POETRY.

WAITING. She had gazed from the window long, Down the dim and crowded street; She had listened with ear down-bent To the tread of the passing feet...

They were singing a well-known lay, And yet he tells me more than words the heart; What a woman's lips fear to speak...

What I often think, when I'm waiting here— Watching and waiting alone— What if the world staid away his heart, Which is now my own—my own?

Little she dreams of the loving eyes That are watching her from the door; And how deep, in her husband's heart The love groweth more and more...

MISCELLANEOUS. The Queen or the Last Stroke of Fortune. Twenty years ago an old house was still standing in Cologne, which showed to the street a frontage of five small windows...

The Housewife's Hand-Book.

FURNITURE.—Bedsteads should be taken apart at least at the fall cleaning, washed thoroughly in the crevices subject to the attacks of bugs...

What a woman's lips fear to speak. 'I love him! I love him!' she whispers low! 'He is all the world to me! But, ah! husband mine, thou must never know How this frail heart worships thee.'

What I often think, when I'm waiting here— Watching and waiting alone— What if the world staid away his heart, Which is now my own—my own?

ALABASTER should be washed with a brush thoroughly with aqua fortis in clear water.—(an ounce to a half a pint)—then rinsed in cold water and set in the sun to dry.

UNVARNISHED MAHOAGNY, or any other furniture wood, may be polished several ways, and by frequent rubbing be kept very nice.

PICTURE FRAMES, gilt ornaments, &c., and the glass over pictures and engravings, should be cleaned with whiting as directed in previous receipts for cleaning glass.

AN INDIGNANT SOLDIER.—A soldier in hospital in Resaca (Ga.) writes to a Western paper: "I see my name reported in the list of deaths at this hospital. I knew it was a lie as soon as I saw it. Hereafter when you hear of my death, write me and find out if it is so before publishing it."

FATHER AND SON.—The case of a man not setting eyes on his own son until he was fifty years old is probably without parallel. The story is told by Leslie in his agreeable "Recollections of West," the painter's father.

Wix should a little man beware of marrying a bouncing widow? Because he might be called the widow's mate.

An Honest Deacon.

Deacon N. was an honest old clogger, a kind neighbor, and a good christian, believing in the Presbyterian creed to the fullest extent; but lackaday! the deacon would get exceedingly "mellow," and almost every Sunday, at dinner, he would indulge in his favorite cider brandy...

Modern Economy of Time.

The Scientific American thus shows how time has been economized by the application of machinery. One man can spin more cotton yarn than four hundred men could have done in the same time in 1796...

One man can spin more cotton yarn than four hundred men could have done in the same time in 1796, when Arkwright took out the first patent. One man can make as much flour now in one day as a hundred and fifty could a century ago...

It now requires only as many days to refine sugar, as it did months thirty years ago. It once required six months to put the quicksilver on a glass; now it needs only forty minutes...

A first class iron clad frigate engine will do as much work in a day as 42,000 horses. COUNTERFEITS.—We caution our readers to be on their guard against an emission of spurious fifty cent notes (the new plate) which has been put in circulation...

They can be readily detected. They are an eighth of an inch shorter than the genuine; the words "fifty cents," which surmount the head of Washington, are very pale and indistinct in the counterfeit, while the letters are very brisk and distinct in the genuine...

The assault was followed by a heavy fire of artillery, under which the position was fortified and is now safe. Our cavalry is across Noonday Creek, on our left, and the Brigade of the Twenty-third Corps is across Moses Creek, on the right; but the rebel left is behind a swamp and the rains prevent any advance...

General Sigel reports from Martinsburg to-day, that "there is no truth in the statement in the Philadelphia Inquirer of the 21st, in relation to a raid of Mosely. Winchester is not occupied by the enemy, nor are the telegraph wires cut between this place and Harper's Ferry."

No military intelligence from any other quarter has been received to-day by this Department. E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War. THE LATEST. The latest news from the Army of the Potomac is to 5 o'clock Wednesday the 22d inst. A despatch received through the Associated Press, reports that artillery firing on the right, and picket skirmishing at various points, occupied the whole of Tuesday, resulting in the wounding of a few men, but causing no change in the position...

It is stated that whisky is heretofore to be a permanent item in the army rations. This is deemed wise by the surgeons. General Hunter captured Major Faulkner, son of Minister Faulkner, and nephew of Gen. Hunter, at Staunton, Virginia.

A supply of Magistrates' and Constables Blanks—Deeds and Declarations, &c., always on hand.

fire having been also opened upon them by four gunboats. At seven o'clock the Confederates succeeded in planting a battery of three guns and returned the fire upon the gunboats and land forces, which was kept up until four o'clock in the afternoon. Their loss was comparatively heavy, whilst that of the Union troops was only three wounded—one mortally. At five o'clock General Sheridan's entire command arrived, and the next morning (Tuesday) there was some skirmishing among the pickets, and it was expected there would be an engagement.

Thus is Life. We may be sure, if we die to-day the sun will shine as brightly and the birds will sing as sweetly to-morrow. Business will not be suspended for a moment, and the great mass will not bestow a thought to our memories. "Is he dead?" will be the solemn inquiry of a few, as they pass by their work. But no one will miss us except our immediate connections; and in a short time they will forget us, and laugh as merrily as when we sat beside them. Thus shall we all, now active in life, pass away. Our children crowd close behind us, and they will soon be grown. In a few years not a living being can say, "I remember him." We lived in another age, and did business with those who slumber in the tomb—Thus is life. How rapidly it passes! Oh, blessed are they who are held in everlasting remembrance!

Foolish Pride. We have often heard a half grown-up boy say pettishly to his mother, "I don't like to be seen carrying a big bundle through the streets." But true pride is ashamed of such littleness of mind. Mr. Astor, the wealthy millionaire of N. Y., was reluctant to sell some goods to a young man, except for cash. The young man paid for them and took them on his back to carry them off. Mr. Astor looked in surprise; but before the young man, who was a merchant, had gone many steps, he called him back, saying, "You may buy on credit to any amount. I can trust you, sir. A man who is not ashamed to do his own work is sure to succeed." Here is a good lesson of false pride.

Modern Economy of Time. The Scientific American thus shows how time has been economized by the application of machinery. One man can spin more cotton yarn than four hundred men could have done in the same time in 1796, when Arkwright took out the first patent. One man can make as much flour now in one day as a hundred and fifty could a century ago. It now requires only as many days to refine sugar, as it did months thirty years ago. It once required six months to put the quicksilver on a glass; now it needs only forty minutes. A first class iron clad frigate engine will do as much work in a day as 42,000 horses.

COUNTERFEITS.—We caution our readers to be on their guard against an emission of spurious fifty cent notes (the new plate) which has been put in circulation. They can be readily detected. They are an eighth of an inch shorter than the genuine; the words "fifty cents," which surmount the head of Washington, are very pale and indistinct in the counterfeit, while the letters are very brisk and distinct in the genuine. The bronze back around the head in the counterfeit can hardly be seen, while the genuine is a deep color. The spurious, though indistinct in all its outlines, is darker than the original.

A terrific tornado passed over Penn Yan, New York on the 15th, prostrating several houses and barns. We may glean knowledge by reading, but the chaff must be separated from the wheat by thinking. Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much—wisdom is humble that he knows no more. Virtue is made for difficulties, and grows stronger and brighter for such trials.

A national life and fire-insurance company has been organized for the benefit of the army. Gen. Scott has taken up his residence for the summer at West Point, N. York. Three regiments have now been organized in Philadelphia to serve in this war for one hundred days. The authorities of Chicago have agreed to establish a fire alarm and water telegraph, at a cost of $100,000. Gen. Kilpatrick was in Trenton, N. J., on Tuesday. He is recovering from his recent wound, but is still lame.

It is stated that whisky is heretofore to be a permanent item in the army rations. This is deemed wise by the surgeons. General Hunter captured Major Faulkner, son of Minister Faulkner, and nephew of Gen. Hunter, at Staunton, Virginia.
