We trust that none of the officials who visit the other islands are bent on political missions.

The Chief Emperor may be dead but his spook is as lively as the American Union party corpse that haunts the Advertiser.

The people as well as the steamship companies will be happy when the irregularities due to transport service are at an end.

According to Japan advice President McKinley contemplates giving the American people a Luzon turkey for their Thanksgiving dinner.

When the Congressmen begin to gather at Washington next December the official organ will be requested to discuss the neutrality proposition again.

The BULLETIN offers congratulations to its contemporaries that announce their remarkable progress in their statement of the case reminds one of Blaine's political insinuation to "claim everything."

What the Minister Damon is right or wrong on the saloon question, it is certainly refreshing to have one member of the Cabinet come out with a footed honest declaration of the whys and wherefores of his action. It is the kind of argument that satisfies the people though many may not agree with the final conclusion drawn.

Consul Vossion's remarks on the Lafayette fund are timely and in the case at hand will doubtless carry more weight than the request of a government department. Give the children time to learn who Lafayette is, the principles he fought for before asking the children to contribute pennies. The organization that might well contribute is the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

When the American flag goes up over Hawaiian schools it is to be hoped that the teachers will seek to instill into the minds of the pupils to broad principles which that flag represents. In fact not a few of the older generations might take lessons in these principles to advantage. A peculiar condition of the present situation is that since the flag went up, many of the leaders who sought annexation have drawn themselves into the provincial shells, instead of broadening and facing the proposition on the widening lines that are spread before them, and must be followed sooner or later whether the former leaders like it or not. It may be that the situation will continue to be "held down" but it will not be for long. It is only a question whether the people will accept the situation or will wait for the spirit of trans-Americanism to be forced upon them.

The former royalists are by no means the only ones who do not fully realize that the country is annexed. When representative local pleaders for the retention of cabinet advisers in territorial management there must be something wrong in the character of American sentiment here even in the upper circles. The country needs an instillation of the American principle that a person should stand in public and private life upon his own individual capacity. Strength should be gauged by individual character rather than the power gained by leaning on others.

WAR OF ROSSSES. With Theodore Roosevelt a candidate for governor, the campaign in New York state this fall will be one of the prettiest political fights ever fought. It probably has as many serious political complications as have ever been faced in that State.

In the first place Roosevelt is not popular with Platt. The colonel was practically forced on the capable manager, by Alger on one side and Black on the other. Alger desired to quiet Roosevelt's possible attack on the war department and Platt unquestionably sought to punish Black for having the temerity to organize an opposition machine. In the Greater New York campaign, Platt, seeing that he could not come to terms with the Citizens Union, practically turned the city over to the Democrats. In return for this it was supposed that Croker and Murphy would lay low in the State campaign which is now on.

The question now is whether the Democrats are willing to accept a defeat in the State with Roosevelt as the man at the head. Croker has returned from his European tour which means that Croker is in the fight. This leader has a convenient way of taking a vacation when he has little anxiety as to the success of his party. He isn't taking a vacation this season. Senator Murphy is out for return to the Senate, and while he might be willing to have Platt name his successor, it is doubtful whether he is anxious to swallow a Roosevelt political pill. The chances are that the New York campaign will resolve itself into "anything to beat Roosevelt" and much depends upon the activity of Platt and Black whether the popular colonel sails into office or is led, as Platt and Quay led Blaine, to the slaughter.

The proposition to raise the American flag over the school houses will bring up a question of authority.

Steamship Amalgamation.

As the result of a meeting of the shareholders in Yokohama of the Oriental Steamship Company, who insist upon the dissolution of the company, Mr. Matsunaga and two other representatives proceeded to the company's offices on September 26 and preferred the following demands to the president:

- 1. That the company shall be amalgamated with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha; otherwise it shall be dissolved.
2. That a reply shall be given before Oct. 11, on the receipt of which the instalments due on the price of shares shall be paid before the 20th of the same month.
3. That if the Directors insist upon continuing the work of the company, they shall guarantee the profit which they think possible.—Japan Mail.
