INHABITED WATER.

A story is told elsewhere of a man who had a lizard in his stomach, the abnormal appetite for food and drink it caused him, and the simple manner in which he got rid of his nasty tenant. Youngsters back east were cautioned against carelessness in drinking from brooks and springs, lest they should swallow a lizard or a certain kind of water bug, either of which accidents would produce a thirst that could not be assuaged. The writer knew the case of a man who had to have a gallon of water by his bedside when he retired, which he drank in the course of his every restless night. Only death at length came to his relief, but, in the absence of a post mortem examination, no light was ever thrown on the cause of his malady. The account of James Densmore's experience with a lizard is not without some probability. It affords good reason, in addition to danger from the microbes of disease, for the boiling and filtering of water for drinking purposes. Visible living creatures, including even fish, are often reported as coming through water taps in city services of the essential element, and one who slakes his thirst without even the precaution of looking in the glass is too careless.

Experienced firemen have for long held that the starting point of a fire, in a partly consumed building, is to be sought at one of the places where the woodwork is least burned. It is not hard to perceive a reason for this theory. A fire does not gain its full consuming fury until it has obtained some headway and been fed with a draught. The initial flame worms its way slowly along a smooth board surface, leaving a charred but unburned track behind it. This theory ought to be remembered in all fire investigations.

Of the making of navigation charts there is no end. When, however, a vessel comes to grief on a sunken reef not down on the chart, it does not follow that the chart-makers were careless. The ocean is very big and some reefs are very small. Then again ships sometimes go where they should not, as was the case with the ill-fated steamer Drummond Castle, sunk with nearly all on board off the coast of France lately.

Mr. Dee's suggestion elsewhere reported, that the firemen's burial lot should be preserved for its original purpose, is one worthy of consideration by all the old line city firemen.

THE FIREMEN'S LOT.

Suggestion That it Should be Preserved by Veteran Officers.

Laurence H. Dee, a veteran of the old Volunteer Fire Department, in conversation with a BULLETIN representative, strongly urged the preservation of the firemen's burial lot in Nuuanu cemetery for the interment of firemen of the past and present. He was warmly in favor of the formation of an association of all surviving officers of the extinct volunteer brigade for the purpose in question. There is a large space yet unoccupied in the firemen's lot. The last interment was that of Jack Warner of No. 1 company two or three years ago.

J. Stokes, of New York City, who is at the head of the Stokes party now in Honolulu, is a member of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, and also an active member of the World's Committee of the same organization. It is partially in the interests of the latter organization that he is making a tour of the world. Mr. Stokes has made work among young men a part of the business of his life, and has devoted his time and means unsparingly to this end.

REFRIGERATING MACHINES AND CREAM SEPARATORS.

Now that the Fourth of July celebration is over and people are settling down to business again, we desire to call the attention of the residents of the Hawaiian Islands to a few matters of interest.

We have lately been appointed sole agents for BARBER'S REFRIGERATING MACHINES.

This machine can readily be arranged in creameries, etc., so as to cool cream, milk and water to any desired temperature down to and below freezing, as also to hold a well-insulated butter-room at any temperature desired above 30 degrees, only requiring the running of the machine from four to six hours per day, which is the usual time that the other machinery in a creamery is operated.

In addition to creameries, these machines are also adapted for use in produce houses, meat markets, hotels, club houses, etc. Their perfect work has been demonstrated fully in the past two years in a large number of creameries in different portions of the East, and more particularly in the Elgin, Ill., district, as well as in butter houses in Chicago, New Orleans, and elsewhere.

The cost of operation is nominal, as the charge of ammonia furnished with the plant should last a year or more without recharging, and will cost only about $15.00.

The DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATORS are now in almost universal creamery or factory use the world over, and in the past few years the Dairy or "Baby" sizes of these machines have almost as completely revolutionized general dairying as had the larger machines previously the creamery industry.

The De Laval Company now presents to the public a smaller type of its latest and most improved "Alpha" machines intended for household and small dairy use, and designed to confer in its new field the same inestimable benefits of centrifugal separation of cream from milk as have the larger machines in their respective spheres.

No more fitting and descriptive term could well be applied to this little machine than the name which has been so aptly given it,—the "Humming-Bird." It is very small, very compact, extremely simple, easily understood and cared for, safe and durable. It possesses every advantage to be found in any of the larger "Alpha" machines, is so extremely easy of operation by reason of its new method of obtaining motion as to be designed mainly for use by women and children, and is absolutely thorough in its effectiveness. It need simply be said that it fulfills every requirement of its purpose.

DECEPTION.

A man who had something to sell and who by honest representation lost the sale, would, according to the deplorable standard of today, lack an essential in the make-up of a salesman.

There is but one sure way to guard against misrepresentation in business: it is to supply an article of such merit that its superior qualities leave nothing to be desired. The truth more adequately describes such an article than a lie could possibly do.

To put inferior goods into the hands of a salesman whose living is contingent on their sale, is to lead that man into temptation. There is but one way to stop the sale of liquor and inferior merchandise, and that is to abolish their manufacture.

W. W. DIMOND'S

With Bryan and his 16 to 1 platform and Mr. McKinley with his protection to sugar interests in the United States, Honolulu and Hawaii generally will not have much trouble to pick a winner to the best interests of the islands. But, as Hawaii is to be a relative by marriage to the great United States, most people here favor McKinley and protection. It has even been said that with the election of McKinley will come a two cents a pound duty on sugar. If this is true, we may look for money to burn in this community.

The chances for another hit toward a higher protective tariff may increase the prices of American products and this is something the public will have to consider. We've a stock large enough to last through an Administration and we bought the goods cheap. Our stock of Aluminum ware has never been equalled here for size or assortment. The price is lower than has ever been thought of before.

We also have enamel ware in white, that is a perfect imitation of white China but is everlasting. Grey [or blue] Agate ware—the old standby—goes to you at ten per cent. off the old price. It was cheap enough for anyone; this is cheaper to us and we give you the benefit.
