

POETRY.

The "Boon's Lick Times" is the title of a new paper...

For the Boon's Lick Times. MR. CADY: We can no longer think of Old Tippecanoe without rhyme...

"ANOTHER SONG." The Whigs they are rising all over the land, And resolving, as brethren should do, To bury dissensions, and join hand in hand...

The voice of their country now calls them, and they, As patriots faithful and true, Can never refuse her commands to obey, While led by "Old Tippecanoe."

Then rally, brave boys, with your banners on high, And the motto unfolded to view, "For our country to conquer, or in battle to die," By the side of "Old Tippecanoe."

The Tories full long have triumphant appeared, But now they begin to feel blue, For they know that a tyrant has never yet dared, To stand before "Tippecanoe."

His "cabin" is built up, of logs all unhealed, (They say, and we grant it is true), But "another guess" house they'll discover full soon, Is destined for "Tippecanoe."

His "cider's too hard" for our stomachs, say they, And admit it we readily do, But harder, by far, than their shoulders will lay, The lash of "Old Tippecanoe."

"He is old," they exclaim, but for that we don't care, For so was Old Hickory too, The older, the tougher, to them will appear, The arm of "Old Tippecanoe."

But besides, "he is poor," and can never with stand The gold of Van Buren & Co. But poor he is, all the wealth of the land, Can't "buy up" Old Tippecanoe.

And tho' the base minions of power may sneer, As their master compels them to do, They cannot regard without quaking and fear, The march of "Old Tippecanoe."

For the chaps that surround him are "just of the sort," To "pick up" a tory or two; A kecy set of fellows, so runs the report, Are the soldiers of Tippecanoe.

Then rally, brave boys, with your banners on high, And the motto unfolded to view, "For our country to conquer, or in battle to die," By the side of "Old Tippecanoe."

FROM HAVRE-DE-GRACE.

EXTRA ACCOMMODATION.—A passenger Car will be attached to the Tonnage train which leaves Havre-de-Grace every TUESDAY and FRIDAY at 2 o'clock, P. M. This will afford an additional conveyance on those days at an hour more convenient for the vicinity; and stopping also to receive and discharge passengers at the several stations on the route.

IMPROVEMENTS IN DENTAL SURGERY.—It has for many years been a great desideratum among European and American Dentists, to manufacture TEETH from incorruptible materials, which should imitate the artificial teeth.

After long and tedious experiments, the subscriber has succeeded in manufacturing Teeth of materials entirely incorruptible, and perfectly imitating the natural Teeth, in every respect.

It is entirely impossible for these Teeth to change their color or lose their brilliancy. They will retain them from one to another, and they will imitate the natural Teeth in every respect.
