

DEATH OF CAPTAIN KELLY.

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE IN EARLY DAYS.

Record of the Old Whaler's Adventurous Life--How He Checked a Mutiny.

News recently reached San Francisco of the death of one of the best known whalers in the United States. Captain Edmund E. Kelly died at his home in Binghamton of paralysis, aged 59 years. The last time he was in San Francisco was when he brought the whaling schooner Jane Gray in from the Arctic after a very exciting cruise. She was chased and seized by the United States steamer Mohican and on that occasion Captain Johnson of the warship behaved in such an unofficerlike manner that when a complaint was made to Washington he was dismissed from the service. On another occasion Captain Kelly's craft was chased by the gunboat Yorktown, but as nothing contraband was found on board he was released.

When Captain Kelly got back to San Francisco he filed a claim against the United States for $50,000, which claim Bruce, Bowne & Co., the successors of Wright, Bowne & Co., who owned the schooner, are now pushing. The claim is based upon the manner in which the skipper was treated by Captain Johnson and the loss entailed by being ordered out of Bering Sea.

Captain Kelly's father served on the old Constitution, and the son was born on June 3, 1836. At the age of 17 he went out as boat-steerer on the old bark Reindeer, and when she was at Honolulu he and his brother got left behind. He chartered the Richmond, however, and made a success of her, returning home with a full ship. In 1865 he went out in the President, and again had a successful season, the profits of the three voyages being $165,000.

In 1869 he went to the Arctic in the Seneca. His vessel was one of the thirty-nine nipped in the ice, but out of the 1200 men who formed the crews not one was lost. Afterward he was in the bark Eliza for a year and the Thomas Pope for a year. While he was in the Lucretia, his next command, the men mutinied. Captain Kelly drew his pistol and ordered them to turn to. They refused, and the leader of the men snatched a revolver at the skipper. Kelly shot him dead and that ended the mutiny.

In 1891 he was wrecked in the Eliza on St. Lawrence Island, and during the tramp to civilization one-half the men were so badly frostbitten that their arms and legs had to be amputated. When his brother died Captain Kelly took the Jane Gray, and his famous cruise in Bering Sea was his last.

W.W. DIMOND'S

High priced articles have been sold here for years and people have complained, because of the high rate of living in Honolulu. We have tried to alter this, we have bought goods direct from the manufacturers and sell them for a half or a quarter off what you have paid before. The public likes the idea and so do we. The profits to us are satisfactory, probably as the other fellow makes, the difference is on the buying--our buying and you get the benefit of it.

You never saw a decent onyx top table in Honolulu that you could buy for under fifteen dollars. We sell them at six fifty and enable a class of people who could not afford to own them before, to put them among their pretty things in the parlor.

It's the same with crockery. Just look at our forty piece decorated tea sets (we can't tell you the price because you would think we were fooling). You can have a little high tea with one of these sets and be as well as your neighbor. There's nothing cheap about them, except the price; the quality is alright and no one will find fault with them. Its having these good quality goods at low prices that presents our objecting to the government turning tradesmen and selling off their stock of glass-ware and crockery.

We would enjoy your remarks on looking at our stock of lamps. The wrought iron patterns are the prettiest we have ever seen. You know what a rough iron lamp is--never gets old looking and will never be out of style. We furnish the shades, paper ones, that set them off to perfection. The price? Well, too small to mention.
