HEAD QUARTERS TRANS-MISS. DEPT.,
Shreveport, La., April 13, 1865.

General Orders,
No. 36.

The following orders from Headquarters of the Army are published for the information of all concerned:

HEAD QUARTERS CONFEDERATE ARMY,
February 9, 1865.

By authority of General Order No. 3 from the Adjutant and Inspector General's office, I assume command of the military forces of the Confederate States, hereby impressed with the difficulties and responsibilities of the position, and humbly invoking the guidance of Almighty God, I rely, for success, upon the courage and fortitude of the army, supported by the patriotism and firmness of the people, confident that their united efforts, under the blessing of heaven, will secure peace and independence.

The Headquarters of the Army, to which all special reports will be addressed, will be, for the present, at the Army of Northern Virginia. The stated and regular returns and reports of each army and department will be forwarded as heretofore, to the office of the Adjutant and Inspector General.

R. E. LEE, General.

HEAD QUARTERS ARMY OF THE C. S. A.,
February 11, 1865.

General Orders,
No. 2.

In entering upon the campaign about to open, the General in Chief feels assured that the soldiers who have so long and so nobly borne the hardships and dangers of the war require no exhortation to respond to the calls of honor and duty.

With the liberty transmitted to their forefathers, they have inherited the spirit to defend it.

The choice between war and quiet submission is before them.

To such a proposal, brave men, with arms in their hands, can have but one answer.

They cannot bear manhood for peace nor the right of self government for life or property.

But justice to them requires a sterner admonition to those who have abandoned their commands in the hour of peril.

A last opportunity is offered to them to wipe out the disgrace and escape the punishment of their crimes.

By authority of the President of the Confederate States, a pardon is announced to such deserters and men improperly absent as shall return to the commands in which they belong, within the shortest possible time, not exceeding twenty days from the publication of this order, at the headquarters of the department in which they may be.

The pardon now offered, or who shall hereafter desert or absent themselves without leave, shall suffer such punishment as the courts may impose, and no application for clemency will be entertained.

Taking new resolution from the fate which our enemies intend for us, let every man devote his energies to the common defence.

Our resources, wisely and vigorously employed, are ample, and with a brave army, sustained by a determined and united people, success, with God's assistance, cannot be doubted.

The advantages of the enemy will have but little value if we do not permit them to impair our resolution. Let us, then, oppose constancy to adversity, fortitude to suffering, and courage to danger, with the firm assurance that He who gave freedom to our fathers will bless the efforts of their children to preserve it.

General Orders,
No. 38.

Paragraphs VI and VII, General Order No. 10, current series, T. M. D., is amended so as to extend the time for making application for the removal of the details of agriculturists, and of men detailed as mechanics, artisans, or persons of similar skill other than those in the service of the government, until the first of July, 1865.

It is so much of General Order No. 27, current series, T. M. D., as places the details of men between the ages of 17 and 45 years, unfit for field service, but fit for staff duty, under the direction of the superintendent of the Bureau of Conscription, is hereby revoked, and all such details will be made by the Generals of the Reserves.

Houston Weekly Telegraph copy four times and send bill to this office.

Col. A. W. Terrill.

We are in receipt of various communications, from Citizens and Soldiers, suggesting the name of Col. Terrill, in connection with the Government of the State. We agree with our correspondents, that a more suitable man for that position could not be selected. We have had the good fortune to know him long and well, both in civil and military life.

It was generally conceded whilst he was on the Bench, that, in all the array of judicial talent, which the District bench of the State presented, Judge Terrill had no superior. He voluntarily retired from this position to assume the more perilous one of a Confederate Soldier. Since which time he has been constantly in service, braving every danger of the camp and field, with a coolness, courage and judgment which has stamped him, one of the first and best commanders of the Trans-Miss. Department, and has won for him the most unbounded admiration and confidence of his Superior Officers and Soldiers.

We do not know what Col. Terrill's wishes are with reference to the candidacy for Governor, but feel assured, should he become a candidate, that he will command a large vote in this section of the State, as his Regiment is composed chiefly of men from this section of the State, every one of whom is a host within himself, as well at home, as upon the battle-field, and every one of whom would give their brave and generous Colonel, a warm support.—Confederate (Tyler Tex.) Journal.

U. S. TRANS-MISS. DEPT.,
Shreveport, April 21, 1865

Soldiers of the Trans-Miss. Army.

The crisis of our revolution is at hand. Great disasters have overtaken us. The Army of Northern Virginia, and our Commander-in-Chief, are prisoners of war. With you rests the hopes of our nation, and upon your action depends the fate of our people. I appeal to you in the name of the cause you have so heroically maintained,—in the name of your fire-sides and families so dear to you,—in the name of your bleeding country whose future is in your hands. Show that you are worthy of your position in history—Prove to the world that your hearts have not failed in the hour of disaster, and that at the last moment you will sustain the holy cause which has been so gloriously battled for, by your brethren east of the Mississippi.

You possess the means of long resisting invasion. You have hopes of success from abroad—protract the struggle, and you will surely receive the aid of nations who already deeply sympathize with you.

Stand by your colors—maintain your discipline. The great resources of this Department, its vast extent, the numbers, the discipline, and the efficiency of the Army, will secure to our country terms that a proud people can, with honor, accept, and may, under the Providence of God, be the means of checking the triumph of our enemy and of securing the final success of our cause.

E. KIRBY SMITH,
General.

Puffs.—The puffing business has played out with us. We have brought some men into notice, through the columns of the Houston Telegraph and Galveston News, since this war began, who would never have been heard of outside the lines of their camps and after they had come up, actually turned their nose up at us because we were poor, and in one instance we were refused a shelter in their tent during the Louisiana campaign of 1864, but the fool came to us the next day and had the face to ask us to report him a hero, when he was like a wild-cat upon the first approach of the Yankees, and wanted us to make up in puff what he lacked in bravery. Reader when you see a puff in a newspaper, you may bet that a bottle of good brandy or something better is hid in some corner. We have learned many good lessons while with our boys in the field, and at some future day the public shall have our experience. We have always noticed that those who bragged the loudest, and boasted of their prowess, were they could whip at least three Yankees, who dressed the finest, drove the fastest horses, and made love to the ladies, and were what they called a ladies' man were in every case the biggest cowards when the bullets and shells of the Yankees began to whistle over their heads. Ask any old soldier if this is not true.—[Freeman's Champion.

The Latest News.

Washington, April 14, 1865.

The President and Mrs. Lincoln were at Ford's Theatre, to see the performance of the American Cenci, occupying a box in the second tier. At the close of the third act, a person entered the box occupied by the President, and shot Mr. Lincoln in the head, the shot entering the back part of his head, and coming out above the temple. The assassin then jumped from the box upon the stage, and ran across to the other side, exhibiting a dagger in his hand, shouting in a ragged manner, shouting the same words repeated by the desperado at Seward's house, adding to it, "the South is avenged," and then escaped from the back entrance to the theatre, but in passing dropped his pistol and his hat.

Mr. Lincoln fell forward from his seat, and Mrs. Lincoln fainted. The moment that the astonished audience could realize what had happened, the President was taken out and carried to Mrs. Peterson's house, six miles distant, opposite the theatre. Medical aid was immediately sent for, and the wound was at first supposed to be fatal, and it was announced that he could not live, but at half-past 12 he is still alive, though in a precarious condition.

As the assassin ran across the stage, Col. J. B. Stewart, of the city, who was occupying one of the front seats in the orchestra, on the same side of the house as the one occupied by Mr. Lincoln, sprang to the stage and followed him, but he was obstructed in his passage across the stage by the flight of the actors, and reached the back door about three seconds after the assassin had passed out. Col. Stewart got to the street just in time to see him mount his horse and ride away. The operation shows that the whole thing was a preconcerted plan.

The person who fired the pistol was a man about thirty years of age, about five feet six inches high, spare built, fair skin, dark hair, apparently of large nose, dark eyes, and the leader of the orchestra declared that he recognized him as J. Wilkes Booth, the actor, and a radical secessionist. Whether or not it is plainly evident that he thoroughly understood the theatre and also the approaches and modes of escape to the stage.

The President, Secretary Seward and Major Seward have been assassinated by some desperadoes to-night, evidently under some preconcerted arrangement.

About half past ten o'clock this evening a well dressed person appeared at the house of Secretary Seward, and asked to see him. He was informed that he could not, upon which he said that he had a prescription from Surgeon Gen. Barnes, which he was ordered to deliver in person. The servant referred him to Fred Seward. The latter told the stranger that he was master of the house, and would take charge of the medicine, but the desperado refused to deliver it, and struck Seward with a dagger in the throat and breast, deep enough to prove fatal.

Major Seward, son of the Secretary, was also badly cut in his effort to defend his father. The assassin had a horse at the door, and as he was mounting, he pronounced the motto of the State of Virginia, "Sic Semper Tyrannis."

Simultaneously with this, another desperado appeared at Ford's Theatre and obtained admittance to the box occupied by Mr. Lincoln and shot the President in the back of the head, then jumped from the box to the stage, repeated the motto of Virginia, "Sic Semper Tyrannis." In a moment more he had disappeared.

14 1/2 a. m.—The President is slowly dying, the brain oozing through the ball hole in his forehead. He is of course insensible. There is an occasional lifting of his hand, and heavy stentorian breathing—that's all.

Mrs. Lincoln and her two sons are in a room of the house opposite to Ford's Theatre, where the President was taken, and adjoining that where he is lying. Mr. Sumner is seated at the head of the bed. Secretaries Stanton, Welles, Deaton, Usher and McCulloch and Mr. Speed are in the room. A large number of Surgeons, Generals and personal family friends of Mr. Lincoln fill the house. All are in the house.

1 30 a. m.—I have just visited the dying couch of Abraham Lincoln. He is now in the agonies of death, and his physicians say he cannot live more than an hour.

He is surrounded by the members of his Cabinet, all of whom are bathed in tears. Senator Sumner is seated on the right of the couch on which he is lying, the tears streaming down his cheeks, and sobbing like a child. All around him are his physicians. The President is unconscious, and the only sign of life he exhibits is by the movement of his right hand, which he raises feebly. Surg. Gen. Barnes is directing affairs.

War Department, Washington, April 14, 10 p. m.—To Maj. Gen. Dix:—Abraham Lincoln died this morning at twenty two minutes after 7 o'clock.

Frederick Seward's skull is fractured in two places besides a severe cut on the head.

The attendant is still alive but hopeless.

Major Seward's wounds are not dangerous.

It is now ascertained, with reasonable certainty, that two assassins were engaged in the horrible crime. Wilkes Booth being the one who shot the President, and the other a companion of his whose name is not known, but whose description is so clear that he cannot escape.

It appears from a letter found in Booth's trunk that the murder was planned before the 4th of March, but fell through then, because the accomplice backed out until Richmond could be heard from. Booth and his accomplice were at the lively stable at 6 o'clock last evening and left there with their horses about 10 o'clock, or shortly before that hour.

It would seem that they had been seeking their chance, but for some unknown reason it was not carried into effect until last night.

Secretary Seward is dead.
Booth is arrested.
E. M. STANTON.

The following items are taken from the Cairo Daily Democrat of the 14th. The paper is draped in mourning for the death of Lincoln.

On the morning of the 15th Stanton made known to Andy Johnson that the death of the President devolved the duties of the Presidential office upon him; that it was necessary that he should be inaugurated as soon as possible, and wished to know the time and place for taking the oath of office.

Johnson designated his private rooms at the Kirkwood House, that day at 10 o'clock. At the appointed hour Chief Justice Chase accompanied by the heads of the departments and other distinguished dignitaries, repaired to the designated rooms and administered the required oath of office.

The oath was administered, Johnson said: "The duties of the office are mine. I will perform them. The consequences are with God. Gentlemen, I will lean upon you. I feel that I shall need your support. I am deeply impressed with the magnitude of the occasion, and the responsibility of the duties of the office I am assuming."

Stanton reports, April 15, 3 P. M. that the new President has the heads of departments that day in Cabinet council, provided for the funeral of the late President, appointed Wm. Hunter Secretary of State, to act until the recovery of Mr. Seward, and announced his wish to retain the present heads of departments.

All business at the several departments closed for the day.

Seward's condition unchanged. Said by Stanton to be doing well on the 15th.

No improvement in the condition of Fred Seward.

The officers were not yet appointed.

A despatch from New York, the 15th, says that Mr. Cassell, messenger of the State Department, who was in attendance upon Mr. Seward, is dead.

Secretary Seward is in a precarious condition.

Fred Seward is insensible, and will probably die.

Washington, April 15.—No confirmation of the report that the murderers have been caught.

The National Intelligencer, extra, says that from the evidence obtained it is highly probable that the man who stabbed Mr. Seward and his son, is John Suratt, of Pine Grove Co., Maryland. The Governor of New York revoked his proclamation appointing a day of thanksgiving.

At Cincinnati, litigation against secessionists is very great. Junius Brutus Booth, announced to appear at Pike's Opera House this night, 15th, it is understood, was compelled to leave the city.

An autopsy of the body of Mr. Lincoln was made by Surg. Gen. Barnes and Dr. Stone, assisted by other leading Surgeons.

The coffin was
