NOTES AND QUERIES.

TRIVIAL COMPLAINTS.

If what we hear is credible, the Portuguese Consul is pretty well pestered with trivial and nonsensical complaints, particularly from women. The other day a case came to our knowledge of two women rushing off to their Consul and linking together a whole chain of grievances, simply because they were required to submit to the disciplinary arrangements of their employer's household. To the credit of the Consul be it said, that he has evinced wisdom and skill in discriminating between real and imaginary wrongs.

PROTECTOR AND CONSUL.

Not long ago, when some of our Planters advocated the introduction of British India coolies into these Islands, certain parties objected on the ground that the British Government would insist upon a British Protector coming along with them. What is the difference between a British Protector and a Portuguese Consul? The Portuguese Government have allowed many of their people to come here as laborers, and in the interests of those laborers have sent a Consul to be their Protector. Portugal in sending, and Hawaii in accepting, did a proper thing. But when the functions of the Consul are virtually the same as those of the Protector, why accept the one and object to the other?

FOR THE GOOD OF HAWAII.

Dr. Cook, in his Fort street lecture, last Sunday night, said that "it would be for the good of India for the British to stay there at least one hundred years longer." Undoubtedly, Dr. Cook is right. But do all the people of India think so? Perhaps the best thing that could happen for Egypt would be for the British to stay there also; although the Egyptians might consider it a calamity. England thought it a great misfortune to be invaded by the Normans; but the English people of to-day speak of it as a blessing. The advent of the foreigner to this country was for the good of Hawaii. Evil may have accompanied the good, but ultimately the balance will be in favor of the good. The continued stay of the foreigner here will be for this people's benefit, and the Hawaiian of the future will gratefully admit the fact.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence is solicited on the topics of the day, or what may become so. We reserve the right to excise purely personal matter. We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents.—Ed.

SORE-HEADS.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—The Hawaiian Gazette has many times talked about figure-heads, and now I see that you have given an entire article to the same subject. There is no doubt this country is very much infested with figure-heads; but I wish to say a word or two about another variety of heads; I mean Sore-heads. This is a matter which has considerably exercised the P.C.A. of late. A sore-head is a bad thing to have, whether it is caused by a disordered stomach, too much whiskey, or too close contact with a post or a pair of fists. A friend of mine told me the other day that he was troubled with a perpetual sore-head, that he had carried it about with him every day and laid it on a pillow every night for two solid years. I pity him; for I myself have sometimes borne such a burden. There is another kind of sore-head, caused by political disappointment. This is the kind that has given the P.C.A. so much concern. All those who express their thoughts and sentiments in the Gazette and Press are said to belong to this class. I suppose very nearly if not quite all the Planters are included; because they were unanimous in expressing to His Majesty their "dissatisfaction with the Advisers of the Crown." As the Planters and their Honolulu Agents certainly represent a majority of the brains and capital of the Kingdom, it is a national misfortune to be afflicted with so much sore-headedness at one time. And as brain power is, or should be, the governing power of any and every country, can any government be strong with the weight of brains against it, whether in sore or sound heads?

But, Mr. Editor, I am not sure that the P.C.A. is correct in saying that all who do not approve of the present administration are sore-heads, pained because the power and profits of office are not in their possession. I concede that some of the opponents would perhaps gladly accept office. It may be proper to call them sore-heads. But surely all these Planters and Agents, and many others who are neither planters nor agents, are not craving for the honors and emoluments of office. I personally know some men who neither desire nor would accept, under any circumstances, any place or position in the Government of this country; and yet these men are conscientiously opposed to the present administration. It is not proper to call them sore-heads.

The fact is, according to my observation, there are some sore-heads always, no matter who is in or who is out; but all opponents are not sore-heads. The P.C.A. must know this as well as I or anybody else. Then why does that journal so continually assert that all opposition to the Government comes from a few sore-heads? The only motive I can conceive is, that the P.C.A. wishes its readers to believe what itself does not believe. Is that respectable journalism? Calling people names may please and satisfy some people; but it does not carry conviction to intelligent minds. One paragraph of attested fact or logical argument has more weight than a column of insulting names.

I regularly read the P.C.A., and to some extent approve of its policy; but I hate this school-boy method of meeting opposition, whether it be used by the P.C.A. or its contemporaries, not excepting the BULLETIN. It is a mean, unfair, unmanly way of dealing with men and measures. R. E. L.

TOO THIN.

We are credibly informed that the next move of our Royal Political Manipulator will be an endeavor to capture the mechanics. He recognizes this substantial and level-headed element of the community as an important factor in the coming struggle for a new Ministry, hence his desire to parade a newly born and inflated appreciation of them; but lucras and decorations will avail him nothing this time!

SHIPPING NOTES.

The bark Buena Vista left the same day as the Kitsap, and may be hourly expected. Considerable betting on the event was indulged in before the start, we are informed.

LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS.

Mr. F. Godfrey is now on the Gazette staff, and Mr. J. Brown, who was on the Gazette, is now on the Advertiser. "The whirling of time brings about its revenges."

A WELL-KNOWN resident of our town has shown us quite a list of "barks wrecked." This, we hasten to explain, is his facetious way of recording the number of the many curs he has slain by poison.

This week's Etete Poakolu has come out in a new style. It contains an illustrated account of Monday night's meeting. Our Translator-in-Chief is absent, so we have been unable to decipher its meaning. If, however, the reading matter is up to the high standard of the illustrations, it must be a perfect work of genius.

THE Ice Cream service was crowded. A real good time.

WE return our thanks, editorially, for presents that have showered in upon us lately, in the way of eatables and drinkables. It gives us much pleasure to note these evidences of friendship.

A FRIEND called our attention to a copy of the daily P.C.A., folded as it came from the office, and evidently unread, lying on the top of a rubbish cart. Who wouldn't be a "Ministerial organ" after that?

WE heard from a little bird that the Chamberlain has already got through about $4,000 of the numerous appropriations he took with him, and nobody knows what he has done with it.

A COMMISSIONER of sea Captains was invited to examine the flag-pole in front of H. Hackfeld & Co.'s and pronounce on its safety. They say it ought to be taken out and shortened by 10 feet before being replaced.

THE business to be transacted at the meeting of the Agricultural Society to-night is important, being the adoption of a formal constitution and the election of the Executive Committee and officers. The meeting is to be at the Hotel, at half-past 7 p.m.

THE bark Iolani commenced discharging her cargo of coal at 1 p.m. yesterday, and within an hour one man had his knee smashed, a second had his hand jammed, and a third was unable to work from dizziness. The services of a doctor were promptly secured.

YESTERDAY morning nine of the committee appointed at Monday night's meeting waited on His Majesty, and presented the resolutions then adopted. His Majesty said he was glad to see them and would transmit a reply through his Ministers.

WE were shown yesterday a novel packing for glass, &c. The opinion of an eminent lawyer was obtained on it, and after thoughtful examination he pronounced it to be coconut wood, oil-cake or baked manure. Another party pronounced it to be sponge or compressed pulu. It was however, simply "soil from the Holy German Empire," being peat from the suneburg heath which extends over a great part of old Hanover, Prussia and Saxony. Some of it is now on view at J. W. Robertson & Co.'s.

LONDON GOSSIP.

THE war over the security of the Suez Canal has brought the Euphrates Valley Railway scheme to the front once more, and its promoters mean to succeed this time with the agitation. The father of the enterprise, Sir William Andrew, C. I. E., has set the ball rolling with a new book on the subject, published by W. H. Allen and Co. and, apart from its urgent and impressive advocacy of the scheme, it contains an account of the rival Russian railway enterprise in Central Asia, which is one of the most masterly exposés of the Muscovite movement in the east that has been published for many a day.

An English youth, sent to Darmstadt to prepare for the Army examinations, has got into a bad scrape. It appears that at the Woog swimming-baths he wished to dive from the plank, but a military swimming master, for some reason unexplained, roughly prevented him, whereupon the boy hurled "Cursed Dutchman," "Swinehound," and a small quantity of water in his face. For these offensive expressions and (to a German more especially) for this offensive assault he has had to answer before a jury of paunchy citizens, whose minds are at present deeply prejudiced against Englishmen by a venomous press, and has been sent to prison for ten days without the option of a fine. The boy explained, through an interpreter, that his future career depended on his being in London within a week; yet, though both he and his friends offered unlimited bail for his reappearance within three months, the court refused the application, and ordered his immediate arrest. Now this is spite—not justice; and it is to be hoped that Her Majesty's representative at Darmstadt, who has been made acquainted with the case, will interfere on the boy's behalf.

A vol. of "Recollections of the late Hon. Grantley F. Berkeley, by one who knew him," is, I understand, about to appear, and lovers of gossip more scandalous than refined may expect a treat. When his "Recollections," written by himself, were published in 1867, the doves of Society were much flattered because he had the courage to tell the truth about the shameful manner in which his brother Moreton was swindled out of his title and estates.
