RICE MILL STARTS UP

FIRST ACTUAL WORK TO BEGIN THIS AFTERNOON

Past Week Spent in Getting Machinery Into Shape--Accident to Mr. Wood of von Ham-Young Co.

The new Japanese rice mill in Pa-wan will start actual work this afternoon. While the mill has been working a few hours nearly every day during the past week this has been done to test the machinery and to ascertain where alterations were needed. Hawaiian paddy has been used for this test work.

There is a large amount of belting used in the mill, probably more than in any other similar concern here, and the tightening of these belts has taken considerable time. There are some 24-inch belts in the mill which it takes one hour to stretch and another hour to lace.

While most of the tightening has been done during the past week there will probably be more or less of this done during the first three or four weeks after the mill begins running. After all the belts have once been sufficiently stretched and tightened, they are expected to last for about four years without any further attention.

Some of the elevators in the mill have also been altered in various ways. On Saturday while the mill was running, Mr. Wood of Von Ham-Young Co., who has superintended the putting up of the mill, got his hand hurt in one of these elevators. He happened to get his hand into the machinery connected with it and had the skin and some of the flesh on the back of his right hand torn off, making a very painful wound. Mr. Wood considers himself exceedingly lucky that he did not lose his whole hand, a thing which might very easily have happened under the circumstances.

This forenoon, a quantity of Japanese brown rice was taken up to the mill where it will go through the milling, cleaning and polishing processes this afternoon. This will make the beginning of the actual work of the mill which is expected by the Japanese residents of this city to solve the problem of furnishing the local Japanese with the rice from their homeland which they prefer to the product of the Hawaiian soil and which the bulk of this population is now able to purchase on account of the higher rates of wages which prevail at present.

SHORT CUT TO AND FROM BUSY DOCKS

factorily arranged, however, and the new thoroughfare will be in commission early in July.

Improvements are constantly going on in Honolulu harbor. The harbor is growing at both ends. The railway people are always at work and the railway wharves are really the most busy in the harbor.

There was a time, not many months ago, when all activity ended at the Pacific Mail wharf at the Waikiki end, and at the old fishmarket wharf at the Ewa end. Now, at the Waikiki end, there are the magnificent Navy wharves and the expensive channel wharf, and the Bishop Estate is constructing another immense wharf. Before long, say the waterfront prophets, there will be ships loading and discharging "at the end of the sea wall." Now, at the Ewa end of the harbor, long wharves, holding large sheds, are doing a great business and the bulk of the shipping congregates at that end of the front.

There has been an impression that the new Hackfeld wharf would be used for docking the new boats of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and that the Korea would dock there on her arrival. This is a mistake. Hackfeld's new wharf is to be reserved for the sailing vessels of the Hackfeld fleet and other sailing vessels, of course, that want to be accommodated. The new Pacific Mail boats, however will be docked at the Pacific Mail wharf.

On the completion of the bridge connecting all wharves at the Ewa end of the harbor with Queen and King streets, a most convenient and direct method of communication with some of the most important wharves in the harbor will be established and a considerable saving in time, money and energy will be enjoyed by all concerned.

In order to arrange for this improvement it was necessary for the American-Hawaiian steamship people, the railway company, Hackfeld & Co. and the Public Works Department to come to an understanding. This, at times did not seem to be possible, but all obstacles have been overcome. It is said, and the work of constructing the bridge will be immediately proceeded with.

The managerial and engineering staffs of the Hawaiian Electric Company are subjected to foul odors from an old storm water sewer in Halekuanui street. Some time ago the road department undertook to replace a rotten box sewer with concrete construction, but in doing the work left a cavity that catches decayed matter. Though occasionally flushed, this sewer is a nuisance most of the time.

POLICE ARE TO DRILL

There is to be a little excitement in town Saturday morning. The police, both foot and mounted, headed by High Sheriff Brown and Deputy Sheriff of Hillingworth, are to march through the streets to the Makiki recreation park, there to indulge in drill and practice before Governor Cooper, who is anxious to see what the guardians of the peace of the city can do in the matter of maneuvers.

The drill and practice comes as a special request from Mr. Cooper himself, who, having inspected the men on Saturday last, expressed the desire to see them in the field. High Sheriff Brown was much pleased with this, as it showed him the interest Mr. Cooper takes in the various branches of the government.

The men will start from the police station promptly at 10 o'clock, headed by the band the services of which Governor Cooper has kindly allowed for the occasion. The march will likely be out King street to Piikoi and thence to the grounds. The whole forenoon will be spent in the work.

OLD LANDMARK GOING.

The old wooden store building at King and Alakea streets, belonging to the Kapiolani Estate, is being demolished to make way for a modern block. There is a lot of history connected with the shack, including an abortive suit for $20,000 damages brought by a Chinese tenant against John F. Colburn on the ground of unlawful ejection. Some years ago the place was occupied by the Louvre of Brussels, a dry goods store kept by Mr. Michiels, one of the greatest living cornet players, holding, as he did, a gold medal presented by the King of Belgium. He occasionally contributed to charity concerts in the Hawaiian Opera House.
