandal wood kept burning before him all night. These ceremonies are performed for the double object of providing clothes and food for the dead, and appeasing the poor devil who might otherwise trouble the spirits.
