PROTECT THE WORKMAN.

Japanese workmen have stated that they will go to work if given protection.

They should be protected.

The idea of the industry of this Territory being placed at the beck and call of Thugs should be sufficiently abhorrent to the minds of plantation owners and operators to cause them to promptly bring into use every means in their power to give complete protection for any and all employees who would work, though it requires a guard to stand by each field man.

Much has been said of the fear spread by the Italian Black Hand murderers. Is it now developing that among the Japanese of these islands there are secret societies of Thugs and murderers who can hold up three or four times their number of reputable workers—keep them out of the fields for fear of the death blow threatened from an agent of the Agitation.

There are no two ways about what should be done for the Kawailoa Japanese who are said to be ready to return to work, or the Japanese of any other section of any plantation who return to work.

They should have protection.

If the present police power is not ample, let the police authorities swear in all the deputies that may be needed. If need be, let the strike breakers become police officers to guard working Japanese, though this is a very improbable situation.

This strike from the outset has been a contest for law and order and the right of a laborer to do work if he so wills. It is the Agitator and the Thug against the honorable workman. And every supporter of the law-abiding laborer's right to work should not only render aid by word and moral influence but be ready if necessary to ward off physical attack that is usually the last resort of the unsuccessful and defeated Agitator.

Agitators and the Thugs cannot be met with their own game. They must, however, be taught that their game is short lived, that the reputable people of Hawaii, whether they be Americans or Japanese, have one and only one response for the enemy of law and order.

WHEN TO STOP ADVERTISING

Will a merchant who is wise
Ever cease to advertise?
Yes—when the trees grow upside down;

When the beggar wears a crown;
When ice forms on the sun;
When the sparrow weighs a ton;
When gold dollars get too cheap;
When women, secrets keep;
When a fish forgets to swim;
When Satan sings a hymn;
When girls go back on gum;
When the small boy hates a drum;
When no politician schemes;
When mince pie makes pleasant dreams;
When it's fun to break a tooth;
When all lawyers tell the truth;
When cold water makes you drunk;
When you love to smell a skunk;
When the drummer has no brass—
When all these things come to pass,
Then the man that's wise
Will neglect to advertise.

KNOCKERS AT WORK.

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

A correspondent writes from Honolulu that the authorities of that place are in the habit of shipping their criminals to the mainland to get rid of them. He supports his allegation with a clipping from the Commercial Advertiser of Honolulu, in which the statement is made that a negro named Harris, charged with shooting a man named Parker on one of the islands of the group, was given a chance to escape prosecution if he would go to San Francisco. So anxious were they to unload Harris upon this suffering community a spirited citizen offered to pay his fare on the steamer if he could not get a job to work his passage. San Francisco is making laudable efforts to increase her population, but will not take kindly to the swelling of the census marshal's list by additional of the kind mentioned.

MYSTERY SHROUDS WATERHOUSE' TRIP

All sorts of rumors are drifting about regarding Mexican rubber interests, which F. T. P. Waterhouse went to the mainland to investigate. There is but little authentically known, except to those immediately interested, however, and there will be nothing given out until the principal local stockholders hold a meeting.

Waterhouse visited Mexico at the instance of D. P. R. Isenberg and two associates. He declines to make public the result of his investigations, saying that it is up to the men who sent him. Isenberg declines to talk, saying that he is pledged to give nothing out until after the meeting.

But rumor says that it was to examine the books of the rubber company, and not to investigate the trees, that Waterhouse went.

The rubber stock has been paying 6 per cent dividends. The source of those dividends has been the cause of considerable speculation and, according to report, Waterhouse was sent to find out whether the money came out of rubber or out of something else.

But no one, except those immediately interested, knows what Waterhouse discovered, though the reluctance of those concerned to make public the result of the investigation has led to all sorts of rumors.

POST CART AND TRAM IN MIX-UP

Aged Man Sustains Bad Cuts on Arm and Body

About 4:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, as a Rapid Transit car was coming down Nuuanu avenue at a very easy rate of speed, a mail cart crossed the track right in front of the car. The motorman rang his bell in plenty of time, and was trying to bring his car to a standstill when the accident occurred. The mail cart, however, drove straight into the electric and was capsized.

The occupants, an old man and the mailman, were thrown out and, although the driver fell clear of the cart, the old man was pinned beneath it. The cart had to be lifted and righted before he could be released. His left wrist was badly cut and he sustained some severe bruises besides. The injured man was put on board the car and as he refused to go to the Hos-

PROTESTANTS HELP CATHOLICS

Little Church at Waikane Brings Out Spirit of Christianity

A grand luncheon that attracted the people for many miles around was held at the Catholic Church at Waikane on Sunday and a goodly sum was realized for the repair of the church. The little church at Waikane is one of the oldest of the Catholic buildings on this island, it having been erected in 1882 and has had very little repair since.

Father Andrew is now in charge of the churches on the other side of the island from Kahuku to Waimanalo and is doing a very good work among the people, as is attested by the very generous response to the affair of Sunday and the wide interest in the improvement of the church. The luncheon was a pleasant event held in the grounds of the church after the service. L. L. McCandless contributed a bullock for the luncheon and rendered help in other ways. One of the very happy incidents of the occasion was the arrival of a delegation from the Protestant church across the way, headed by Mr. Pa'ele. A contribution for the help of the Catholic church had been taken among the members of the Protestant congregation, and something over five dollars was presented to Father Andrew to go toward repairing his church.

gines back at the station at 2:45, and beyond some men who were left to watch for further outbreak, the scene was deserted. The fire started in a part of the shed in which paint and dressed lumber is stored. Some hundreds of dollars' worth of window glass was destroyed, and the total amount of damage will run to about $1,200.

OH, 'T WAS A LOVELY SHARK HUNT, BUT--

All Went Well Till They Found There Was No Water

Tales of shark-hunting proved all too alluring to a party of malihinis to be passed by yesterday, and, in consequence, a launchload of new arrivals started out in search of the ravenous denizens of the deep in the early hours of the morning.

There was shark bait of every imaginable description, and sufficient tackle to put an end to all of the man eating monsters that ever kept guard over the submerged treasures of a southern sea. Everything in fact was provided—with one exception.

With its load of eager sportsmen, the launch headed for the stamping ground of the sharks. Tackle was made ready, a defunct steed was cast overboard, and the mighty fishermen waited for the appearance of the ominous, triangular fin.

They waited, and waited and waited, but no shark made its appearance, though the hunting party got farther and farther from home. The sun began to get warmer, the scent of the bait became more acute. No shark was to be seen.

Finally one of the fishermen expressed a desire for food. The member of the party to whom had been entrusted the job of providing provisions, turned deathly pale, so interested had he been in the collection of tackle, that he had forgotten all about edibles.

Then another fisherman called for water. Consternation soon reigned, there was none in the launch. Everyone was immediately seized with a raging thirst, sharks were forgotten and tackle was cast aside. Stories of shipwrecked mariners, drifting about waterless, in open boats came to memory. Each fisherman felt his throat constricting and his tongue turning black.

The odoriferous bait, a short time ago the pride and joy of the party, quickly became a thing abhorred. Suppose the machinery of the launch should break down. How long would it be possible to survive in the broiling sun without water? If all went well, would it be possible to reach shore before the pitiless sun should sap the vitality of all the eager sportsmen who, but a few short hours before had left home so full of spirits.

The bow of the launch was pointed homeward, high speed was resorted to, and finally the thirst-craved fishermen set foot on terra firma, and lit out for the nearest water faucet. A few hours later, with the pangs of hunger and thirst assuaged, the sportsmen were ready to tell all about the shark that got away.

MARATHON JACKSON ALMOST GETS SHOT

And Officer Apana Is Beaten Up With Bottle

Nigel Jackson of Marathon fame came very near passing in his checks on Saturday night, or rather early Sunday morning. A bullet passed through a rug he had thrown around him as he rushed down stairs to investigate a row that was in progress.

"It was about 2 o'clock on Sunday morning that I was aroused by a terrible fight going on in the basement of the building in which I live, on Queen and South streets," said Jackson on this morning. "I at once jumped out of bed and seizing a rug threw it around myself and ran down stairs. I rushed into a room and found a regular riot going on. Bottles were being around and the furniture was being used as ammunition."

"There were half a dozen police officers present and as I ran in some one fired a shot—whether at me or not I cannot say—and the bullet passed through my rug just under my arm. I thought at first that I was hit for sure, and ran out onto the street. Finding that I was not wounded, I returned to the room and there saw Apana, the Chinese detective, with his mouth all cut open. There was a family living in the adjoining room and as least three shots were fired it is a wonder nobody was killed."

Inquiries at the Police Station elicited the information that Parker, the negro who was shot sometime ago by Harris, the bad-man nigger, was in custody on a charge of assaulting Apana with a bottle. The police discovered Parker, who had fled as soon as reinforcements arrived, on Sunday morning, asleep in Kawaiahaoa cemetery, and at once arrested him.

Apana is off duty today but is improving and will be able in a few days. Parker has an unsavory reputation and the suggestion has been made that he be allowed to leave the country. The case will come up before Judge Andrade tomorrow morning.

THAT ROAD ROLLER

The road roller that is to draw the ten-ton boiler from Kahana to Ahulimani started on its way from Kaneohe this morning. There seems to be much excitement over the movements of this road roller among the people of the other side of the island. It is reported that while the roller is on its tour abroad it is to be in charge of a special engineer and not the regular man employed by the County. Furthermore there have been conflicting reports as to whether it had been ordered to do the hauling or not. Mayor Fern appears to have given an order for it to not be used, but Supervisor Quinn went over to the other side yesterday and gave instructions for the roller to go on, and this morning it started, backed by written orders. Whether it will meet with a counter order or an injunction before it gets there remains to be seen.
