MISS HUNTINGTON RETURNING HOME

Walluku, June 6.—The grand luau last Thursday afternoon, June 4th, given at Alexander hall, for the benefit of the Kihifergarten, was a very successful affair and the ladies in charge—the Misses Mary Huntington and Gay—kindly assisted by a dozen of other Walluku ladies, are quite satisfied at the outcome, especially from a financial standpoint. A number of Lahaina-luna boys were on hand assisting the ladies as waiters and ushers, and during the luau the boys favored the guests with delightful native melodies in harmony with the occasion. The many friends of Miss Huntington are very sorry indeed to hear of her intended departure for her home in Cincinnati, Ohio, for during her stay here of nearly three years, she has endeared herself to everybody, the parents of children in particular, not only with her winning smile and happy disposition, but by her real work as one who enters into her work with a true Christian spirit, discharging her duties with kindness wherever she goes and among whomsoever she meets, irrespective of station, "race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Miss Huntington will visit Kilauea before leaving Hawaii.

TREASURER NEEDS MONEY.

Arrangements have been made with the banks by Treasurer Kepoikai, under provision of Chapter 49, Laws of 1898, to accept Government overdrafts to the amount of $150,000, the limit of the law, being repayable by the Treasurer on his tender thereof. Interest allowed by law must not exceed six per cent. One bank offered to take the entire loan, but the Treasurer decided it to be best to allot the amount pro rata, takers being Bishop & Co., Claus Spreckels & Co., Bank of Hawaii and First National Bank, each giving the Government a credit of $37,500. The Treasurer, needing more money, will avail himself of the benefits under Chapter 52, Laws of 1897, authorizing the issue of Treasury notes. Tenders will be invited, to close June 30, for an issue of $150,000 of Treasury notes.

FIRST CRICKET GAME

SEASON BEGINS ON THE MAKIKI GROUNDS

HUMMING BALLS AGAIN GLAD DEN HEARTS OF SPORTSMEN. A TOAST TO ABSENT ONES.

The Honolulu Cricket Club started the season last Saturday afternoon with a game played on the old Makiki grounds between the Captain's and the Vice-Captain's teams. Among the players who took part in the game were quite a number of strangers. Among them S. Mortimer, first officer of the steamship Aorangi, which was very lucky in port at the time of the game, showed himself to fine advantage with a score of 86 runs, the highest number of the day. Miles made nine runs and was bowled by the veteran Jordan. "Bob" Anderson swelled the team's score with half a century, whereupon the captain's team retired, Anderson and Mortimer being not out. Their score was 156. The vice-captain's team did not do much, R. A. Jordan making the highest score, 23. The rest knocked down small scores and ducks were plentiful. The total amounted to 69. The cricketers who came on the field Saturday had a kick to register against those slack bodies who promised to come out to play and then failed to turn up. Some of these gentlemen had even signed their names on the

DANCING AND RAGING

HAWAII YACHT CLUB "DOES ITSELF PROUD"

MERRY TIME AT THE PENINSULA. NEW PAVILION LOOKS OUT UPON THE PEARL LOCHS.

In its new pavilion at the tip of the Peninsula, the Hawaii Yacht Club entertained in most delightful style Saturday evening. The initial event of its kind for the club, nothing was left undone that should have been done for the pleasure and happy surprise of the merry throng who attended. The pavilion had never before been used and was heavily decorated with flags, presenting a striking appearance. The night was perfect for dancing and enjoyment generally. A special train leaving the city at 8 o'clock carried folks to the scene of the pastime. Arrived at the water's edge the crowd found the yachts of the fleet brilliantly illuminated. The pavilion was gorgeous in a covering of color. Signal flags of the yachts decorated the ceiling, the central position being occupied by the club's pennant. Gaily lighted, the scene was an emerald patch of merriment on the night. Yacht La Paloma was undoubtedly the main attraction. She is the fleet's flagship. Her rail was outlined by colored lights. Astern of the flagship lay the vessel of the Elks, shining with Japanese lanterns. Open house was kept aboard The Ark which blazed with little prisoned flames. During the evening there were launch parties on the lochs and those who so desired were thus enabled to enjoy the illuminated view, reflected, from the boats. Nearly all danced and every one declared the evening an accomplishment, something to remember. Commodore Macfarlane and other officers of the club were the hosts. Morning came breezy and bright after the evening of jollity at the water's edge. A fine day for the races of the Hawaii Yacht Club. In her class the Myrtle won gracefully. La Paloma took the first class contest. George Turner started the boats and all managed to get a fair break. With La Paloma, the Gladys, Helene and Mary L. went over the course. When the Commodore's boat came home she had minutes to the good. Malihini and Princess came in second and third respectively in the race with Myrtle. The others were badly beaten. The winners secure cups for the victory. Another fight between these two men would be very interesting indeed and one which would pack the Orpheum to the doors. The sporting fraternity of this place as in any other, likes to see a clean, plucky fight with plenty of science. A word, too, as to the trainer of Huihui, Jimmy Fox. There is no question that this man is one of the cleverest trainers that has set foot on the beach of Honolulu and his points showed in the fighting of Huihui Saturday night. Mr. Fox is very anxious for another contest with Latham before any bout is arranged with Delye, the Camp McKinley man who challenged Huihui after the fight with Latham. The principal event of the evening was pulled off a little after 10 o'clock and it lasted in the neighborhood of two minutes. It was seen in the very beginning that Mattox could not stand up against Millet for very long. The fight began with Mattox dancing around the ring and Millet following him, waiting for the time when the other man would attempt to stand and deliver. He found that it was not probable he would ever do other than feel at a distance, so he went up to the man, gave him a couple of swinging blows and it was all over. The last blow was delivered with Mattox holding his head up to be hit. Taken as a whole, the evening was brimful of excitement, and Mr. Cohen deserves great credit for arranging such good bouts, considering the scarcity of material in the city. Jess Woods, the referee, showed himself to be fully capable of handling men in the ring. Although every fight was "break clean," making it necessary for him to lead a very strenuous life during the evening, he did the work as well as the finish as at the start and was as fresh as Millet when the entertainment was over. His decisions, too, were invariably popular with the crowd.

HUIHUI WAS A SURPRISE

There was a full house at the Orpheum Saturday night to witness the fight between Millet and Mattox and the four preliminaries which had been arranged by Manager Joe Cohen. The principal event of the evening was disappointing but the outcome is such as may be expected at any time in any place and between any fighters who are matched for a fight. No one can tell previous to the fight just what is going to take place. Millet is a new man here and the fight at the Chinese theatre a few weeks ago was no criterion by which to judge of the prowess of the newcomer so that it could not be told what his chance with Mattox would be on Saturday night. However, it is safe to say now that there are probably none in Honolulu, unless it be Jack Weday, who are in the same class with the slugger from the Olympic Club of Frisco. The first of the preliminaries was between Ernest Heine and Frank Van Giesen, two boys who showed from the start that they meant business. Heine is the smaller lad of the two and does not possess the muscle of his opponent. However, he stuck to his man and after four rounds of the best fighting seen in Honolulu between boys, succeeded in securing the decision, much to the satisfaction of the crowd. Heine showed up a little weak in the first two rounds since his opponent got in a number of body blows that winded him a bit. However, he came up smiling in the third round and picked up all he had lost in the beginning. Van Giesen was considerably worn out when the fight was declared at an end by the striking of the bell. The second of the preliminaries was between Vierra, a Portuguese, and Anderson, another local fighter. The latter was the heavier man and the more muscular and it is safe to say that had he landed on Vierra, the Portuguese, he would have gone down in a lump. However, Vierra was not to be caught napping and neatly ducked every time the sledge hammer blows came his way. He was never there when wanted and showed the quickness of a cat, thus wearing out his opponent so that in the third round he had him going, the soldier breathing heavily with his mouth open. Whether or no there had been an agreement between the two men previous to the fight that there should be no knock-out will perhaps never come to light but certain it is that when Vierra could easily have taken things into his own hands and sent his man through the ropes, he stood away and let Anderson come at him. There is one fault about Vierra which he will have to correct if he is ever to become a favorite with the sporting fraternity. He must stop looking at the crowd for approbation whenever he makes a clever move or whenever someone shouts something at him. Had there been a quicker man in the ring against him Saturday night, he would have received one or two stunners while he was looking around the ring in search of the voice that was encouraging him to great and daring deeds. The decision went to Vierra by the vote of the referee and the crowd. Kaminsky of Camp McKinley and Ulysses Harris, the colored pugilist, were the next to take the center of the ring. Both men will have to get in and do some training before they attempt to go before the public again. They became winded in the second round and the consequence was that one stood off looking at the other and waiting for him to begin so that Jess Woods, the referee, called out to the audience: "Gentlemen, if these men do not fight, I will disqualify both of them." He received the applause of the sporting fraternity for this declaration. A little later, he admonished the fighters that they would have to get in and drill or he would carry out his threat. Harris thereupon turned toward his corner and attempted to throw off his gloves, but went back again and resumed the fight. At the end of the fourth round, the referee threw up his hands to tell the crowd that there was no decision. The fourth and last preliminary, between Soldier Latham, who has become a favorite of the ring, and Huihui, a native Hawaiian pugilist, was the best of the evening, in that it was a case of clean and determined fighting from the very beginning. The first round ended in no particular advantage for either of the two men. In the second, the native began an aggressive campaign, blocking some very swift upper cuts and hooks. The native was cut about the face in the region of the right eye and cheek but this only served to put more determination into him. He kept coming back for more and insisted on close quarters. His dint of some of the swiftest hand and foot work that has been seen in the ring here, he finally succeeded in getting the advantage of his opponent. He had stacks of wind left, while Latham seemed to be tiring visibly. He began on his man with a couple of hard punches full in the face, which jerked his head back and put on the finishing touches. In less time than it takes to tell, the native had his man up in the corner and was raining lightning punches at will. Latham went to his knees but was up again before the end of the count. Another swift one and he went down again. Previous to the last two counts, the bell counted but the referee, owing to the shouting and excitement among the audience, did not hear the tap and counted Latham out. The soldier immediately left the ring. Indeed, it is well that he did for he was beaten and could not have taken the fourth round. Notwithstanding the fact that Latham was beaten fairly, a word must be said in his favor. He showed the grit he has always shown on going into the ring, and he fought with true determination. Although it was not generally known, the soldier was suffering from an ulcerated tooth that was giving him great pain the whole time he was fighting. When Huihui landed on the sore side of his face once or twice, he was seen to wince, but not once to relax his vigilance. With this explanation, the public will perhaps understand why it was that the soldier did
