A PLEASANT OCCASION.

The Local Lumber Dealers' Association Tenders John G. Blake's "Snow Drift" Quartet a Banquet at the Bates House.

The local Lumber Dealers' Association tendered a banquet to John G. Blake's "Snow Drift" quartet at the Bates House last evening. About sixty members of the association, including the President, Charles C. Eden, and the above-mentioned quartet, which is composed of J. G. Blake, D. Wolf, E. J. Hoover and Lon W. Neely, were in attendance.

All of these persons surrounded a large table covered with a snow-white cloth graining with arabesques, until nearly 10 o'clock, the banquet beginning at 8. After some very excellent music by the quartet, Mr. D. Wolf was called upon for a speech, and he responded in a very able manner, making reference to the recent trip into the Michigan pines, and dwelling at length upon the sad circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Basil McKain, who departed on that expedition alive and well and in good spirits, but was brought back dead. At the conclusion of Mr. Frazier's remarks on this painful subject one of the waiters wheeled into the room a large and elegant arm chair, this ornamental as well as useful piece of furniture he presented to Mr. John G. Blake on behalf of the Indianapolis Lumber Dealers' Association. "It is our wish and prayer that your sunny face may never become clouded, and that you may live many years to occupy this token of our esteem and regard," said Mr. Frazier, in conclusion. Mr. Blake made a few appropriate remarks thanking the lumber dealers for their kindness, after which there was some more singing. Speeches were then made by C. C. Foster, George S. Breonant and others. The latter referred particularly to Mr. Blake in his speech, saying that it was with no small degree of pleasure that he remembered the eminent services rendered by that gentleman on the above mentioned trip. Mr. Blake, he said, had proved himself a philosopher and philanthropist, and a Christian gentleman. Said the speaker in conclusion: "It is but for me to say, gentlemen, to John G. Blake and the Quartet Club, go where they may, return when they will, either under the sunlight of prosperity or under the shadows of adversity, they will ever find a generous welcome to our hearts and homes." "John Brown's Body" was sung by the Quartet and every body else, and the banquet closed.

AMUSEMENTS.

MR. R. L. DOWNING IN "TALLY-HO" AT THE GRAND.

Large and delighted audiences witnessed both performances at the Grand Opera House on Monday and last night of Joaquin Miller's new play, "Tally-Ho," as presented by the talented young actor, Mr. R. L. Downing and company. Notwithstanding the many changes in the cast, last night's performance went remarkably well, and the audience enthusiastically applauded several of the scenes. "Tally-Ho" is founded on a simple incident in the life of Hank Monk, the famous stage driver, who carried Horace Greely over the Sierras on his first trip West. It is based on a contest between the hero and one "Thomas Crabtree" (Florence White). Monk marries her, and afterward a meeting with a girl (Miss Kahn) is sabbed to death by a snuff-blower (Morrison), as he is led to believe by his wife. To shield her he claims he did the deed, and is convicted on his own statement. Before he is punished Crabtree is disclosed as the culprit and taken out to be lynched. The play is strong in its simplicity. The plot is not obscured by the characters are not over numerous, and it is not so gory as too many modern dramas of the West. There are many new incidents and considerable good sentiment, and, what is noteworthy, constantly increases in interest. The company are most of them well known. Mr. R. L. Downing, who sustains the roll of "Hank Monk," the coach-driving hero of the drama, was very manly and spirited in his impersonation, and in action and make up left nothing to be desired. He sang well, too. Mr. Sidney was very acceptable in a German character, in which his efforts were seconded by Miss Mortimer. There will be a low-priced matinee to-day at 2, and a final performance to-night at 8. Popular prices rule.

"HEARTS OF OAK" AT ENGLISH'S.

Fairly sized and enthusiastic audiences greeted Hearne's "Hearts of Oak" Company at English's both Monday and last night. Mr. Hearne, as "Terry Dennison," the bluff and brave sailor and miller, with a heart of oak, played with his usual success, being applauded more than once. Miss Mand Thompson, as "Chrystal," played her part with much grace and naturalness. Mr. Charles Clark, as "Uncle Dairy," showed a "strong" and "strong" action that was admirable. The rest of the support fitted in their places perfectly and caused the play to run without a jar. The baby, "God bless it!" as more than one kind-hearted mother ejaculated, played its part with so much cunning that more than one of the gentler sex longed to appear on the stage just long enough to hug it and kiss its dimpled cheeks. The scenery is a beautiful specimen of mechanical and artistic skill. "The Harbor," with its boats, coils of rope and anchors, produces a fine effect. "The Wreck," during a fierce storm, with lightning and signal bombs fitfully lighting up the somber darkness, and the rain falling in torrents, is vivid and startling. "The Mill," with revolving belts and whirling machinery, is very natural. "The Home," "The Cabin of Owen Garraway" and "The Churchyard" are all works of the stage carpenter and scenic artist that are bound to delight the eye and stir the feelings of any audience.

"Hearts of Oak" is familiar to almost everybody. Its story is simple and simply told. A noble-hearted man marries the woman he loves, the girl acting upon a mistaken sense of duty, accepting his hand. Too late, he finds her heart is given to another—the man he regards as a son and loves as such. To compensate for what he considers his error, he sacrifices wife, child and home, and goes away returning after six years, blind and feeble, to find matters just as he had wished them, and to die with his wife and child in his arms. There will be a grand family matinee to-day at 2, and same bill the rest of the week.

THE DIME MUSEUM.

This popular amusement resort reopened Monday afternoon with a boom, which increased to a perfect crush last night. The show this week is extraordinarily strong in all departments, and business is sure to continue big. In curiosity is to be seen Mr. Charles B. Tripp, the armless phenomenon, who eats, drinks, writes and sketches with his feet; Isaac W. Sprague, Barnum's living skeleton; Sir Joseph Ince, the marvellous Madagascarian wonder; Petite Jennie (Quigley), the smallest and prettiest of all lilliputians; Olivia, the wonderful Albino mind-reader; Professor Griffin, the wonder worker, and Williams' "Punch and Judy." A "rattling" good stage show is given and the theatricum by Malcolm and Melville, excellent horizontal bar performers; Miss Jennie Quigley, in a German character sketch; Professor Ashton and his trained dogs; Miss Nettie Murray, a dashing serio-comic and clever vocalist; Perry and Lutz, Ryan in new songs and dances; the Onofri Brothers, acrobats; Marsh Adams, black-face comedian, and Professor Johnson, an excellent mesmerist. In addition to these a new sketch team will appear to-night. As the management promised, this is another dollar show for a dime, and should pack the house all week.

THE ZOO THEATER.

Audiences, magnificent in proportions, assembled at the Zoo last night, and night before to welcome back the old time favorite, Mr. George France, who made his first appearance in this city for seven years on Monday evening. He presented his great sensation drama entitled "Block Game," a play that better than the run of modern melodramas. Full as it is of exciting incidents, there are not the usual improbabilities that generally exist in plays of this nature. Mr. France, as "Skip," the faithful negro, was the same faithful artist of former years, and gave a very good impersonation; however, the real attraction of the piece seemed to be "Bruno," played by himself. "Bruno" is a dog of almost human intelligence, combined with brute instinct, and played his part to the great satisfaction of the audience. The balance of the support was, in the main, good. The olio portion of the play will be given, and the Zoo may look for a prosperous week. Matinee to-morrow.

NOTES.

"Tally-Ho" matinee at the Grand to-day at 2.

"Hearts of Oak" matinee at English's to-day at 2.

Charlotte Thompson will be at English's the first half of next week in a repertoire of plays.

Mr. C. W. Thomas, associate manager of Hoyt's "Rag Baby" company, is in the city perfecting arrangements for their appearance at the Grand to-day at 8.

Everybody will welcome the return of this excellent attraction.

The most notable dramatic engagement of the season will be that of the Wallace Theater company in "Victor Durand" at the Grand Opera House the last three nights of this week. This play is one of the strongest ever written, and the company simply superb. The indications at the box-office are of the most favorable nature, the "takes" being already very large.

A Strike That Failed.

The female employees of the firm of C. B. Coates & Co., of South Meridian street, over-acted and signed a petition asking to be relieved of some of the rules of the house, agreeing among themselves to strike if the petition was not granted. Over 150 signed the petition. From the statements of one of the women it seems that the rule has been to charge twenty-five cents a week to each employe for the use of the sewing machines, and for each absence, ten cents. A few days ago the firm decided to charge each absentee 25 cents and allow no excuse for sickness. It was this which caused the circulation of the petition on Monday evening. It was presented to the firm, but was promptly refused, the petitioners being notified if they struck they would not be employed again. This was too much, and with but two exceptions, they all returned to work again. This is the first female strike in the city—and perhaps the first in the State. It died as soon as it was born.

Solid Comfort.

Reclining chairs were placed in service on the Vandalla Line, between Indianapolis and St. Louis, February 28, and are now running regularly on trains Nos. 7 and 4, which leave Indianapolis at 10:45 p. m., and returning, leave St. Louis at 7 p. m. This arrangement will be a great comfort and convenience to patrons of the Vandalla, especially those who prefer a reclining chair to a berth in a sleeper. The chair car fare from Indianapolis to St. Louis is 50 cents; from Indianapolis to any local station 25 cents.

The Franklin Fire Insurance Company

offers greater inducements for the patronage of Indianapolis than any other company. Not in the cost of insurance, for that is the same as any other sound, safe company, but in the advantage that comes indirectly to all in building up and supporting the home institution. This is no slight consideration to one who will give it thought and follow out the logic of the thing. A word to the wise, etc.
