Several attended prayer meeting last Saturday night, at this place.
Mr. and Mrs. Grant Roberts wore Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Haws at Madge.
Mr. and Mrs. John Branham were calling on the Misses Muncy, Sunday.
Estu Terry visited Laura Carter Sunday.
Irene Pickrel and Marie Bradley were out horseback riding Sunday afternoon.
Leo Branham still makes his usual calls at J. M. Cyrus.
Maitho Roberts, Panna Shelda and Oada Diamond attended the Lecture at Mt. Pleasant Sunday night.
L. E. Wallace was surveying in Boyd Co. last week.
Arnold Bowe of Busseyville was at this place Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Muncy were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Wellman, Sunday afternoon.
Remember our Sunday School and also our prayer meeting.

A CHILD HATES OIL, CALOMEL, PILLS FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" IF CROSS, SICK, FEVERISH CONSTIPATED.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.
With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.
If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy they know children love to take it; that is never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

LEDOCIO
In memory of John J. Swetnam, whose death occurred in February, it was very much of a shock to the writer to hear of his death. While at Jenkins we lived under the same roof with Mr. Swetnam; I think he was a true Christian. He was good to attend church and Sunday School, and all the time we were there I never saw him

A FEW FACTS ABOUT COUGHS AND COLDS THE PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW

Whether this Cold will prove a simple catarrh of the nose and throat or but short duration and mild character; whether dread Pneumonia, with its sharp and fatal sting, shall be the sequence; or whether the blighting blast of the White Plague shall sit spectre-like upon its victim no one can foretell; hence the great importance of treating all colds, however mild, promptly and energetically. In urban populations the services of a skilled physician is always within call, but in rural districts, distance and inclement weather often act together to forestall the doctor's timely aid, so that valuable time is in this way lost. It was particularly for this latter class of sufferers that MEINHARDT'S GERMAN COUGH REMEDY was invented. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

angry. He was industrious and honest in all of his dealings. We will never forget the kindness shown to us all by him. For some time we made it a practice to go to the neighbors homes and hold pray meetings and I remember so well being in Mr. Swetnam's home one Saturday afternoon when Bro. Crow conducted the meeting and after a few prayers were offered the services were turned into a testimonial or speaking meeting. Mr. Swetnam asked the Christians to pray for his children that they might make a home in heaven. Will say to Mrs. Swetnam and children, live to meet him, for he will be one of the number that will be around the throne of our God.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR
FREE FROM DANDRUFF

SAVE YOUR HAIR! DOUBLE ITS BEAUTY IN A FEW MOMENTS—TRY THIS!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.
Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.
If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.
We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?

GRIFFITH CREEK

Measles and mowing is all the go, too numerous to mention individually. All our mowing is local except W. G. Pennington who is mowing here from Ashland and George Pope who comes from Martin Co.
Harvey Belcher is very sick from la-grippe.
C. Victor Back is home from the Solway Plant, Ashland, sick.
William Williamson is making up all the available timber on the Price tract into Crossties.
The C. & O. is attending the Chapman sidetrack. The Steam shovel has been here for some time and will have its work over in two days.
The big "breakdown" in the narrows east of Gallip is about under control after several days and nights of continual efforts of a large force of men, work train and steam shovel.
Ed Lambert, of Donithan, was a caller here Sunday.
Sam McHurry has been appointed overseen of the Patton land and has moved into what is known as the Hatfield house.
Tom Scarberry is in a serious condition with rheumatism.
Mrs. Martha Boyd is convalescent from Pneumonia.
Walker Mitchell and wife have a fine ten pound girl at their home.
Curtis, son of James Johnson, is very low with lung trouble.
A three weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Williamson died one day last week.
The heavy rains for the past few days have stopped a lot of big garden talk.
Jack Salyer has moved to the Comp-ton place on three miles. The family lived near Louisa.

A Business Affair

It Was Also an Affair of the Heart

By ANDREW B. CARLISLE

When Chandler came home from college his uncle told him that he had a special plan for him. Chandler was an orphan who had inherited a large estate, and his uncle was his guardian and would be for a few months, when the heir would come of age. A widow of the name of Atherton had bought some contiguous property that Chandler had long desired. She was forty years of age, but Chandler's guardian proposed that he should marry her. The benefit to his estate would be considerable. Chandler said he would look into the matter and about a week after his return strolled over to pay his respects to his new neighbor.

It was a hot morning, and Chandler, in a thin white flannel suit and a straw hat, entered the gate of the Atherton grounds and strolled up the walk toward the house. A young girl sat on a rustic bench under a tree reading. It occurred to the visitor that he would go over to where she was sitting and ask if Mrs. Atherton was at home. Besides, he might elicit some preliminary information about the widow. Leaving the walk, he approached the girl. She was pretty, but so plainly dressed that Chandler was in doubt as to her position. However, he lifted his hat politely and asked:

"Beg pardon, but can you tell me if Mrs. Atherton is at home?"
"Not this morning. She has gone to the city."
"Um! Ah! I'm sorry to miss her. Hearing that I had a new neighbor, I came over to call upon her."
"It's very hot, and you look tired. Won't you rest yourself?" The girl moved to one end of the bench that he might occupy the other.

"Thank you very much," he replied, seating himself.
This was all very fortunate. He would have an opportunity to chat about the widow.

"Perhaps you will be good enough to say to Mrs. Atherton on her return that Mr. Herbert Chandler, a neighbor, called to pay his respects."
"Mr. Bussing's nephew?"
"Yes."

"Mr. Bussing has spoken to Mrs. Atherton about you. He said he thought you would call."

"Um! Are you a relative of Mrs. Atherton?"
"I may say that I am, for my mother and Mrs. Atherton are as closely allied as if they were one person."
"And you are?"
"Mrs. Atherton's secretary."
"Indeed?"
"And her amanuensis. She writes, you know."

"I was not aware of that. I presume that her absence gives you leisure to enjoy yourself out in this pleasant nook reading."

"It does."
"Is Mrs. Atherton an elderly or a young woman?"
"Between forty and forty-five."
"I hear she is very handsome and appears far younger than that."
He had heard so such thing. He was working the pump handle. The girl smiled.

"Something amuses you," he added soberly.

"Excuse me. I may as well confess that I know your errand. I heard Mrs. Atherton and your guardian uncle talking over the union of the two estates. It is quite natural that you should be interested in learning something about her, especially what you have just referred to, since she is so much older than you."

Chandler drew within himself. "How did it happen," he said coldly, "that you overheard?"
"Oh, I was not eavesdropping! Besides, Mrs. Atherton told me all about the matter as soon as my uncle had departed."

"May I ask if she was favorably disposed toward the plan?"
"She was very much interested in the matter of uniting the two properties. She said it would very much enhance the value of both."
"But marrying a man younger than herself?"
"All that part of it you must get from her." This was said in a tone that indicated she had not relished the implied charge of eavesdropping.

"I beg pardon. I should not have expected you to reveal what is of necessity a confidence. Since we have progressed so far in discussing the matter may I ask—just an opinion, you know—what you would think of such a match?"
"If Oh, I wouldn't think of giving an opinion on a matter that concerns you and Mrs. Atherton."
"You consider it very mercenary, I suppose."

"I certainly would unless you came to love each other."
In this vein they chatted on for some time, when Chandler arose.

"I presume," he said, "that you will inform Mrs. Atherton of this meeting and so much of what has passed between us as you think will interest her."
"If you desire it I shall consider the meeting and all that has been said confidential."

"As you like," he replied. "Nothing has been said that Mrs. Atherton should not hear."
"I may tell her that you will call again, I suppose?"
"Please do so. I will come in a few days."
"She will naturally be interested to see you."

Chandler walked away, perhaps better pleased with his visit than if he had seen the lady he had called on. Mrs. Atherton's secretary was not only attractive in appearance, but had a delicate sense of what was not proper for her to say in such a conversation. Chandler was a bit dissatisfied with himself for having implied that she had been an eavesdropper. He wished for an opportunity to remove any unpleasant impression that his mistake might have occasioned.

When he called again he did not acknowledge to himself that he would like to have another tete-a-tete with the secretary. He was received by her with a message from Mrs. Atherton that she was indisposed and begged him to excuse her.

"Mrs. Atherton has especially charged me to say to you," she added, "that you are not to regard adversely her not seeing you today and that she hopes you will come again soon. She expects to be presentable within a few days."

Chandler did not hurry away. He called at 5 o'clock, and at 6 he was still occupied with Mrs. Atherton's secretary. Then the butler came in with an invitation for him to remain for dinner. Mrs. Atherton herself could not be present, but her secretary would do the honors for her. Chandler accepted the invitation with alacrity. He did not leave the house until 11 o'clock that night.

Fate seemed to be against Chandler meeting the widow. The next time he called she had again gone to the city, and the next after that she had had a fall that had necessitated her remaining in bed for a few days. Chandler was enjoying so well his visits with the secretary that he didn't care if the mistress remained bedridden for the rest of her days. Then one day when he called he received a message from the lady through her secretary that she had been considering the matter of joining the estates by their marriage and had come to the conclusion that the difference in their ages would be altogether too great an objection.

On receipt of this communication Chandler stood looking very disconsolate.

"I am sorry for your disappointment," said the secretary.
"It isn't that," replied Chandler dolefully.

"Not that? Then what is it?"
"Why, I have no excuse to come here any more."
"And why should you come when the object of your coming has ceased to exist?"
"How am I going to get on without seeing you?"

To this the only reply was a dropping of the girl's eyes to the floor.
"I have a plan," said Chandler.
"Since I can't marry the mistress I'll make a proposition to the secretary. It is not to unite two estates, but two hearts."

She looked up at him with a charming expression.
"Sit down," she said, "and I'll tell you a story. Your uncle and Mrs. Atherton were very anxious to unite these estates, as you know. Neither of them had any idea of a marriage between you and her. And now I have a confession to make. I am more than Mrs. Atherton's secretary; I am her daughter. Your uncle suggested to mother that the property be united by a marriage between you and me. But such proposals usually miscarry. Their plan was to bring you and me together, you thinking that you were opening negotiations to marry mother. They were obliged to let me into the secret. I agreed to carry out their plan—that is well, provided I liked you."

"And you do, don't you?" said Chandler in a pleasing tone.
"Well, so-so," was the answer.
"Then the plan is to be carried out?"
"What plan?"
"Why, the one you have just referred to."

"Oh! I meant the plan of making you think you were opening negotiations to marry mother."
"Oh!"
"That's all I had to do with it."
"I think you had a great deal more to do with it."
"I don't see what."
"Well, while you have been receiving me in place of your mother you have got me used to being with you. Besides, think how advantageous it will be to unite the estates."
"I care nothing about the estates."
"Or me?"
"I didn't say that, but I shall not marry for the purpose of uniting two properties."

"Then will you marry for the purpose of uniting two hearts?"
"I must be satisfied that such a union will be effected."
"I can answer for myself, but not for you. I love you dearly, and I wish you to be my wife."
"I will be your betrothed on trial. If I see that our union is to be a financial one I will break the engagement."
Such was the practical disposal of the subject. Chandler went from her to his uncle.

"Uncle," he said, "the properties will be united. Why didn't you introduce me to Miss Atherton in the first place?"
"Because when I was a young man I was introduced to a girl whom it seemed advisable I should marry. I took a violent dislike to her, and simply, I have since believed, because I felt obliged to love her. I have had cause to regret the failure of that match."

The union of hearts was complete, and the union of the estates followed.

LACONIA SURVIVORS LANDED MINUS ONE

Twenty Members of the Crew Are Americans.

London, Feb. 27.—It has not yet been definitely determined whether the Laconia disaster was attended with the loss of life. The Cunard liner Laconia was bound from New York for Liverpool with six American passengers on board and was torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast.

A dispatch from Wesley Frost, the American consul at Queenstown, asserted that 278 survivors had been landed at Queenstown, and that one person was dead. Some were missing, he added.

According to a dispatch from Liverpool the Cunard company announces there is reason to believe that all on board the Laconia were saved. There were between 200 and 220 members of the crew and seventy to eighty passengers, according to this report. Twenty members of the crew were Americans.

SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With Theford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whittaker, of this place, "with sick headaches, and stomach trouble."

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Theford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught.

Theford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.
