

CALL TO ALL DEMOCRATS

BLEASE ASKS ALL TO REGISTER

Governor Says He Will Fire Any Registration Boards Refusing to Register White Men.

Columbia Special to Charleston News and Courier, June 14.—A call to all Democratic voters to get registration certificates and thus qualify themselves to vote in any general election is contained in an address to the people issued today by Gov. Cole L. Blease. The governor says that he has information that an attempt to have Congress pass restrictions to the effect that only those qualified to vote in a general election can participate in any preferential primary for United States senator and congressmen will be made since the ratification of the 17th amendment to the federal constitution providing for election of senators by direct vote of the people.

APPEAL TO WHITE VOTERS.

"To the Democratic Voters of South Carolina: I desire to call your attention to the fact that the amendment to the constitution of the United States providing for the direct election of United States senators by the people has been ratified by a sufficient number of states to put the amendment into effect, and that this ratification has been announced by Hon. William J. Bryan, secretary of state of the United States.

"Although South Carolina has not ratified this amendment, yet under the constitution of the United States I suppose she will be bound by it. It is now rumored that certain South Carolinians—some native born and some by adoption without the state's consent—I regret they are South Carolinians—are endeavoring to have Congress place a provision in a law to be passed under the new amendment to the effect that in those states in which a primary is held by a party for its candidate, no person shall be allowed to vote in said primary except he be qualified to vote in the general election. This effort is being made in an underhanded manner. I now give you notice that it is being made, in order that you may go to your supervisors of registration and get your registration certificates and be fully prepared to protect yourselves when the time comes.

The books of the supervisors of registration should be open on the first Monday of each month at your county seats, and your supervisors of registration should make proper arrangements to see that every man who is entitled to be registered is registered. The respective executive committees of each Democratic club should see that every member of every club has his name upon the registration books. No white man in the state should wait for somebody else to attend to it for him, but should get his certificate himself and be ready for the fray when it comes.

"I do not believe that your legislature is going to place any such restrictions upon your state primary, nor do I believe that your state convention will place any such restrictions around your state primary, but we can not tell what effect these underground, stab-in-the-back, cheap politicians may bring about in Washington, in order to deprive a certain element of the white people of the South and of our state of participating in the primary, particularly in South Carolina, because they have heretofore been defeated or now see defeat staring them in the face.

"I feel that it is proper that warning should be given you, and that it is my duty as your governor to give it, and I now do so. I can only give the warning, as I feel it is my duty to do. If you fail to heed it and find yourself deprived of the right of suffrage, you will have no one to blame but yourselves. Go to the supervisors of registration. If they fail to register you, report them to me. If there is any board of registration in the state which refuses to register the white voters I will relieve them from duty and put in a board that will.

"I have sounded the warning. That is all I can do. I beg you to heed it.

"Very respectfully,
"COLE L. BLEASE,
"Governor."

HELEN KELLER OUTDONE.
Wisconsin Girl Worse Afflicted Will be Awarded Graduation Honors.
Delaven, Wis., Dispatch to The Philadelphia Record.

Born deaf, blind and dumb, with the additional handicap of having but one leg, Miss Anna Johnson, Wisconsin's Helen Keller, is looking forward to her graduation next Tuesday from the Wisconsin School for the Deaf.

Crippled from babyhood, and with only one sense, that of touch, to aid her, Miss Johnson entered the school nine years ago, at the age of 13. Up to that time she had received practically no education. During her stay here she was taught to hear, has won high honors in history and literature, has become an accomplished seamstress and wicker basket maker, and has written several papers of great merit on historical subjects.

Her triumph, however, will come next Tuesday, when she will deliver her commencement essay by word of mouth.

MONEY THAT IS A NUISANCE.

Owners Left Gold and Silver With Uncle Sam and Failed to Return.

Washington, June 15.—More than half a century ago Uncle Sam was handed three bags of gold worth about $600; he is still holding them. Some 30 years ago he was handed a bag of valuable silver bullion and the owner has left it with him ever since. This gold and silver has been a great nuisance to the accounting officers of the federal government.

The comptroller of the treasury has just decided that to convert it into the treasury to the credit of the men who presented it would require an act of Congress.

In 1856 H. J. Pteers brought $127,857 worth of gold bullion to the San Francisco mint; in 1858, Joseph Baker presented $333,27, and in 1869, J. M. Sawyer handed over $156,96. They never returned.

In 1882 Thomas F. Davis brought 180,90 ounces of silver bullion to the New York assay office to be made into fine silver bars, and has not been seen since.

DANIELS DELIVERS FLAG DRY ADDRESS

Holds Up New England's Love of Country and Historic Deeds in Celebration at Boston.

Boston, June 14.—New England's love of country, finding expression not only in patriotic deeds but in epics making the deeds part of the nation's written history, was held up as a model to the rest of America in a flag day address here today by Secretary Daniels of the navy department.

"Paul Revere saw the light in the old South Church yonder," said the secretary, "and sprang into the saddle for his famous ride; and Longfellow has not allowed the world to forget it. Children, not only New England children, but children of the South and West, recite the poem at school and New England has enjoyed a prestige such as no other section of the country has had. Yet there were scores and hundreds of Paul Reeves in the South and in the West equally as brave. Marion and Sumter were as daring as Israel Putnam, and King's Mountain was as glorious as Concord, but you had your Emerson to sing the Concord hymn.

"I once found myself wondering why God had, through the whole history of the earth, saved up the most beautiful of all the flags for our own nation. There is no doubt, viewed from the standpoint of art alone, that the Stars and Stripes is the most exquisite design that ever fluttered in a breeze. The answer is not far to seek. Beyond the Western waters was raised up this giant republic with its kindly message of liberty to all the world for all time. To it was committed this priceless pearl, and it was but fitting that the national emblem should reflect and re-echo something of the value of the gift itself."

The Reports of Crimes.
Newberry Observer.

Some people complain that the newspapers are "filled with reports of crimes." Well, it isn't the newspapers' fault; they are only giving the news which their subscribers are entitled to. They, at least a large portion of them, would much prefer to give only good news, if there were enough to fill the papers—but there isn't.

If you will notice, you will see that much the larger portion of the miscellaneous reading in newspapers in this part of the world is about schools and churches and farming and things of that kind; and many of the papers publish sermons and patriotic and literary addresses, and lots more things of an elevating character; and would gladly publish more. This newspaper, for instance, would like to have one sermon a week, and would consider it a very great kindness if the pastors of the city and the county would send in their manuscripts. Some ministers possibly think it would be egotistical to have their sermons published in a newspaper. Not at all. They want to reach many people as possible. The server would furnish them an audience—not an audience either, but could put what they say before more persons than it would take to fill any five churches in Newberry.

If the Observer contains a good deal about crime it is not by preference, but because it is bound to print the news. We would much prefer to tell of the good that men do than of the evil.

Dirty Teeth.
Monroe Journal.

Is there anything which feels more comfortable at the breakfast hour than a well washed face? A well washed mouth and teeth. Is there anything more impolite than to pick the teeth after meals? Yes, to leave them unpicked or uncleaned.

A Thought For the Week.
Life has four dimensions: depth, breadth, length, and height. Your life is as deep as is your thinking. Your life is as broad as your sympathies. The length of your life is measured not by years, but by deeds. The height of your life is measured by your aspirations.—Dr. J. Herman Randall, at Meredith College commencement.

VETERANS YEARN TO GO

APPROPRIATION IS INADEQUATE

General Teague Has List of Forty-five Confederates Not Provided For.

Columbia State.

According to B. H. Teague, major general, South Carolina division, United Confederate Veterans, 66 veterans, from this State, of the War Between the Sections, who participated in the battle of Gettysburg, will attend the semi-centennial celebration on the battlefield, July 1 to 4.

In a letter to the State, Gen. Teague said that there are many veterans who wish to go to celebration, but that the fund has already been apportioned. He suggests that the people of the State contribute the necessary amount to defray the expenses of all veterans who took part in the battle and who could not be provided for out of the legislative appropriation.

"I was named in the act as the disburser of this fund," says Gen. Teague in his letter to the State. "I have just finished this task and have furnished 64 veterans with money enough to enable them to visit the scene of their heroic deeds on that memorable field. By adding to this fund a small sum put into my hands I have been able to give transportation to two more veterans, making 66 in all who will go free. There are 111 names of veterans on my list still of those who fought in the battle and desire to go along with those favored by the funds. It is a great disappointment to them not to be able to accompany their comrades. The people of the State should contribute the money necessary to pay their way. I would be very willing to disburse it free of charge, as I have done with the legislative fund, accounting for it regularly and placing the record, as will be done with that of the legislative fund, in the hands of the secretary of the historical commission at the state house in Columbia. All such donations should be placed in my hands not later than June 25."

"I wish every veteran in the State could attend this great peace celebration at Gettysburg. It is destined to be one of the most remarkable events in the annals of American history, when the survivors of two mighty contending armies will assemble after 50 years and together fraternize and lay the cornerstone of a great and grand peace monument.

"The great State of Pennsylvania will be the host and Federal and Confederate veterans will be hospitably entertained alike. On this occasion the U. C. V. at large will be represented by Gen. C. Irvine Walker, the South Carolina division by Col. D. K. Henderson and the writer. Representing the state, I met with the commissioners from the other States at Gettysburg in May, last. This commission and other committees were in session for two days, deliberating and planning for the welfare, comfort and pleasure of all who were expected to attend this semi-centennial celebration in July, and I must emphasize the utmost cordiality and courtesy that was shown to each other at this meeting. Particularly were the suggestions and opinions of the members from the Southern States deferentially listened to and in great part adopted.

"The greatest good from this wonderful and eventful celebration will be the cementing of stronger bonds of friendship and good will between the North and South and the eventual blending of the two sections into a harmonious and great American nation."

A Farmer Who Wants the Address of John D. Rockefeller.
In the current issue of Farm and Fireside the editor of that publication prints a letter he has received from a Minnesota farmer who says that he wants to send his boys to college and that he can not afford the expense. He says that he has read in the papers that millionaires give away much money and he thinks one of them might give him a $1,000 to start his boys in college. He adds that he does not know the addresses of these millionaires, so he wants the editor of Farm and Fireside to give him the addresses of Andrew Carnegie, P. A. B. Widener, John D. Rockefeller and others. The editor's comments on this farmer's letter are in part as follows:

"Of course, none of these men would answer a letter from our friend if he should write asking for the thousand dollars.

"But would the thousand dollars do our friend any good? I am absolutely satisfied in my own mind that it would not. What his sons need is not money, but confidence in themselves, and determination to win a college education. Any boy who is ready for college can get through without a cent of monetary aid—if he has nobody to look after but himself.

"I have no personal knowledge of the conditions at the University of Minnesota, but I have no doubt that there are dozens, if not hundreds, of boys working their way through that institution.

"And think of the difference, all through the young man's life between 'J. D. Rockefeller sent me to college' and 'I sent myself.' I want those boys up-in Minnesota to go to college, in the real Minnesota way—Independent, by gracious!"

The Old and the New Monroe Doctrine.

The Atlantic Monthly.

In 1238 we had declared that "with the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered, and shall not interfere" (so runs the original Monroe doctrine.) In 1898 we not only interfered, but actually took away all of Spain's colonies and dependencies, freeing Cuba and retaining for ourselves Porto Rico, Guam, and the Philippines, writes Hiram Bingham.

Without for a moment wishing to enter into a discussion of the wisdom of our actions, I desire to emphasize the tremendous difference between the old and the new Monroe doctrine. This is not a case of theories and arguments, but of deeds. What are the facts?

In 1895 we declare that we are practically sovereign on this continent; in 1898 we take a rich American island from a European power, and in 1902 we go through the form of preventing a South American republic from subduing a revolution in one of her distant provinces, and eventually take a strip of that province because we believe we owe it to the world to build the Panama canal. Again, let it be clear that I am not interested at this point in defending or attacking our actions in any of these cases—I merely desire to state what has happened and to show some of the fruits of the new Monroe doctrine. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

CHICKEN FARMING.

I started out to raise some hens; I first bought wire and made some pens. You need nice pens to make hens thrive; Mine cost me $40.25.

I bought eleven kinds of feed. For fowls a large assortment need, I bought cut bone and grains galore; The bill was $19.84.

A place hens need a chicken shed, A course to sleep and to be fed Mine was a good one through and through. And cost me $60.42.

I wonder if hen farming pays. I've had twelve eggs in sixty days. The bills of course have been immense; The twelve eggs brought me 30 cents. —Judge.
