

FOREIGN NEWS.

Glidstone Outlines to the Ministry His Irish Programme.

Which is Said to Fully Embrace a Separate Parliament.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—It is reported that the first outline of Mr. Gladstone's Irish proposals has been presented to his colleagues in the Cabinet, and that the Premier goes the whole length of restoring the Irish Parliament.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 24.—All workmen of foreign birth have been discharged from employment in the Government dockyards. This action has been taken because of the disclosure in the case of Captain Bismarck, recently convicted of having sold plans and information of German fortifications to Major Girard of the French general staff.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 24.—At Zoeschen, a village in Saxony, to-day, a piece of land twenty acres in area, on which there were several houses, suddenly subsided, leaving a large shaft. Three men were drowned.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Seven thousand Tynes and Wear ship-builders, who have been on a strike have resumed work at a slight reduction in wages.

NICE, Feb. 24.—A young commercial traveler who was on his bridal tour, and spending a few days at Monaco, was found dead to-day in the city. He had thrown himself at the gambling tables and then committed suicide.

VERY PROMPT WORK.

A Bill Introduced and Passed in the New Jersey Legislature in One Hour and a Half.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 24.—The Legislature last night took prompt action in the matter of the difficulty in which the State is placed by the decision of the Supreme Court in the railroad tax law. At ten minutes past 8 Mr. Corbin introduced a bill providing for a special term of the Court of Errors and Appeals to hear an appeal from the decision, and also empowering the Attorney General to employ such legal and other assistance as he thought necessary in prosecuting the appeal.

A DOLLAR A KISS.

But Some Refused to Pay, and Oh, My, What a Rumpus!

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Sophia Koleski and Louis Klupki were married here Monday night. After the ceremony there was trouble. There were a number of the Polish friends of the bride and groom present, and, according to custom, a kiss from the bride was worth a dollar. There was a general rush of former admirers and she sold out a large stock of kisses previously favored and privileged ones refused to pay. Whereupon the husband became angry and a free fight ensued.

Strangest Celestial Sight.

COLD SPRING, IND., Feb. 24.—Last night between seven and eight o'clock a ball of fire was seen about thirty feet in the air, above the house of Mrs. Mina Meyers, at Cold Spring Station, and remained there for more than half an hour, swinging to and fro as though some one was swinging it about, with sparks dropping three or four feet, when they would disappear. Several prominent citizens of this place were eye-witnesses to the strange sight. Mr. Fred Homan, postmaster of this place, says he saw the light or spirit or whatever you might call it start a distance of a mile away, come right to the spot, where the others saw it, and there dance around for several minutes, and then fall at the side of the house to the ground. The house over which this strange sight appeared was formerly owned by a widow. She married Wm. Whalen in 1875. He was at the time in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Company. The winter following Whalen was killed half a mile west of here by a freight train. Some of the people here are so superstitious as to think Whalen's death has something to do with the strange sight.

A Horrible Find at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 24.—This afternoon workmen on the canal discovered the badly decayed bodies of a man and woman, which had been held under the surface of the ice for some weeks. The latter was identified as that of Zurla Newton, a partially demented middle-aged woman, who disappeared a month or more ago, and for whose whereabouts diligent search has been made. It is supposed she threw herself into the water. A search of the clothes on the male body discovered the presence of letters and a memorandum, which showed the deceased to have been John Webber, an ex-policeman. He had been out of work for some time, and it is thought he committed suicide in a fit of despondency and desperation.

The Matter of Issuing Small Bills.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The general subject of the issue of treasury notes and silver certificates of small denominations was discussed at to-day's meeting of the House Committee on banking and currency. There are now forty-eight bills before the committee touching the subject under discussion. It was the sense of the committee that a general bill, or perhaps, two, covering the matter should be formulated and reported in lieu of those bills, and with that view the bills will be divided among three sub-committees for examination.

TORN FROM THE ALTAR.

Excitement and Indignation at a Pennsylvania Revival Meeting.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—A special from Reading, Pa., says: Revival meetings in the village of Templest, miles from here held by Rev. Ulysses Grant Glick, have attracted very large crowds. Tuesday night there was a scene of extraordinary excitement. Lena Myers, a prosessing brunette, aged seventeen, was at the altar among many other penitents. Her relatives not wishing her to become a member of the Evangelical Association, rushed through the crowded congregation up to where the young lady was kneeling, and endeavored to take her away. They were opposed by the singing and praying members of the congregation who forced the intruders back. The lady's sister took hold of the praying, weeping girl, and attempted to pull her away, but her distress was passed back with considerable force, and their efforts to pull her out proved unavailing. There was intense excitement among the congregation, some of whom threatened vengeance if the girl were not allowed to seek religion in her own way. The constable of the village was appealed to, but he positively declined to interfere. Order was finally restored. The lady's father, a man named Glick, a member of the Evangelical Association, walks three miles every evening to participate in the exercises. Miss Myers was seen last night, and says she will yet gather all her relatives into the fold.

A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Two Children Whirled for an Hour Around the Shaft of a Mill.

READING, Pa., Feb. 25.—A man named Little owns a mill at Shamokin Hill. His twin daughters, Katie and Susie, aged 6 years, strayed to an upstairs room in the mill where a shaft was revolving. While at play the little ones ventured too near the machinery and their clothing caught in the shaft, and they were drawn around it and whirled with each revolution. After being thrown around for an hour they were found by an older sister, who had come to look for them. When the machinery was stopped their bodies were found to be terribly lacerated. The skull of Katie was badly fractured and her body in other ways much mutilated, causing her death. Susie still lives, but her chances of recovery are small. Her entire body is more or less injured, several bones being broken.

GERONIMO GOES BACK.

After Refusing to Surrender Unconditionally.

EL PASO, TEXAS, Feb. 25.—Word has just reached here of a meeting between General Crook and Geronimo, at Santa Ranch, the day before yesterday. The chief and five bucks, in consultation with General Crook asked permission to return to the reservation unconditionally. General Crook refused, demanding an unconditional surrender. Geronimo declined to give himself up, and after consulting with his camp-keeping the white flag flying for several miles. Chief Nana and another are still held as hostages. Geronimo is reported to have ninety bucks, besides women and children with him. No attempt will be made to follow him. It is not known what he will do.

A STRANGE FATALITY.

An Old Lady Accidentally Killed By a Pet Mastiff.

ANNONIA, CONN., Feb. 25.—Yesterday morning the wealthiest lady in Derby, Mrs. W. R. Slade, died from injuries received from her pet mastiff playfully springing upon her while in the cellar, throwing her down and breaking her hip. Her grand daughter, Miss Josie Hill, was to have been married yesterday afternoon to Chas. H. Alling, a wealthy merchant of Birmingham, and over two hundred invitations had been sent to friends in New York, New Haven, Hartford and Waterbury. They were recalled Tuesday and yesterday morning the wedding quietly took place at the bride's residence, only the intimate friends being present. A handsome fortune was bequeathed the bride by the grandmother.

The Emancipation of Labor.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies to-day joined in sending a telegram to the British workmen in the House of Commons, proposing a joint International movement in the interest of laboring men. The main objects of the proposition are to be the securing of a reduction in the hours of labor; improvement in the sanitary condition of work-shops; proper limits to the work obtained of women and minors; and an absolute prohibition against allowing children of either sex under fourteen years of age to work in shops or factories. The telegram suggests that the British workmen join those of France in inviting the workmen of America and over Europe to send delegates to a congress to be held next September, in some place to be hereafter designated, for the purpose of discussing means to emancipate the workmen of all countries.

Dan Dalton's Dilemma.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 25.—At noon to-day Judge Robertson granted a writ of habeas corpus for County Clerk Dalton on the application of his attorney, C. W. Baker. The application was necessitated by the action of the House Committee in demanding the poll-book of Precinct A, Fourth Ward. Mr. Baker stated that his client, Mr. Dalton, was perfectly willing to produce the book, but that precinct, but was unable to do so while they were in the possession of the Senate Committee of Investigation, who refuse to deliver them up to him until they have concluded their work. Judge Robertson permitted Mr. Dalton to go on his own recognizance to appear for a hearing next Wednesday, and fixed the bond at $500.

Insane from Starvation.

ENTR, Pa., Feb. 25.—A most distressing case of starvation was discovered here as an early hour this morning. Fred Saunders, wife and two children came here from Cleveland a month ago, and he being unable to find employment, and being without means, was sorely distressed. For several days he refused to eat anything, giving his share of food to his wife and two famishing children. His hunger and distress overcame him this morning and he was found a raving maniac, tearing his hair out of his head and attempting to kill himself. The case has excited the profound sympathies of every one.

AN EASTERN BLIZZARD.

Velocity of the Wind Something Phenomenal.

Buildings Unroofed and Great Damage to Property.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—The wind played havoc with housetops all over the city to-day. Shingles were blown in the air and tin roofs were torn from their fastenings and hurled to the ground. A three-story house opposite the public buildings in Juniper street was unroofed and the mass of tin was suspended above the yard in the rear. The spire of the Arch street Methodist Church was blown down this morning, and those who passed that way gave the building a wide berth, but it still remains in position. The velocity of the wind to-day reached forty-five miles an hour.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 26.—A wind storm of a most disastrous character has prevailed in this neighborhood for the past twenty-four hours, and still continues. Houses have been unroofed and chimneys blown down. This morning two of the large stand pipes of the Lochiel Iron Works were toppled over, one of which crashed into the works. Fortunately no person was injured. The consequence throughout the country will be considerable.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 26.—One of the heaviest gales of the season set in last night and continued to-day. The temperature was below zero. At 9 o'clock last night, when the wind was blowing a strong gale, a lady, said to be a sister of the late ex-Governor Seymour, was blown from a Lake Shore train between Buffalo and Tonawanda. She was blown down the Eastern coast. At 9 o'clock last night, when the wind was blowing a strong gale, a lady, said to be a sister of the late ex-Governor Seymour, was blown from a Lake Shore train between Buffalo and Tonawanda. She was blown down the Eastern coast. At 9 o'clock last night, when the wind was blowing a strong gale, a lady, said to be a sister of the late ex-Governor Seymour, was blown from a Lake Shore train between Buffalo and Tonawanda. She was blown down the Eastern coast.

TERRIFYING SIGHT.

A Circus Elephant on a Rampage at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 25.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

ENTERPRISING LAWYER.

He Divorces His Wife, Remarries, and Elopes With Another Woman.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 25.—A lawyer named Wm. Makepiece, from Dunlap, Ia., together with a woman and two children was arrested in this city to-day. Charges against him are embezzlement, stealing a team of horses and carrying off mortgaged property. Makepiece was a collection lawyer at Dunlap and became enamoured of a young lady from Des Moines, named Katie Vogel, whom he married, having previously procured a divorce from his wife. He took his new wife to Denison, Ia., left her, returned to Dunlap, and eloped with Mrs. Connelton. In doing so he appropriated a team of horses and carried off his mortgaged property, besides leaving several claims of clients in an unsettled condition.

Great Co-operative Store Scheme.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 26.—The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers has on foot a scheme to establish, in this city, a huge depot or store, from which will be distributed supplies of flour, groceries, boots and shoes, tobacco, etc., to the workers throughout the manufacturing communities of the country. Manufacturers and merchants in this and other cities have agreed to furnish the supplies either at minimum prices, or on a price or up on a commission. The goods will be the same as sold to the wealthiest classes, and will all be marked by the association. Prominent names among the subscribers are Wheeling, W. Va.; Steubenville and Bellaire, Ohio; Greenestead, Ind.; Chicago, Ill.; Bayview, Wis.; St. Louis, Mo.; Birmingham, Ala.; Wheeling, Ala.; Trenton and Portsmouth, Ohio; Astoria, Ky.; Cincinnati and Mingo, Ohio; the various cities of the Shenango and Mahoning Valleys, including Cleveland—in short, all of the localities in which are cities and towns employing organized labor, and more especially Amalgamation members.

A Romance of South Mountain.

WOMELSBY, Pa., Feb. 26.—Conrad Nagle, aged seventy-five years, who for many years lived the life of a hermit on South Mountain on the land of Samuel Long, was found dead in his hut yesterday. The old man lay stretched upon a buffalo robe and the wood fire in his hearth was out. Three days ago, when he was in good health, he predicted that he would die February 25 at 4 o'clock in the morning, and it is firmly believed that it was about that time he died. There was no evidence of a violent death, as the old man looked as if he had peacefully passed away. Fifty years ago he lost his wife and immediately after that he went upon the mountain and selected an extremely wild and unfrequented place and vowed he would never leave it nor again mingle with the people of the world, but would prepare himself to meet the soul of his dead wife.

A National Shrine.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 26.—The Senate to-day passed the bill ceding to the United States jurisdiction over the Drexel Cottage at Mt. McGregor in which General Grant died.

A Singular Accident.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 26.—A most agonizing accident happened this afternoon to Henry Digg, an expressman, with headquarters in the Court street market space. With a number of other drivers he was engaged in performing gymnastic feats on an iron bar in the market house. In giving himself a long swing his left leg caught on a butcher's meat block sticking out from the wall. The pain caused him to loosen his grip on the iron bar, and he hung head downward by his leg. The weight of his body tore the flesh and muscles of the limb in a sickening manner. He was lifted off the rack by his comrades, and sent to the hospital in a patrol wagon. The wound is not serious, although it may render him a cripple for life.

AN IMPORTANT CASE.

Testing the Power of an Ecclesiastic to Annul a Christian Marriage.

MONTRÉAL, Feb. 26.—Last December Elizabeth Glotensky, daughter of a rich property owner, was married to her cousin, Daniel Wilson, by Rev. Dr. Doudet, a Presbyterian preacher. The parties were Catholics, but of full age, and the registrar issued them a license. A Catholic priest refused to marry them, as the parents of the lady, who is an heiress, objected to the union. Mr. Fabre, Roman Catholic Bishop of Montréal, was appealed to by the mother of the bride to declare the marriage null and void, which his lordship did, and the Archbishop of Québec confirmed the Bishop's action. The case has occupied the attention of the Superior Court here for some days. Counsel for the mother laid down as an indisputable proposition, that as the parties had not abandoned their religion, they were subject to laws to which the State had extended, as a protection, its sanction. Counsel for the husband maintained that while England had conceded religious liberty to the Roman Catholics in Canada, Scotland had not inferred therefrom that it had divested the Protestant Church of her right to celebrate the marriages of all Christians; also that the decrees of the Council of Trent, on which the Bishop based his decisions, were never promulgated in Canada. Moreover the judgment rendered by the Privy Council in London in the celebrated Goutier case clearly affirmed the absolute nullity of ecclesiastical decrees of that kind. The case was taken under consideration by the court, and the judgment is eagerly looked for to settle the point that has been raised for the first time.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced an opening through the high fence surrounding the grounds in the same manner that she had escaped from the building. The next thing she came in contact with was a barbed wire fence, on which she lacerated her trunk and breast in a frightful manner. Her keeper overtook her here, and, in trying to force her back to the grounds, she sunk a spear in her ear. It broke off, the head of the instrument remaining buried in the flesh. She leaped over the barbed wire, tearing several long, ugly gashes in doing so. After reaching Fall creek, a mile distant, she gave vent to her rage by demolishing a small bridge over the creek, and then, after two hours of terrifying conduct she voluntarily returned to her quarters again, forcing her way through the fence and bursting out several panels of the building. She was quietly submitted to being chained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—"Hunkie," an elephant belonging to the manager of John B. Doris, the showman, became unmanageable to-day while her trainer was endeavoring to teach her the saw-trick, and after exciting all the other animals by her roaring until there was a terrible discord of noise, ran heading against the side of the building, bursting out several panels, and through the opening she made her escape. The infuriated beast did considerable destruction about the Exposition grounds, where the winter quarters of the show are located, and forced