NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

Atcherley Quizzes Insanity Experts

The session of the Dr. Atcherley hearing yesterday afternoon was occupied entirely by the examination of medical witnesses, with the exception of short statements made by Officers Kalakiele and Luahiwa.

In his cross-examination of the medical experts Dr. Atcherley showed himself to advantage, though he insisted on coming back always to the great leprosy-cure secret, which has been the cause of his undoing. Magoon asked Emerson if the facts of the case would justify the sending of Dr. Atcherley to the Insane Asylum under all the circumstances.

"I think he should be committed to the Insane Asylum or be charged with a criminal offense," answered Emerson.

"I think he should be committed to the Insane Asylum," he added. "It would be wrong to charge him with an offense."

"Do you think that when T. Milner Harrison went out to Kalaiki and made some trouble in a native house that he should be committed to the Insane Asylum?" asked Magoon.

"He went to the asylum," broke in Cathcart, and the Harrison comparison was left out.

"Do you think Dr. Atcherley would be likely to commit acts of violence?" asked Magoon.

"It is possible," answered Emerson. "He would be quite likely to. He labored under the delusion that Dr. Wayson was his enemy, and that he could take extreme measures against him."

"Atcherley said Dr. Wayson stole his remedy and was using it," said Emerson in answer to a question as to what Atcherley had told him. "He cited instances of actions of the Board of Health. He felt that Wayson was his enemy. He always spoke in a polite way. Wayson, he said, was always rapping about his house at night."

"What are Dr. Atcherley's delusions?" asked Magoon.

"Well," answered Emerson, "I don't believe Dr. Wayson stole his remedy."

"Well, I do!" thundered Magoon. "You believe Wayson stole it?" cut in Cathcart.

"Well, I think he has it," retorted Magoon. "He may not have stolen it, but he has the remedy."

"I expect you think Atcherley heard voices from the sewer, too?" asked Cathcart.

At this point Dr. Atcherley cut in with technical questions relating to various phases of insanity, which brought about the impression that the patient was better founded in the science than the expert.

"Ah, you are not very familiar with the subject," said Atcherley finally, very politely.

"I certainly am," retorted Emerson, hotly.

"Well, give us the causation of paranoia."

"I am not obliged to do so. We don't always know the causes of diseases."

The Court cut in with a question as to where all this led.

"He has given me the use of alcohol as a cause of paranoia," said Atcherley. "As a matter of fact, it has never been known to be so."

Emerson said it had.

"Well, if I show you a book which says it has not, what have you to say?" asked Atcherley.

"I'll show the man who wrote the book does not have the same views as I have."

"And you are more likely to be right than the book?"

"I don't say so."

"What is the proper pill dose for morphine given by the U. S. pharmacists?" asked Atcherley.

"I don't know. I don't remember."

Dr. Atcherley continued to put Dr. Emerson through a rigid medical examination, which proved rather uncomfortable.

Ex-Assistant Chief of Detectives Luahiwa testified that he had been sent on Sunday morning to listen to the voices which Dr. Atcherley heard. He had stayed there quite a while but had failed to hear them.

Dr. Collins was the next witness called.

"Do you consider that Dr. Atcherley is of unsound mind?" asked Cathcart.

"I consider him to be of unsound mind," answered Collins.

"Do you think it warrants his being detained in an asylum?"

"I consider that it does."

"On what do you base your opinion of Dr. Atcherley?"

"He has a delusion of persecution, that Dr. Wayson has done him an injury, and he deduces from that that his only means of retaliation is to do him an injury—is to shoot Dr. Wayson. It was the only way in which I could retaliate," said Atcherley when we examined him."

"He told me that Dr. Wayson had been instrumental in stealing some remedies, and also some photographs," said Dr. Collins, in answer

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

In home talk "Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen. "Bright's Disease" is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, with albumen in the urine. There has been no cure for either. But many kidney troubled people get well. True—because inflammation of the kidneys seldom occurs commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins. You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the doctors have given up on it. It is the discovery of FULTON'S Final Compound that was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues. The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts, instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them. No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis" or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, FULTON'S Final Compound is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, while it is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.
