SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1899.

Aguainaldo Atkinson says that he has been slandered. The usual cry of the nation's traitors.

As the fall campaign in the Philippines opens out, it becomes apparent that the war is soon to dwindle to an organized game of hide and seek.

Not the least interesting feature to observers of international affairs will be to note how long Emperor William can keep good friends with everybody.

Taylor has unquestionably been elected Governor of Kentucky, but Goebel has another show for the governorship when his friends count the votes.

Aside from the favorable bearing the recent elections have upon the policy of President McKinley, they have also served a good purpose in relegating two notable corruptionists to the back ground. Both McLean of Ohio and Goebel of Kentucky stand for the worst element in American politics and the Democratic party. Though Bryan's principles are principles of calamity, he is a man whose personal character cannot be questioned. Both McLean and Goebel threatened Bryan's ascendancy in his party and though the three will doubtless train together in the national campaign, the nation can congratulate itself that the personality of the leader is above reproach.

HAWAII A BIG BUYER.

The advance sheet of the United States Consular report of Nov. 1 publishes a report from Special Agent Sewall in which the imports to Hawaii for the first nine months of 1898 and '99 are compared. This statement shows that for the first nine months of 1898, our imports from the United States, based on custom house values, was over 200 percent larger than imports from all other countries. During the same period in 1899, Hawaii imported nearly 400 percent more from the United States than from all other countries. The total imports for nine months of 1899 were $13,667,374.60 as against $7,360,580.56 for the same period in '98, an increase of over $6,000,000. The statement also shows that during the nine months of '99 ending with September, Hawaii's imports were $2,016,481.79 greater than the total for the twelve months of the previous year.

These figures should demonstrate to the people of the mainland that the annexation of Hawaii was by no means a bad financial measure. The day is not far distant when the increased purchases of Hawaii from the mainland will more than repay the $4,000,000 of Hawaiian debts assumed by the United States.

Furthermore this showing must indicate to the manufacturers of the United States, that any colonial scheme, with a special tariff schedule, will simply result in the United States getting the short end of the bargain. With a countervailing duty on its principal products, Hawaii would not be able to make purchases in American markets to the amount of thirteen millions of dollars in nine months.

FACTS ABOUT THE SURPLUS.

Anticipation that Mr. Lansing as Minister of Finance would dispose of the surplus in order to show his contempt for the Government is a view of the situation that is entirely new.

Up to the present time at least, the public has been unanimous—as nearly unanimous as the public can be—as asserting that the condition of the financial market, as well as the necessity for progress in public works, demanded a more liberal policy in putting into circulation the large amount of coin lying idle in the government treasury. Members of the Cabinet were not and are not, unless there has been a sudden change of front, unanimously opposed to placing these funds in circulation. Minister Cooper has gone so far as to state that there is legal authority for placing a portion of the surplus at the disposal of the banks. It was only a short time ago that Minister Damon and presumably Minister King were the only members of the Executive opposed to inaugurating a more liberal financial policy. The surplus was the indirect result of Mr. Damon's remark to Mr. Dole, "Who keeps Mr. Rowell in office Mr. Dole, but yourself."

The majority of the bankers and the public are not disposed to accept the proposition to deposit the surplus with the banks. The people however do favor and demand that every dollar of the appropriations authorized by the Legislature for public works shall be expended. This demand is not drastic, nor does it infer criticism of the Government, except as the officials assume a lackadaizical attitude in securing its fulfillment.

The marked industrial progress of the country since annexation has not only increased the call for activity in forwarding public works. It has taxed every administrative department of the government to the utmost. What was desirable yesterday is today an absolute necessity. The educational department not only finds itself short of funds, but retrenching when the situation calls for expansion. School-rooms in Honolulu are crowded to the limit. Temporary desks crowd the rooms, and children have been turned away for want of accommodations. The number of teachers and accommodation for pupils cannot be increased because of lack of funds, and yet the public treasury contains a two million dollar surplus. The Attorney General's department is quite as seriously hedged in by the same lack of funds.

With the condition in the educational department such that it has become an object lesson in every home where there are school children, the people have yet to become convinced that the Council of State has not authority to make appropriations to relieve the departments of embarrassment and assist them to keep in line with the new progressive step.

If the constitution of the Republic gives the Council of State authority to appropriate money for a trip to Washington of the President, the constitution should not at this time be interpreted with less liberality when a matter of quite as much importance as an official trip receives consideration.

Whatever opposition there may be to the Executive calling upon the Council of State to render assistance in the present financial straits, that opposition does not come from the people.
