

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM MANY STATES

Important News Gathered from Abroad for the Benefit of Our Readers.

Mrs. Polly Bone, aged 191 years, a relative of Daniel Boone, died at Tompkinsville.

There were fewer than thirty indictments returned by the grand jury at the recent term of Hardin court.

Maj. E. S. Hilburn, Mayor of Middletown, announced his candidacy for Lieutenant Governor, subject to the action of the Republican State Convention.

The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and New Jersey, the American Tobacco Company and the International Harvester Company have been sued by the Commonwealth Attorney of Mason county, conspiracy in restraint of trade being charged.

Edward J. Myall, assistant cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Paris, Ky., was found dead in his home with a bullet in his brain. No cause is assigned for the tragedy.

A post-mortem examination of the body of Howland Tate showed death due to natural causes, and officials of the Eastern Kentucky Asylum for the Insane were exonerated.

Calhoun, Ky.—Attacked by a monster black snake, which he was trying to kill, L. Roy Tichenor succeeded in dispatching the reptile after a hard fight. The snake had evidently been driven out of the lowlands by the high water and had taken refuge in the grass near the old waterworks plant. The snake was five feet long.

The Bath county grand jury was in session but a few days during this term of the Bath Circuit Court and returned only about a half dozen indictments, all for trivial offences. This is perhaps the smallest number of indictments ever reported by a Bath county grand jury. Just before adjourning the jury inspected and reported all the county buildings in a satisfactory condition.

FORAGE CROPS IN KENTUCKY.

While grass will furnish abundant pasturage for live stock during the next few weeks, yet it should be remembered that late in July and August pasturage will be short. At that time also flies will be exceedingly hot. The best way to secure success with stockraising in the summer is to supplement the pastures with some forage crops, which will furnish green feed at the time when the pastures are parched.

Alfalfa will grow on many farms in Kentucky, and it will furnish pasturage or selling from May to October.

Corn (stalks and all) cut in the roasting-ear stage and hauled to the pasture, and thrown in feed racks or bunks, will serve a useful purpose in supplementing the pasturage during late summer.

All classes of live stock will do much better during the summer if some kind of green feed is fed to them in addition to what pasturage they can graze during dry weather. Many farmers have begun a practice of cutting the green crops and hauling them to the barns, rather than allowing the cattle to pasture the crops. In this way three times the number of cattle may be maintained on a small farm that can be kept with a pasturage system. But at the same time more labor is required. The best system for Kentucky farmers at present is to grow some additional pasturage crop, such as alfalfa or clover, to supplement blue grass, and in addition to cut some green corn as it is needed for the live stock. Different varieties of corn mature at different periods, and a continuous supply of green corn for late summer feed may be secured by growing different varieties for this purpose or by planting small patches of the same variety at intervals of two weeks.

In the North silos are filled in the fall and carried over winter and opened during the dry months of late summer. The silage proves a useful feed for both beef and dairy cattle and also sheep at that time.

The dairyman cannot afford to overlook this matter, for everyone knows that when a cow has fallen off in milk it is a difficult task to get her restored to a full flow. The driest part of summer is almost as trying a period on dairy cows as the worst part of winter, but the methods above described will do much to remove the difficulty.

WATERSON.

Resolutions of Respect of Blaine Lodge, I. O. O. F. No. 292, Chesapeake, death has come into our ranks and the Supreme Ruler of the Universe has seen best to take from our midst Brother Jas. Stafford. He was called April 23th, 1911 to come up higher where the flowers so sweetly bloom forever.

Whereas, we realize by this dispensation of an omnipotent Hand that a link in our fraternal chain has been broken, bringing to our minds the fact that some day unknown to us we must answer to the same call.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we extend to his family and relatives our sympathy in their bereavement; also that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family at Chesokee, Ky.

NOTES OF THE FARM.

COLUMN OF INTERESTING NEWS THAT WILL BENEFIT FARMERS.

Fighting the Fly.

Rules for dealing with the fly nuisance: Screen all windows and doors, especially the kitchen and dining-room.

Keep the flies away from the sick, especially those ill with contagious diseases. Kill every fly that strays into the sick room. His body is covered with disease germs. Do not allow decaying material of any sort to accumulate on or near your premises.

All refuse which tends in any way to fermentation, such as bedding, straw, paper waste and vegetable matter, should be disposed of or covered with lime or kerosene oil.

Screen all food. Keep all receptacles for garbage carefully covered and the cans cleaned or sprinkled with oil or lime.

Keep all stable manure in vault or pit, screened or sprinkled with lime, oil or other cheap preparation.

Cover food after a meal; burn or bury all table refuse. Screen all food exposed for sale.

Don't forget, if you see flies, their breeding place is in nearby filth. It may be behind the door, under the table or in the cuspidor.

If there is no dirt and filth, there will be no flies.

Flow Points.

Fencing the young orchard is more useful than pruning, and should consist mostly in shaping the trees or keeping them in form and properly balanced. Very often the side opposite the direction from which the prevailing winds come becomes weaker than the side toward the wind, and the removal of some of the branches and heading in of others becomes necessary.

Temperament has a commercial value in the horse-breeding industry. Farmers should breed for reliable dispositions as well as soundness and symmetrical conformation, if they wish to realize top market prices for their horses.

Sweet potato plants require a great deal of heat and sunshine and care should be taken in planting them to look after this. The sweet potato vines should be planted in rows from three and one-half to four feet apart, and the plants should be set from two to two and one-half feet apart. The soil should be hoed to the plants in the early stages of cultivation and this should be done regularly. If crowded the plants will not tuber well.

Young Ducks.

Do not let young ducks go to the pond or creek. There are two enemies awaiting them there. Turkeys destroy many of them, even though too small to swallow one. They will grab them from beneath and hold them under the water and pull them till they drown. Another is that ducklings will be attacked by cramps and die before they can get out of the water. Give the ducklings only what water they need to drink, so arrange that they will be the better for it and not be in danger's way.

Watch These Points.

Milk with clean hands. Clean the cows before milking, if filthy.

See that all vessels in milk utensils are properly flushed with solder. Only well tinned metal vessels should be used for milk.

Clean all milk utensils properly and place them in the sunlight.

Remember dirt carries bacteria which cannot be strained out of the milk, hence avoid getting dirt in the milk.

Place the cream in cold water at once after separating.

Never run the cream directly from separator into can containing cream from previous skimming.

Never mix warm and cold cream. Stir the cream occasionally while cooling.

Keep the cream sweet in hot weather by changing the water often.

Keep the milk-house clean, well lighted and well ventilated, and use it for no other purpose except milk and cream.

Do not keep cream in rusty milk cans, setters or buckets; the cream will not keep so well and the rusty utensils may produce a very objectionable metallic flavor.

Do not keep cream in musty cellars, nor in any place near vegetables, fruits, meats, soap of any other strong-odored provision; they taint the cream.

Stir the cream often so that it will be free from lumps. Only fresh, sweet and smooth cream can be sampled accurately. When cream is sour and in poor condition, the test is usually lowered. Use a regular milk stirrer, skimmer or long-handled spoon, for stirring cream; avoid wooden paddles because they are unsanitary.

If properly cooled, and kept cool, cream will not be soured by a thunderstorm.

Deliver the cream as often as possible; not less than three times a week during hot weather and twice a week in winter.
