DRESSY BODICE FRONTS AND STYLISH NECKWEAR.

Some of the Latest Styles in This Class of Articles, Which Change a Dowdy Gown to a Dressy One—Collar Bands and Ruffs.

One of the difficult problems in dress just now takes the direction of the fronts of bodices and the dressing of the neck to the greatest advantage. In order to do this on a proper basis and as easily as possible is here collected some of the latest styles in this class of articles.

An excellent specimen of an addition to a bodice which can be introduced under the jacket or over a plain fitting waist is a bodice front in lawn and embroidery. The frill on either side is of openwork embroidered lawn. The soft silk in front is covered with the same material, but plain and clear, while round the throat and down the front is some black tulle worked over with colored paillettes. This admits of a great variety as regards materials.

A useful vest front is of lawn of a Holland color over pink silk, with rows of embroidery carried down the front and around the neck and waist.

Decidedly important is a lisse front with a handsome galloon carried down the center and a bow at the throat which is attached to a wide collar band fastened with a brooch. It is astonishing how, by means of these and similar additions, one can transform a dowdy gown into a dressy one. This is also easily done by paying attention simply to the dressing of the neck.

An attractive article of neckwear is a straight collar made in pink lisse, with kilt plaited ends edged with lace, a couple of ornaments crossing in front. A lace and lisse ruff affords another pretty style. It has an upstanding plaited ruche and a frill of lace turning downward, supplemented by a double frill in front, the band kept in place by jeweled ornaments.

Pailletted laces are quite the fashion. The collar bands are getting higher, but are softened by overlapping lace frills at the top, which often form a couple of cascades at the back, consisting of two triple box plaits, while some of these collar bands have kilt plaited ribbon, and large clusters of bows appear in the front or at the back. Other collar bands with lace ends have square battlemented pieces of lace, or ribbon edged with lace, falling over from the top, and satin (especially white satin), lisse and lace are all united. The gauze employed for these little additions is often elaborately embroidered, while the holland colored lawn is worked in white and also has cream lace appliques. Black and white net are liberally employed, and a great many black pailletted fronts and chine ribbon bands have been worn. The blouses, which are fitted like a bodice, with all the care bestowed on a dress, are well worth having.

ALICE VARNUM

An Appropriate Emblem.

The American buffalo exemplifies to the fullest extent the elements of hearty rugged strength in animal life, and the Buffalo Brewery Co. have made a peculiarly appropriate selection of a trademark in choosing this animal to represent its productions, in that the tonic and refreshing properties of the Buffalo Beer promote health and invigorate the system, producing a similar condition of hardy strength in the human frame. The Royal, Cosmopolitan and Pacific saloons are the media of distribution for this famous brew to an appreciative public, and the interchangeable check is the passport at any of these favorite resorts. Drink "Buffalo" only.
