Cochran's Verdict Affirmed by U. S. Appellate Court

The United States circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati in the case of Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Company versus the Webb heirs on Wednesday affirmed a decree rendered by Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the United States district court, entered about one year ago, involving the title to 400 acres of choicest Elkhorn by-product coal on Beaver creek in Floyd county.

This litigation has been in state and federal courts for nine years and has been watched with great interest throughout the entire Big Sandy valley coal section of Kentucky on account of the importance of the question involved as affecting titles as coal properties.

The property involved belonged to six heirs of A. P. Webb. The coal company desiring to acquire the title there to make contract with the guardian of these heirs, under which she agreed to sell the coal to the coal company at the price of $10 per acre and to take the necessary legal proceedings to have the property sold under judgment of the court.

The sale took place and the coal company became the purchaser at the price agreed upon. Upon appeal of the Kentucky court of appeals it was decided that the judgment was erroneous and it was reversed.

In the case just decided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals it was charged by the Webb heirs, and according to the finding of the court sustained by proof, that the coal company was not a bona fide purchaser and agents it conducted the original case in which sale of the property was sought and was therefore the moving force and effective cause which produced the erroneous judgment.

Under the order of the court these infant children are restored to the possession of the coal which for several years has been operated by a large mining company.

Body of Eph Boggs to Arrive in Mingo

Until there is reliable information that the body of Eph Boggs will arrive here this week definite arrangements for the funeral of the first Mingo county boy who lost his life in the World war will not be completed.

However, it is now expected that the funeral will be held at Matewan Sunday. As previously announced, John L. Chafin and E. D. Strohecker compose the committee on arrangements representing the local Legion post, which was named in honor of the hero Boggs.

The body is one of many that arrived recently in Hoboken from France. Eph Boggs was a son of J. M. Boggs the present mayor of Matewan. He was born in Carter county, Ky., on February 22, 1893, but the family moved to this county when he was a small child. In 1914, the year the war started, but three years before Uncle Sam became a participant, young Boggs enlisted in the regular army. As a result he was a member of the First division which crossed the Atlantic a few months after war was declared against the central empires by the United States.

Boggs was killed in action on March 3, 1918, nine days after his 25th birthday. It is presumed that C. P. Boggs, a brother, also made the supreme sacrifice. He was reported missing in action and no tidings ever came of the fate that befell him.

Still another patriotic boy left the Boggs home to engage in the great conflict. That was "Dutch" Boggs, now at Matewan. Two other brothers, Clayton and Everett, both of Matewan and four sisters, namely, Mrs. Lizzie Deskins, of Nolan; Mrs. Lulu Bodenheimer of Matewan; Mrs. Hattie Rogers of Freeburn, and Mrs. Mary Rogers of Akron, O., survive.—Williamson News.

Arrival of Heroes Who Died on Field of Battle Honored

New York, April 4.—Arrival of the last of America's 70,000 war dead was commemorated in Brooklyn.

One body, that of Private Charles W. Graves, of Rome Ga., symbolized for the time, the bodies of the 1,965 soldiers which were returned from France last week on the United States troop ship Cambrai.

Amid the hushed vastness of an army pier, his 1,964 silent comrades, in long, unbroken ranks of flag-draped caskets maintained the bivouac of the dead, while sorrowing thousands, of high and low degree, paid the last respect of a grateful nation.

His body, enthroned on a gun caisson and drawn by six horses, had been borne through the ranks of silent multitudes. Stern Generals had saluted the flag which draped him. Guns had boomed in his honor, statesmen had eulogized his deeds, mothers had wept over him and "taps" the soldier's farewell, had given him Godspeed.

The body of Private Graves had been chosen to receive the honors of the day, because of the 1,965 aboard the troopship he was the last to be taken from shipboard and placed on his native soil.

Teachers Seeking Certificates Must go to High School

Frankfort, Ky., March 28.—After July 1 of this year all applicants for teachers' certificates will have to have one year of high school training or its equivalent and five weeks of professional training. In view of this provision of the new school law Superintendent of Public Instruction George Colvin is calling the attention of school superintendents to the two examinations for teacher's certificates to be held before this provision of the law goes into effect, the first on May 19 and 20 and the second on June 16 and 17.

County teacher training schools have been established primarily to enable teachers to meet these requirements. Any teacher can secure high school and professional credits by attending the county teacher training schools.

They can obtain the same credits by attending the summer session of any teacher training institution supported or recognized by the State.

In addition to the credits that may be secured by attending county training schools, teachers may also increase their salary as the salary schedules for this year will provide, as last year, for an increase of salary for all those who do the required work in any summer school of six weeks length, supported or recognized by the State.
