Mrs. Harry Lewis sent a number of wireless messages Thursday to friends to the effect that she would arrive Friday morning on the Sierra, and would sail on the same evening for Australia. Many friends were at the steamer to greet her, and she lunched at the Alexander Young Hotel with six of her friends. Friday evening at half after five Mrs. Lewis and her son, Donald, sailed on the Zealandia, to visit her mother in Melbourne. Mr. Lewis is in San Francisco and will return on the next Sierra, and the latter part of September will sail for Australia.—The Lewises are planning to return and spend the Christmas holidays in Honolulu. The California papers stated that Mrs. Lewis' mother was ill, but that was an erroneous statement, for at the present time all of the family in Australia are enjoying excellent health.

Mrs. Craig received by cable, the sad news of her father's death that took place in Seattle, Wash. The news curtailed the visit of the doctor and his charming wife, who left this week for the Northwest. This Arizona couple were extensively entertained, and made many friends in Honolulu.

Mrs. Koester's Luncheon. Mrs. Koester, wife of Major Koester of the Fifth Cavalry entertained a dozen friends at luncheon Friday afternoon, at her home at Schofield Barracks. Pale pink begonias and Australian maiden hair adorned the circular table. After luncheon bridge whist was enjoyed.

Miss Bertha Lanz Entertains. Monday afternoon, Miss Bertha Lanz entertained in honor of her cousin, Miss Alleen Dowsett, who has recently returned from Europe. Spider webs composed of white twine, were woven in and out amongst the trees that were growing in the beautiful garden. The strings were woven in such an intricate fashion, that it was hard to separate the individual strings. The idea was that the two guests who were the first to succeed in this pursuit were awarded prizes. Miss Laura Low was presented with the first prize, a silver filigree picture frame, the second prize was a pin tray in beaten silver. At 4 o'clock delicious refreshments were served in the dining room at a table bedecked with white marguerites and broad yellow satin ribbon. A large French basket filled with flowers, the handle tied with satin ribbon graced the center of the table. The favors were miniature baskets tied with yellow satin ribbon, the baskets contained candles in white and yellow. Among Miss Bertha Lanz's guests were: Miss Alleen Dowsett, Miss Doris Jones, Miss Emmeline Magoon, Miss Laura Booth, Miss Alice Hendry, Miss M. Smith, Miss Laura Low, Miss Louise Smith, Miss R. Sidney Haight, Captain and Mrs. Orton and Lieut. Jackson.

PEOPLE STILL RUSH TO CITY

BY C. S. ALBERT.
(Special Editor in Correspondence.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—That the people still rush to the cities and towns and leave the country life was fully indicated by the figures just made public by the census bureau. The "back to the farm" movement seems to be accomplishing but little.

The comparison given by the census authorities shows an increase since 1900 in the population living in urban territory of 11,935,841, or 34.9 per cent. The total population living in rural territory in 1910—that is, in the remainder of continental United States outside of urban communities—was 49,348,833, as compared with a total population living in the same territory in 1900 of 44,677,633, an increase in rural population during the same period of 4,671,200, or 11.1 per cent. For continental United States as a whole, therefore, the rate of increase for the population of urban areas was fully three times that for the population living in rural territory.

Of the total increase in the population of continental United States during the past decade (15,977,691), it also appears that seven-tenths (11,935,841) was in urban territory and that only three-tenths (4,041,850) was in rural territory.

Considering the nine geographic divisions of continental United States the table shows that the largest increases in urban population since 1900 are for the Pacific, West South Central, and Mountain divisions, in the order named, the percentages of increase being 102.1, 68.5, and 65.1, respectively. Of the 15 states and territories comprising these 3 divisions there are 3 states in which the increase in urban population is less than 50 per cent, and in 6 of them it is more than 100 per cent. In all of the states and territories comprising the Mountain and Pacific divisions there has also been a considerable increase in rural population; in each of the 4 states comprising the West South Central division there has also been an increase in rural population, but in 3 of them the increase is less than 20 per cent.

N. S. W. PREMIER HAS GOOD TIME

Out of office for eighteen years, in for a year, out for three days and in again is the record held by the Hon. James S. T. McGowan, premier of New South Wales, who passed through yesterday on the steamer Zealandia and who was the guest of the Hands-Around-the-Pacific Club.

When he was in New York he received a cable telling him that his party was out of power but by the time he reached Chicago he had another cable stating that they were back again. The upheaval was caused by two of the Labor members going back on the party and the Lieutenant-Governor's refusal to prorogue parliament until the by-elections were contested. The Liberal party failed to form a ministry, however, and the Lieutenant-Governor also refused to accept the resignation of the Labor party until McGowan had been heard from.

He and his party were not given any time to waste yesterday, being rushed around all the principal sights of the town by the members of the Hands-Around-the-Pacific Club, of which McGowan has accepted a vice-presidency and has also promised to back the branch to be formed in Sydney. The aquarium, the Pall, Fort Ruger, Diamond Head and the view from the top of Punehhawi were taken in rapid succession and the party were loud in their praises of Honolulu.

"It is the most beautiful spot I have yet seen," said McGowan on the boat last evening, "and I can quite understand now why it is that everyone I meet has a good word to say for it. I intend to come back some day and pay an extended visit. This work of yours with the Hands-Around-the-Pacific idea is a great one and Percy Hunter told me of it in London, where a branch was formed. You leave yourself in their hands. McGowan," he told me, "and I guarantee that you will have a good time, and you can tell your people from me that I have."

PHILADELPHIA'S NEW ARCHBISHOP

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 1.—The Most Rev. Edward F. Prendergast, the new archbishop of the diocese of Philadelphia, received his elevation to his high office in the Catholic church at a ceremony at the cathedral here that was unusually impressive. The service was attended by a representative of the pope, about 200 priests and many high public officials. Archbishop Prendergast succeeds the late Archbishop Ryan.

BISHOP ESTATE CLEANSING WAIPILOILO CESSPOOL

The Waipiloilo cesspool is now a thing of the past so far as creating any nuisance is concerned, the Bishop Estate having taken it over and made arrangements with the county folks to keep it pumped out and clean until the sewer is run through the Kalihi district. The estate will bear the cost.

As forecast in the Bulletin some days ago, the Bishop Estate has taken steps to cancel the lease to the Hawaiian Land Company, of which W. C. Aehl is the head. Notice has been served on it to get out, as the estate has taken full possession.

The estate will not recognize the Allen & Robinson Estate, of which Paul Muhlendorf is manager. The latter estate's interest is a mortgage on the lease held by Aehl. The Bishop Estate will contest any case that is brought into the courts over the matter.

The Hawaiian band serenaded Hon. F. A. Schaefer this forenoon, today being his birthday anniversary.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Dog and His Master

"MANY years ago," said daddy one evening, "when I was in Europe, I saw something in one of the big cities that would interest you youngsters, so I shall tell you about it this evening."

"It is a story about a dog and his master. The dog was very old. He had served his master well, but now he could do no more. He had lost most of his teeth, and his eyesight had become poor. Besides, in the city in which this happened there was a tax on dogs, and the man did not care to pay the tax any more on his poor old friend, so he made up his mind to drown the poor dog."

"Oh, daddy, wasn't that a shame!" said Evelyn.

"Yes," answered daddy. "Well, the man tied a rope around the poor dog's neck and led him down to the river. The animal seemed to know what was going to happen and tried to hang back, but the man dragged him along. When they got to the river there were a number of people about. I was among them, and, seeing the poor animal being dragged along, I asked the man what he was about to do."

"Sir," the man said, "this dog has served me well for many years, but now he is too old to be of any more use. Besides, I am a poor man, and I cannot afford any longer to pay the city dog tax, so I am going to drown the animal. Here," he said to the dog, "come with me." And he went down into a rowboat.

"When he got out in the middle of the river, where the water was quite deep, he suddenly seized hold of the dog and, giving him a great push, threw him into the water. Then he turned around as if to row away."

"But the dog was not too old and weak to swim. He came to the surface and swam to the boat and tried to hold on to the edge with his front paws. He looked up into his master's face as if to say, 'Oh, master, why do you treat me so when I have been your companion for so many years?'"

"The man did not care. He tried to push the animal's paws from the boat with his hands, but he could not do so. Then he lifted one of his oars and struck at the dog. But the oar was heavy, and the man could not handle it, so when he struck at the dog he overbalanced himself and fell over the edge of the boat into the water. There he struggled and cried for help, for he could not swim."

"When the dog saw his master's trouble he swam toward him and seized him by the collar. Then he held him up until people on the bank of the river who had seen the accident rowed out and saved the man."

"Was the dog saved also?" asked Jack. "Yes," said daddy.
