

GIGANTIC LEAPS OF WHALES.

Monsters of the Deep Sometimes Display Astonishing Agility.

"Speaking of jumping," said an old seaman who had been watching some boys playing leap-frog on the sands, "let me tell you of the greatest jump ever seen. It was many years ago when I was little more than a lad, but I was then commandant on a whole boat belonging to the ship Henry Staples. We had had bad luck for several weeks when one day we sighted a big whale and two boats set off in a race to see who would get there first. It was fairly smooth, when the sailors call a white cap breeze, and our boats fairly flew over the water. Finally the whale rose not 100 yards away, headed directly for us. The mate gave orders to stop, and we sat still, expecting that the monster would rise near us. The harpooner stood with his iron already to throw, while we grasped our oars nervously prepared to jump at the word 'stern all,' that nearly always came when a whale was harpooned. Not a word was spoken and suddenly a mountain of black appeared; it seemed to shut off the entire horizon. Up it went until I distinctly saw a seventy-foot whale over twenty feet in the air hovering over us.

"The mate was the first to regain his senses and gave the command 'stern all,' just as we were ready to spring overboard; the boat shot back several feet, and the next second the gigantic animal divided into the ocean just grazing us, having completely passed over the boat in the biggest leap I ever heard of."

Such gigantic jumps are rare. A similar one was recorded by Dr. Hall, who at the time was a midshipman on the ship Leander. They were lying in the harbor of Bermuda, when all hands were attracted by the appearance of a very large whale that suddenly appeared in the harbor, and seemed very much alarmed by the shallow water, floundering about violently. The young midshipman joined a boat's crew that started in pursuit, and just as they were about to strike, the whale disappeared, sinking out of sight, leaving a deep whirlpool, round which the boat shot. Before it stopped, up came the whale, having, an all probability struck the bottom, and went into the air like a rocket. "So complete was this enormous leap," says Dr. Hall, "that for an instant we saw him fairly up in the air, in a horizontal position, at a distance of at least twenty perpendicular feet over our heads. While in this progress upward there was in his spring some touch of the vivacity with which a trout or salmon shoots out of the water, but he fell back again in the sea like a huge log, thrown on its broadside, and with such a thundering crash as made all hands stare with astonishment, and the boldest held his breath for a time. Had the whale taken his leap one minute sooner, he would have fallen plump on the boat."

Comparatively few people have seen a large whale, but we can imagine what an object an animal seventy feet long and weighing as many tons would make flying through the air. Within a week of the writing of the present article I was drifting along the shores of Santa Catalina island, Southern California, when a sixty-foot whale almost cleared the water about 1,000 yards from the boat. I was about to ask the boatman what rock it was when the great head descended and the tail rose into the air as the monster dived. Mr. Scorsby, the famous whaler, chronicles a number of instances of jumping among whales, some leaving the water completely and rising twenty or more feet into the air.

Many of the inhabitants of the sea are good jumpers and some have become famous. Among them should be mentioned the tarpon, or silver king, a huge fish with scales that gleam like silver, which constitutes the famous game fish of Florida. The leaps of this beautiful creature are often astonishing. Several years ago a steamer was rushing down the St. John's river. The captain was sitting on the fore deck leaning against the pilot-house, when suddenly there rose in the air a beautiful shining fish four feet in length. It came on like an arrow
