How Matters Stand In POLITICS And What is Being Done

It was stated in yesterday's Bulletin that there would be a hearing of the respective claims of the Republican and Home Rule parties in the matter of August Dreier before Acting Governor Cooper in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. This was the intention but something came in to prevent the carrying out of the program according to arrangements.

Home Rulers Decline.

When the petition of W. W. Harris had been filed in the forenoon Mr. Cooper sent a request to the opposite side to have a representative present at the hearing which had been set for the afternoon. Not long afterwards, there was a conference of the Home Rule party managers and it was decided to have a communication to this effect was sent to Mr. Cooper and so when the time came, Mr. Robertson, representing the interests of the Republican party, was the only one present. He made a statement of the claims of the Republican party in the premises and then after a short conference, Mr. Cooper decided that he could find no reason for changing his mind with reference to allowing the name of August Dreier to appear on the ballots.

This finished the matter so far as the Acting Governor was concerned, later on it was agreed that the Supreme Court should be appealed to. Attorney Robertson went over to the Judiciary building and there, after quite a long conference, succeeded in getting the permission of the Supreme Court to hear the case of W. W. Harris vs. Henry E. Cooper today. Justice Galbraith dissenting on the ground that the calendar was already full and that there was business of much greater importance to attend to.

Fourth District Committee.

In the evening, there was a short meeting of the Fourth District Committee in headquarters for the purpose of attending to any matters which might come up in connection with the work of the campaign. During that meeting, the most important matter discussed was the refusal on the part of C. M. Cooke to put up a cent towards the expenses of the campaign.

The report was made by Andrew Brown who stated that he had been to see Mr. Cooke at his office. He was told that it was generally known he had given permission to W. W. Harris to run as candidate for the Republican party in the Fourth District and that as such action on the part of Mr. Harris was with his sanction, the party thought that he ought to be willing to put up some money toward defraying the expenses of the campaign. Not much would be needed but what was needed would be absolutely necessary.

"Not a Cent," Says Cooke.

Mr. Cooke replied that he had given permission to Mr. Harris to run on the assurance from him that such action would not interfere with his business in the firm of Lowers & Cooke. However, he had never seen the use of putting up a candidate for the special election and he would not put up a cent of money. It would be a different matter when the general election was on.

The committee did not say very much about this refusal on the part of Mr. Cooke. It was the intention of the committee on finance to get Mr. Cooke to head the list of subscribers to the campaign fund but since he had refused to do so some other arrangement would have to be made. It was suggested that the younger members of the party in the Fourth District be seen and asked to contribute what they felt they could toward the fund. It is thought that by adopting this plan enough money can be secured to run the campaign.

There was naturally a feeling of irritation on the part of members of the committee present. The report of Mr. Brown was accepted.

After the adjournment of the meeting the members went to the meetings in Kakaako and Waikiki to listen to the excellent speeches made by the various men who had been called on to say a few words.

First Precinct Meetings.

The precinct meetings were not held until after 8 o'clock. The one at Kakaako was very well attended and was by far the more enthusiastic. The chairman was Enoch Johnson and he presided well. The first speaker was William Olepau, the native who made such a telling address at the last mass meeting of the Republicans in the drill shed and who is doing such good work among the men of the wharves for the good of the Republican party.

Olepau of the Wharves.

The speaker told why he had become a Republican and touched briefly on some of the shortcomings of the Home Rule party. He said that he felt convinced that all those who desired to work for the good of the Territory should be enlisted in the ranks of the Republican party. The day would come when Hawaii would be working for statehood and at that time it would be seen that in order to secure this much wished for consummation it would be necessary to belong to a party which had invariably worked for the good of the nation.

The speaker said he had been with Wilcox through three revolutions and had been a staunch Aloha Alms member. That was all past and gone and Hawaii had come under the jurisdiction of the United States. This being the fact the natives should enroll their names on the lists of an American party and work under such a party for the good they hoped to attain. Naturally he was a lover of his flag. What native would not be. However, times had changed and in order to do anything toward the political welfare of the country it would be necessary to work for the party of progress—the Republican party.

Aylett Says Why.

The next speaker was Representative Aylett who took as his principal theme the ineligibility of August Dreier as a candidate on the side of the Home Rule and Democratic parties. He stated that W. W. Harris, the young man who is running as a candidate on the Republican side, was a qualified voter and a resident of the Fourth District in which he voted at the last general election and in which he would vote at the coming special election.

On the other hand, Mr. Dreier, the opposing candidate, was not a qualified voter and should not, according to the law, be allowed to vote or to run as a candidate. Mr. Dreier was a good man but voters should remember that it would be a very bad thing to vote for a man who is not qualified to become a legislator of the Territory at this particular time. Voting for Mr. Dreier would mean to throw away a ballot. Every man expected when he dropped his ballot into the box that it would result in something. If this was what was desired it would be best for everybody to vote for Mr. Harris.

Paulo, Former Home Ruler.

The next speaker on the list was Paulo Hokii and at his appearance there was a storm of applause for Paulo was not long since a staunch member of the Home Rule party and one of the members of the executive committee of that party. He had always been one of the best workers among the natives and was most active at the last general election. His appearance on the Republican side was therefore taken as a great victory by the members of that party present.

The speaker did not spare the party to which he had formerly belonged. He called on all Hawaiians who were loyal to the interests of their country to array themselves on the side of the party of progress. He dwelt particularly on the fact that when Wilcox returned from Washington some time ago and saw how things were going there he had the Home Rulers tack on the end of their name the word Republican for the sole purpose of getting into line with the party dominant in politics on the Mainland. He said that if this was the proper thing to do, and he had no doubt for a single minute that it was, why would it not be the best thing to come out unequivocally for the Republican party. That would be the most sensible thing to do.

Paulo said further that the men who represented the best interests of the country and the men of substance were nearly all on the Republican side. This certainly showed something. It showed that their good judgment had dictated that way.

By way of concluding his remarks Paulo said that everyone knew that August Dreier was an old humbug. He could neither read nor write, and it would be a great mistake for people to vote for him.

Referring to the last Legislature, Paulo said that all the bills of any value were presented by the Republicans and that the Home Rulers, being in the majority, had killed them, thereby preventing good legislation.

Out at Waikiki.

The meeting at Waikiki was held opposite the Moana Hotel at Waikiki, where Manager Allen had kindly erected a platform and set chairs and a table upon it for the benefit of the speakers. The meeting was not as well attended as it was thought it would be, this on account of the fact that the messengers who took out the notices of the meeting were impeded in their progress through the precinct by the mud and rain, and the notices were not received at the various homes in time for the people to make their arrangements to turn out.

Kaneakua on Party.

J. M. Kaneakua was the chairman of the meeting. He made a brief address on the candidacy of W. W. Harris and referred to the Republican party as the one which stood foremost for good government. The platform of the party was broad and it contained a plank which provides for the equality of all men. In concluding his remarks Mr. Kaneakua said that the last Legislature had done very little of value and that the Home Rulers were in the majority. The next speaker was Dan Keakaha, who made a long speech on the principles of Republicanism. He called special attention to the failure of the last Legislature to pass any bills of value to the Territory.

Would Stay in Ranks.

Senator W. C. Achi thanked the people for voting for him at the last election and said he hoped he would stay in the ranks. He said that in motto of the Home Rulers was "Hail to the Hawaiians" but in this case, while the voice was that of Jacob, the hands were those of Esau. Continuing, Mr. Achi said that the Republican candidate was a Hawaiian, while the candidate of the Home Rulers was a foreigner. Representative Kumalae and Ed Towe both made very telling speeches showing why the people should vote the Republican ticket and support Harris instead of voting the Home Rule ticket and supporting Mr. Dreier.

Harris Speaks.

When Candidate Harris made his appearance on the scene there was great applause. He said in prefacing his remarks that the Republican party stood for good government and for the full franchise of the natives. Continuing he said:

"In upholding the rights and privileges of the voters, you too must remember that you have a duty to perform. It is to vote upon election day, and to vote the Republican ticket. If you want good government and just laws. At the last Legislature, the Home Rulers did not pass a law which was for the benefit of the Territory. That party held up the loan bill and it is due to that fact that we now have a financial stringency. This condition keeps away capital and the unrest means that many men with money will not invest here, which keeps money from going into the pockets of the laborers for their work."

After his speech at Waikiki Mr. Harris went down to Kakaako, where he made a few remarks of the same nature.
