TWENTIETH INFANTRY

went through Honolulu on their way to the Philippines in July 1909. Major S. W. Dunning, now Lieutenant-Colonel, assumed command of Fort Shafter early in July, only a few days after the troops arrived in that post. A Desolate Greeting.
When the soldiers left the street cars and arrived at the post a vast area of waste land, covered with great rocks together with wild, tropical vegetation greeted their sight. Two sets of barracks, headquarters and the officers' quarters were the only buildings on the reservation. The troops then doubled up in the barracks and then the work started. From the veranda of the soldiers' quarters one could not see across the parade ground to the officers' homes, so thick was the growth of underbrush. General fatigue became the daily routine of the soldiers and at all times during the day one soldier plus a brush hook and axe could be seen working on the parade ground clearing a place to do his daily drill. The soldiers, by applying themselves arduously to their gruesome task, soon had the parade ground in a respectful condition. The quarters were as yet in a barren state but in the course of a few months, vines began to spring up and tropical plants which had been carefully planted soon adorned the grounds around the barracks. And thus began the development of Fort Shafter as it stands today, recommended by Secretary of War Dickinson as one of the most beautiful of all army posts.

New Quarters Built.
Finding that the two sets of barracks were not sufficiently large to quarter four companies of soldiers the government entered into a contract for the erection of two more buildings and mess hall when on June 29, 1909, the buildings stood completed.
E and G companies promptly moved from the old barracks into the new and assumed the responsibility of beautifying the grounds surrounding their new home. This was done with utmost precaution. Grass was brought down from the mountains care was taken in the selection of plants and everything was done that possibly could be done to make the quarters and their surroundings pleasing to the eye. In fact the work that was accomplished meritoriously by the soldiers of the Second Battalion, Twentieth Infantry, has taken many a tourist as well as local people out to the little post on a tour of inspection and nothing but praise and compliments has as yet been uttered.
Many Changes.
Since the Twentieth have been stationed here in Honolulu many changes have been made in the line of officers and non-commissioned officers. Lieutenant Colonel S. W. Dunning who was major and in command of the battalion, after receiving the advanced rank, departed for the States turning the post over to Major W. P. Burnham. Major Burnham transferred from the Fifteenth Infantry to the Twentieth, coming to Honolulu from Fort Douglas, Utah. It is interesting to the major and his friends to be journeying back to the post from which he took his departure only a few short months ago.

Soldiers See Much of Oahu.
The men of the Twentieth since their stay in Honolulu have seen much of the island of Oahu as well as a trip to the island of Hawaii. Sight-seeing the way the soldiers see it is very different from the way most people have of taking in the sights. Hiking and carrying your home with you is not the most beautiful way of visiting strange lands but at the same time the little things that go to make a trip interesting are enlarged and never forgotten. Thus the soldiers of the Twentieth traveled around the island of Oahu many times, over the roughest of roads, under the hottest of suns, even to the most remote places and looking back over the past, those were the happy times, long to be remembered.
Baseball and Sports.
The soldiers of Fort Shafter have participated in a great many of the sports that have gone to make interesting times for the people of Honolulu. Having a team in the Military league, the men have played not a few hard games of baseball and at one time Fort Shafter claimed for its own a team that but few teams on the island could beat.

The field days that have been held out at the post go to show just how much real sporting blood Fort Shafter contains. All events that are dear to the heart of an athlete have been tried out and the men have proved themselves equal to the game.
Regiment Does Not Unite.
It was stated in the columns of the Advertiser a few days ago that the Twentieth Infantry would soon be united and that the other two battalions of the Twentieth were aboard the Sheridan. This statement cannot be substantiated, however. The Twentieth will unite sometime in January 1912. Owing to the fact that troops now in the Philippines are required to do a two and a half year tour, the time of the Twentieth will not expire until December of this year, when the two battalions will leave for the states. The Second Battalion will do garrison duty at Fort Douglas until the arrival of the rest of the regiment.
The soldiers of Fort Shafter have made many friends while in Honolulu and when the transport sets sail for San Francisco many a hearty aloha will follow them.

CLUBS TO RENEW "BOOST" WORK

The regular quarterly meeting of the directors of the Public Service Association was held yesterday at the University Club, Governor Frear presiding.
The financial report of the secretary, W. A. Bryan, was presented, and an outline of the work accomplished put before the directors.
L. A. Thurston brought up the matter of the association giving its chief energy to the planning of things that would make it easy for the tourist to entertain himself in Honolulu and Hawaii. This was heartily endorsed by the other directors, and the discussion turned on the matter of securing an able hustling manager for this department who could give his entire time and attention to planning for the tourist, and who could systematize office work so that every moment's work during the day would count.
Director Stanton of the Hundred Thousand Club emphasized the fact that the tourist does not wish to be entertained; he merely wants to know how he can entertain himself in Honolulu. Director Dondero of the Boy Scouts stated that there are a hundred ways, and named a number of them, but at present there is no one who is competent to tell these things to the tourist and point out to him just how to entertain himself.

In time, Director Dondero believes, the Boy Scouts and the Junior Trail and Mountaineers will provide from their membership splendid guides for those tourists and others who wish to go tramping.
Director Sedgwick of the Hands-Around-the-Pacific Club further urged that the Public Service Association give its greatest efforts toward accomplishing those things that will benefit both the tourist and the resident, and this will be the policy of the association.
Secretary Bryan urged the need of an able director who could organize and carry on the work of helping the tourist, as well as the resident, to entertain himself and this matter will be taken up at once.
The Hands-Around-the-Pacific, the Hundred Thousand and the Trail and Mountaineers clubs are each preparing for renewed activities along the line of providing attractions to the tourist and to the resident.
It was practically decided that the Public Service Association will act as financial agents for boosting organizations, and maintain an office force to help them do their boosting.
It is expected that several additional clubs will affiliate with the Public Service Association, to enable it to maintain an active hustling force and secure a director of the tourist planolu. Director Dondero of the Boy Scouts department who can give his entire time and energy to this work.
Secretary Bryan will give particular attention to carrying through the Malama Stream Park project, the Punch-bowl beautifying plan, open-air auditorium at Kapiolani Park, and similar

SCHOOL SITE AT WATERTOWN

City and County Engineer Gere and several members of the Ways and Means Committee of the County government, have been looking into a suitable site for a new and better adapted school building for the growing district near Watertown.
As a result of their investigations a site has been selected which belongs to the Bishop Estate but which the committee hopes to be able to secure for a term of years.
It is recommended that the city and county make use of a lot about one hundred and fifty feet west of the present school building with the understanding that the land will revert to the Bishop Estate whenever it is decided to abandon the proposed school building.
Charged with attempting to poison her husband, against whom she had instituted divorce proceedings, Mrs. Vera D. Smith is held for the Washington county, Vt., grand jury action under bonds of $2500.

projects of the organization, while the co-worker he asks for will look out for the tourist after he arrives in Honolulu and see to it that he overstays his time in the Islands.

- Second—Gold Watch or its equivalent in cash
- Third—Silver Watch or its equivalent in cash
- Fourth—Twenty-Five Dollar Dry Goods Order
- Fifth—Twenty-Five Dollar Grocery Order

That last savor of the Christmas dinner, and that is certain to be popular with the boys

WHO CAN ENTER

Any newsboy who enters his name on the Bulletin news boy list for the annual Thanksgiving dinner is eligible. It is also possible for the Bulletin Carrier Boys to figure in the contest.

THE PURPOSE

Is just to give the Bulletin Newsboys something new and interesting for Christmas, and something that will make the Christmas of 1911 an especially happy one for them, as it ought to be for all Honolulu at the close of this year of prosperity.

THE TIME

This contest will open on Monday, October 9, and close Friday evening December 22, at eight o'clock. Christmas falls on Monday this year. This will give the successful ones all day Saturday in which to fill their orders, or spend their Christmas money if they wish to take the money equivalent, and not ready for a rare and royally merry Christmas.

TERMS OF THE CONTEST

The prizes will be awarded two days before Christmas to the Bulletin Newsboys making the best record as news sellers.
It is also provided that the boys may improve their standing by getting new subscribers. Provision will be made for readers to give a ballot that will help their Bulletin newsboy. Each paper sold will entitle the newsboy to Five Bulletin Ballots.
Each subscriber to the Evening Bulletin will be entitled to One Hundred and Fifty Bulletin Ballots for each month's subscription to the daily paid in advance, after the contest opens. These ballots may be given to your favorite newsboy. And this also admits of the Bulletin Carrier Boys being included in the race.
Each new yearly subscriber to the daily Evening Bulletin will entitle the Newsboy turning in the subscription to Two Thousand Bulletin Ballots.
Each new yearly subscriber of the Weekly Edition of the Evening Bulletin entitles the Newsboy turning in to 100 Bulletin Ballots.

These are the major prizes. There will be Clothes and Shoes for others of the boys who are workers.
