THE PEACEMAKER'S TALE.

He Was Doing His Best, but Was In the Midst of the Row.

He had been down the week before to tell his lawyer about a neighborhood war. The families on either side of him were fighting each other, and during active hostilities the atmosphere of his back yard was filled with flying missiles, endangering the lives, limbs and comfort of his own family, though they observed a strict neutrality. The lawyer advised the arrest of the offending parties, but his client did not wish to place himself between the upper and nether millstones, and it was decided to try diplomacy. Now he had come to report.

"I guess things is shaping all right, but this here thing of being a diplomat is mighty tough work. First I writ both of 'em a state paper profferin my good offices to mediate between them, just as you told me. Robbins wrote back as he was agreeable, but Tompkins kicked my special envoy half way 'cross the street and told him to communicate to me that any further interference would be treated as a violation of internecine law. I come pretty near issuing a war proclamation at this pint, but you told me fur to stick to diplomacy."

"What next?" "I recognized them both as belligerents at one and the same time. Robbins sent a special message of thanks, but Tompkins insisted that he had been a belligerent all the time. My next move was fur to request that they submit their differences to a board of arbitration. Robbins was willin' ag'in, but Tompkins balked. Then I swung my ultimatum on 'em. I worked hard on the document, telling about humanity, Christianity, civilization and reform and how my own family had been battered up with old boots, clubs, potatoes and broken crockery, though said family was at peace with both combatants. Then I give 'em a week fur to fight to a finish or settle terms of peace. In case of failure to comply I would call in the police. Both has agreed to wind up the war within the specified time. Tompkins says if he can't subjugate Robbins in a week the campaign might as well be brought to an end. I've boarded up my back winders and will do my observin' through a port hole." - Detroit Free Press.

A Story With a Moral. CHAPTER I.

She was a woman whose age might safely be pronounced "uncertain," and as she stood at the counter figuring a half dozen pieces of dress goods by turn it was evident that she was in the throes of uncertainty concerning some question of becomingness or what not.

"Is it for yourself or a young lady?" asked Roggs, the clerk, desiring to facilitate the sale.

The lady's hands dropped to her side, and as in a moment she walked away with a curt "Sorry to have troubled you," Roggs was left to ruminate on the instability of the feminine mind as he waited for another customer.

CHAPTER II.

Once more there was a woman of uncertain antiquity at a dress goods counter. It was a virtual repetition of the scene in the last chapter, except that this time the salesman and nattily dressed Roggs was the salesman.

"Is the dress for yourself or an old lady?" asked Mr. Roggs, with innocent urbanity, and directly the young man might have been seen dexterously handling the yard measure.

CHAPTER III.

Our two heroes are now middle aged. Roggs is a partner in the great firm in which he once held a humble clerkship. He dines on terrapin and quail on toast, while Roggs, in a shiny backed coat and shabby shoes, walks the streets, wondering why he never had any luck. - New York Sun.

To My Patrons:

It gives me much pleasure to announce that MR. M. R. COUNTER, one of the most skilled watchmakers ever in these islands, is now managing my repairing department. No watch is so complex in its mechanism but we can give perfect satisfaction in correcting the evils to which watches are heir. Watches are delicate things to handle. We guarantee that they will receive no injury at our hands and will leave our store in perfect repair.

Respectfully, E. A. JACOBSON, 507 Fort Street.
