LEGISLATURE IN SESSION.

THE KAPIOLANI PARK BILL PASSES SECOND READING.

The Senate Refuses to Pay Attorneys
Bill's for the Collector-General of Customs.

SIXTY-FOURTH DAY, MAY 12TH.

THE SENATE.

After the usual preliminaries in the Senate this morning a communication was received from the House concerning bills laid on the table and passed.

Senator Waterhouse from the Finance Committee, to whom was referred the deficiency appropriation bill, reported favorably on the same, but called attention to a discrepancy of $602 in the footings of the total.

Senator Lyman from the Committee on Public Lands reported a slight amendment to the bill concerning fences.

Senator Lyman offered the following joint resolution which was unanimously adopted.

Whereas it has in the past been the announced policy, both of the Provisional Government and of the Republic of Hawaii, to advocate the annexation of Hawaii to the United States of America;

And whereas the Legislature of the Republic of Hawaii is now in regular session assembled, and will soon adjourn for a considerable period;

And whereas it is fitting that the elected representatives of the people should place themselves on record as to the present state of feeling among themselves and their constituents upon this subject; therefore

BE IT RESOLVED by the Senate and the House of Representatives that the Legislature of the Republic of Hawaii continues to be, as heretofore, firmly and steadfastly in favor of annexation to the United States of America, and in advocating such policy they are expressing not only their sentiments but those of an overwhelming majority of the lawful voters of Hawaii.

The Clerk reported that the President had refused to sign the resolution passed by the Senate concerning the destruction of postage stamps on November 1st, on the ground that the same was not a joint resolution.

On motion the Finance Committee were instructed to bring in a joint resolution embodying the main points of the former resolution.

Senator Lyman read his Act to define the streets of the town of Hilo. Referred to the Printing Committee.

Act 35, relating to Kapiolani park, was taken up under unfinished business.

Referring to Section 5, which gives the Commissioners power to charge fees in certain cases, Senator Baldwin said he believed in keeping the park free. The difficulty, however, seemed to be with the race track. There was no other place near the city where a race track could be provided. He thought an exception might be made with the race course on certain occasions.

Senator Brown said the government had never paid a single cent towards keeping up the track. The Jockey Club had erected all the present improvement at its own expense. The bill did not provide for any admission fee to the park. That was free at all times, even to the races. People could go to the races without charge if they looked over the fence, but if they used the premises and conveniences of the Jockey Club they must expect to pay a little something.

Section 5 finally passed as in the bill after considerable debate. On motion of Senator McCandless the vote of yesterday on Section 2 was reconsidered, and the section amended.

The balance of the bill passed and it was made the special order for Friday.

Senate Bill 41, known as the deficiency appropriation bill, was taken up, Minister Damon explaining the items as they came up.

When the item of $491.20 for incidentals in the Custom House department came up, the Minister explained that $300 of the amount was for an attorney fee for W. R. Castle for drawing up a number of Acts for his brother, the Collector-General, and $51.70 for typewriting the same. The Collector had had this work done on his own responsibility. The government knew that it was being done but had not authorized the work. The several Acts prepared were in the possession of the government and were of considerable value, but so far no use had been made of them.

Senator Brown said he could not go back on the bill of a brother lawyer, but the principle involved in its payment was what troubled him. If the Senate paid this bill the rule would be laid down that any head of a department might involve the government in expense without the consent of his superior officer. This could not be allowed and to pay the bill would establish a very bad precedent.

Senator Holstein moved to strike off $351.70 from the amount and insert the item of $139.50. He considered the whole matter a very presumptuous piece of business on the part of the Collector-General.

Senator McCandless said it was establishing a very bad precedent to pay such bills. It was unheard of that such should even be presented to the Legislature. If people wanted to draw up bills for the government let them get the proper authorization from their superiors or else do it at their own expense. One of the bills had already caused a great deal of trouble to the country although it had not made its appearance in the Legislature.

Senator Holstein's amendment carried.

The remaining items passed as in the bill.

House Bill 21, relating to fencing on or adjoining government lands, with the report of the Committee was taken up. The report was adopted, which carried the bill through the second reading.

House Bill 29, the curfew ordinance, passed first and second readings under suspension of the rules.

House Bill 34, defining burglary, etc., also passed first and second reading.

Adjourned.

SIXTY-SIXTH DAY, MAY 12.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Reps. Robertson and Kaia were the only absentees this morning.

The Senate informs the House that the joint resolution relating to the great seal has been referred back to the Committee of Conference in order to have the stripes on the shield corrected in the photographic copy.

Rep. Richards reported the House amendment to Senate Bill No. 31, and House Bills 39, 40 and 42 typewritten, and House Bills 43, 44 and 45 printed.

Rep. Bond submitted the report of the Committee on Public Health in relation to a petition for a piece of land for hospital purposes.

Rep. Richards read the report of the Committee to whom the License Act had been referred.

The committee recommends that the retail tobacco and cigar license be made $10 per annum.

A graded license to sell merchandise is recommended; if the sales are under $20,000, $50 license fee; if over $20,000, $ of one per cent.

That sections 12, 13 and 14 relating to the alcohol license pass as in the bill.

One hundred dollars is the fee

ON THE CRATER'S BRINK.

VOLCANO HOUSE AS A SUMMER
RETREAT AND SANIARIUM.

Good Fare and Airy Chambers—Volcano and Other Scenery—Natural Sulphur Baths.

One of the boasts of the Hawaiian Islands has been the variety of climate within their borders. At the same time one of the greatest deficiencies in the country has been that of accommodation for people at places where the climate affords an agreeable and wholesome change from that of the city. Of late years there has been a considerable improvement in this respect, comfortable country hotels having been opened at various places where the air is beneficial to invalids.

The new Volcano House, on the brink of the crater of Kilauea, Hawaii, is by far the largest and best-equipped of country establishments in the islands. There has been a hotel at this point for a great many years owned and operated by a succession of proprietors. In 1891 a joint stock company acquired the privileges of the site and erected a large and comely structure, preserving the old building, however, as an annex. The hotel as it now stands contains twenty bed chambers, all roomy and the largest 14 feet by 16 feet, besides which there is a neat cottage for families or parties. The bridal chamber, situated in a tower projection, has four windows looking out at different angles, giving the appearance and the benefits of a large bay window. The scenery from all the front chambers includes the crater of Kilauea and the vast dome of Mauna Loa.

On the ground floor are a large reading room and a ladies' parlor, besides a spacious dining room, from the windows of all of which there is an outlook upon the crater. When the volcano is, in one of its active periods, guests can see the fiery ebullitions while seated in any of these rooms. There are three fire-places for use as required in the hotel, the favorite being that in the old house, reached from the main entrance by a veranda. It is around this one that travelers dry and warm themselves after a wet drive or ride, or discuss the wonders they have seen in the crater of Kilauea or that of Mauna Loa. On its mantel front is a realistic painting of Halemaunau in action, with Mauna Loa snow-capped in the distance, by D. Howard Hitchcock, the young Hawaiian artist.

Kitchen, pantry and storeroom are all ample in proportions and convenient. The kitchen is supplied with hot water heated by the sulphur vapor from the bowels of the earth. Hot water for the showers connected with the sulphur baths is provided through the same agency.

The sulphur bath for gentlemen is in a detached house a few steps from the hotel. That for ladies is situated in an annex reached by a veranda at the rear of the hotel communicating by back stairs with the bedrooms in the upper story, so that strict privacy is obtained. Many remarkable cures of rheumatic and other affections, particularly in the case of elderly persons, have been wrought by these naturally medicated baths. From six to eight weeks is a sufficient course for taking the treatment even by confirmed invalids.

Situated about four thousand feet above sea level, the Volcano House has an invigorating climate in the average. The maximum summer temperature is about 85 degrees, and the drop in winter is 15 degrees or so. Cool breezes are enjoyed which sweep down from the upper slopes of Mauna Loa.

No city hotel is kept in better condition. The chambers are always well tended, the bed clothing clean and inviting. The prime meats cooked just right are served at every meal, with a variety of other viands astonishing for a country hotel remote from markets. Indeed, in this as in other respects, the establishment compares favorably with the best hotels of Honolulu without taking any discount for differing circumstances.

A costly and superb piano is provided in the ladies' parlor, and in the annex sitting room—where the popular fire-place is—there is a billiard table adjustable for either caroms or pool. Places of interest within easy walking distance besides the crater are the extinct crater of Kilauea-iki, the constantly accumulating sulphur banks, and a luxuriant grove of tree ferns. There is communication with many parts of the island by telephone, and quite a stream of travel calling at the door to keep human interest alive. The Hawaiian newspapers are all taken, besides many of the leading American papers and magazines. The "Records" of the Volcano House for more than a generation furnish a most agreeable source of information and entertainment. Here are found the autograph impressions of Kilauea and Mauna Loa by a large number of the leading foreign residents of the past and fleeting generation, by the royalties of Hawaii, by people funny and by people who only try to be, by scientific men and men who only look on the surface of things in nature. There are several pages of fine print pasted in, consisting of Mark Twain's newspaper letters on his visit to Hawaii, also an autograph paper on "Dreams" by the same famous humorist. Sketches and plans of the craters there are, plain and colored, in endless number. Indeed, anybody with the time and talent might get up a presentable book out of the material in these old and new records.

From its opening the Volcano House has been under the management of Captain Peter Lee, whom Rev. Dr. Dille has rightly styled a "prince of good fellows." He had previously won a high reputation as a Boniface by the superb house he kept at Punaluu, the landing place in Kau for Volcano passengers. Captain Lee is also blessed by travelers to this world's wonder for having built the carriage road from Pahala above Punaluu to the volcano. Nobody on the islands has exerted himself more or succeeded better in promoting tourist travel thitherward. He is one of those men who places the duties of his position before everything else, whose motto is "Business before pleasure." Captain Lee keeps a sharp eye on every detail of management, and no slipshod work on the part of the hotel retinue can long escape detection and correction. An evidence of his zealous regard for appearances meets the guest before he enters the building, in the form of a beautiful and well-kept garden in front and at one end. It is artistically laid out in beds, annular and angular in shapes with graveled walks between. There are central growths of stately tree ferns, surrounded with healthy rose bushes and many other favorite flowering shrubs and plants. The veranda is bordered with a profuse growth of calla lilies in splendid bloom. Every two weeks Captain Lee has the outer walls of the hotel, both front and rear, washed down to remove the stains caused by the abounding subterranean vapors.

Horses are kept on hand for the use of guests visiting the crater and other points of interest in the neighborhood. There is regular stage communication with Hilo every alternate day each way, with Ned Bogart, an experienced, careful and polite California driver, on the box; also connection with steamers at Punaluu. At the Volcano House one can have quiet and rest, in a most revivifying atmosphere, without being cut off from communication with the outside world. Not only strangers but residents of Honolulu can here find recuperation from the effects of too much confinement or protracted devotion to business. It is just the place, too, for school children enervated by attention to their lessons in the hot and dusty city atmosphere. D. L.
