

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM MANY STATES

Important News Gathered from Abroad for the Benefit of Our Readers.

The finding of twelve loaded revolvers and four sticks of dynamite in the Federal penitentiary yard at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., yesterday probably prevented a wholesale outbreak of Government prisoners.

An Elizabethtown farmer has built a splendid brick mansion for his hogs. He has installed fine waterworks and a bath tub. We wonder if next summer he won't install an electric fan.—Sturgis News Democrat.

When three Mercer county farms sold at $137,3110 and $95 an acre last week it does not justify the prophecy that has continually been made for the last four years "that land is bound to come down".—Herald.

An Indiana hunter was accidentally killed yesterday by his own gun, while in Kentucky one man lost an arm and one man a foot. State Treasurer Farley will next issue a call for $1,250,000 of warrents bearing 4 per cent interest.

No wonder there is no game of consequence in this vicinity. From the moment the game law expired parties from Lexington, Georgetown, Paris Millersburg, Winchester, Ashland and other places, together with all of home talent began a war of extermination of birds and rabbits and kept it up as long as they were to be found.—Owingsville News.

The farmers of Pulaski county are progressing every day. Most all the leading farmers who have not put in silos are going to do next spring. Mr. H. Sigall says that he has succeeded in getting several of the leading farmers in his section interested, and that next summer he expects to see at least four go up in this community.—Somerset Times.

Have a good time boys as long as the prospect of the "pie" is fine. We ate a little and enjoyed it hugely—but remember that four years is not long, the cost of living in Frankfort is high, contributions are expected and all in all, the fellows who secure the jobs are not lucky if they fail to lay up a little for the rainy days that are sure to come. Nine out of ten come away with less than they brought in the four year is practically wasted.—Harrodsberg Republican.

Something novel in the way of a team of dumb brutes was seen on our street one day last week. The team belonged to Swell Phillip and was made up as follows: Two heifer which would weigh 800 pounds each worked under a yoke at the wheels. Working before them was Jack and Jennet of small variety of animals of this character. They were drawing about one half cord of wood with perfect ease, and their steady work demeanor was good as team training can produce. Quite a number of kodaks were busy while they were passing through the streets. Mr. Phillips seemed much attached to his team, and claimed that he makes good money hauling with it.

A drove of one thousand turkeys passed through the streets one day last week on the way to the local slaughter pens. They were killed and shipped to Eastern markets. They were brought in from the vicinity of High Bridge and driven to Georgetown. Turkeys driven like hogs on the public roads would be a novelty in some sections of the country.—Georgetown Times.

There is a whole lot of difference in the price of quinine now and fifty years ago. Then it sold for five dollars and sometimes more per ounce. Now it can be bought for one-tenth of that amount. The $5 quinine was taken in syrup, baked apples, slippery elm, or anything that would cover up the stuff and partly disguise the taste. Now it is taken in capsules that are so slick and tasteless that when they get into the mouth they go down like greased lightning.—Hastler.

Among the enterprising farmers of this county, who are beginning to take hold of the grubbing-hoe and the plow-handle in good earnest is Rufus Hill, who owns what is known as the Boone Angel farm near the mouth of Hell Creek. He was in to see us the other day and brought with him a large ear of corn which had eight smaller ears growing around it, attached to it at the stem end and spreading around it like an open umbrella. No one who has seen it, ever saw anything like it before, and it is a curiosity to say the least of it. Mr. Hill has the largest chestnut orchard in the country, perhaps; having eight acres in his grove with 1,160 trees large and small, on it, and he gathered a little more than thirty and a half bushels of chestnuts from it this year.—Beattyville Enterprise.

No false pretense has marked the career of Ely's cream Balm. Being entirely harmless, it is not like the catarrh snuffs and powders for minds shattered by cocaine. The great virtue of Ely's Cream Balm is that it speedily and completely overcomes nasal catarrh and hay fever. Back of this statement is the testimony of thousands and reputation of many years success. All druggists, 50c, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

WEST VIRGINIA NEIGHBORS.

NEWS FROM COUNTIES JUST ACROSS THE RIVER IN WEST VIRGINIA.

West Virginia's Cattle and Hogs.
Nearly sixteen million dollars is the value of the cattle owned in West Virginia on April 15, 1910, according to statistics given out recently by the census bureau. Of the 615,527 head of cattle in West Virginia on April 15 the census bureau states that 338,020 were dairy cows; 59,701 were calves, and the remaining 319,387 came under the head of "and others." This puts West Virginia in the beef raising class rather than the dairy class, so far as it can be classed with either. Standing thirty-fourth in the value of its cattle, West Virginia ranks better as a producer of swine, standing twenty-seventh in the value of its hogs, according to figures recently given out by the census bureau. However the number of swine reported was but 326,445, valued at $2,076,915, small figures compared with the number and value of cattle but giving the State a higher relative rank in swine than in cattle at that.

A Toast to West Virginia.
Because of her vast and various natural resources, West Virginia is the richest piece of territory in proportion to its size on the face of the globe, not excepting the diamond district of Africa or the gold of the Golden West. And yet West Virginia is often characterized as a little Mountain State. True, geographically, West Virginia is comparatively small in proportion to the great Empire State. But West Virginia with her 10,000 square miles of pathless wilderness, with her 24,600 square miles of external territory; with her 1,250,000 population of peevish human souls; with her oceans of oil, her caves of gas, and her immortal mountains of earth and stone and ore; with her millions and millions of tons of carbon, coke and coal; with kingdom of commerce and trade, wedded to the industry, ingenuity and genius of her matchless American people, has it last become the greatest industrial center beneath the American flag. All her fortune, fame and power are the fragrant fruit and power of her honest working people's sacred thought.

A Great Coal State.
If one can imagine riding for three months continuously, day and night, on a train making 40 miles an hour and passing all that time on a train of largest steel cars loaded with West Virginia coal he can get the idea of the almost inconceivable quantity of coal which has been mined in West Virginia since the formation of the state in 1863.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 20.—The state of West Virginia was enriched today to the extent of $1,670,000 by the inheritance tax received from the estate of the late James Prichard of Wayne county. The appraised value of the estate was $111,000, all except $5,300 being located in this state, that located outside of the state not being subject to an inheritance tax. The entire estate was left to wife, Mrs. Henrietta Prichard.

The drillers in drilling through the Big Lime sand in the Wayne well Tuesday struck a good supply of gas, sufficient it is said to furnish the town. The well will be drilled deeper, according to reports received at this office.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

COLUMN DEDICATED TO TIERD MOTHERS AS THEY JOIN THE HOME CIRCLE.

The generous and polite man has a pleasant recognition and cheerful word for all he meets. He scatters sunbeams wherever he goes. He makes the path of others with smiles. He makes society men genial and the world delightful to those who else would find them cold, selfish and forbidding. And what he gives is but a tithe of what he receives. Be sociable, then, wherever you go, and wrap your words in tones that are sweet and a spirit that is genial.

A man who has no enemies is seldom good for anything; he is made of that kind of material which is so easily worked that everyone has a hand in it. A sterling character is one who thinks for himself, and speaks what he thinks; he is always sure to have enemies. They are as necessary to him as fresh air; they keep him alive and active. A celebrated character who was surrounded by enemies used to remark: "They are sparks which, if you do not blow will go out of themselves."

Thousands of young men who have comfortable homes—whose parents are willing to supply them with books and papers, instead of availing themselves of these advantages, spend their long evenings either in idle lounging around corners, or in company with frivolous associates male or female. Thus, winter after winter passes away, each bringing them nearer to the age of manhood, but not fitting them for the proper discharge of their duties that a full manhood requires. They enter upon the busy stage of life with none of those safeguards which a cultivated intellect throws around its possessor.

It is the folly—and nothing less than folly—that characterizes the conduct of far too many parents in regard to their children, and especially their daughters, who, in some weak moment have behaved indiscreetly and possibly shamefully. A child is a child, and no act of a parent can make it otherwise. Disinheritance, anger, unkindness and abuse only aggravate such matters, and what might have been kept a private family sorrow, becomes a public scandal, so crushing the helpless victim that not even a whole life time of remorse and repentance can succeed in washing out the blot on her reputation.

Spend some of your evenings at home with your wife and children. If you have an amiable, gentle wife surely your home must be a pleasant one, but if from increasing cares or other reasons, she has grown fretful or sullen who knows but a little more attention or kindness on your part might do a great deal towards her return of the am-

MRS. LARAMORE TELLS TROUBLES

Lady In Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia. I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn. I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Theford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress. I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned. I speak a good word for Theford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity." If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Theford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver. It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

lidity you so much admired in her girlhood. If you would stay at home oftener evenings treating her with something of the old tenderness making her believe at least, that you are not wholly indifferent to her happiness, you would soon see a change for the better in your household.

As birds sing oftener on lowly roofs than palace domes, and roses love best to climb over lowly window sills and cottage eaves, so to the poor God's blessings come, freighted with dearest wealth; and to the humble heart His love is sweetest. They who have oftener bowed to earth with deep affection are nearest heaven; and as he rose never gives forth all its sweetness until it is crushed, so human hearts need the good Father's hand to press the blossoms of purity, and of love and faith, that He may not have imparted to them their heavenly fragrance in vain.

Many a child goes astray, simply because home lacks sunshine. Many a wife esteems death her best friend because he who swore before God to "love, honor and cherish" has forgotten his vows.

Why not be polite at home? Why not use freely the golden coin of courtesy? How sweet they sound, those little words "thank you," or "you are very kind." Doubtless, freshly sweet, from the lips we love, when heart smiles make the eyes sparkle with the clear light of affection.

Don't harp on past troubles. When we see the pale nervous woman in the midst of her friends preferring to entertain them with a list of racking pains she has suffered to a saunter in God's free air and sunshine, we cannot wonder that the rose returns not to her blanched cheek.

Boys and girls, what is it if you can never catch, though you chase after it on the wings of the wind? You can never catch the word that has left your lips. Once spoken it is out of your reach; do your best you can never recall it. Therefore, take care what you say. Never speak an unkind word, an impure word or a profane word.

In almost every neighborhood is not children whose papa is a millionaire? Socially are over. They are usually spoken of as invalids, and so accustomed are we to their being sick that we may often times seem indifferent to their sufferings and confinement. But to them it never grows old, and much is the good that we can do, right here. Many and varied are the ways we can help them these unfortunate ones. In fact, anything which we may do for them in love, will be appreciated and will be seed sown in good ground. A bunch of flowers, a new book or magazine, a dainty morsel from your table, all of these things are trifles, but may brighten up their dreary lives; and then we should visit them, or if they live at a distance we should write them a tender, sympathetic, though cheerful letter.

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by all dealers.
