THANKSGIVING ENTERTAINMENT.

Given at the High School Auditorium by the Grammar Grades.

The program rendered by the school children last evening was attended by a large audience, and was delivered in a very creditable manner. It was rendered by the pupils of the grammar grades and assisted by the High School Glee Club. The songs and recitations expressed the spirit of the season, and appropriate and attractive costumes were worn by the children.

Two plays were presented, the Dramatization of the Courtship of Miles Standish, in which 21 characters were shown, was presented in seven acts. This represented the pilgrims and the story conveyed some of their hardships and fights with the Indians. The Quest of the Pink Parasol was a fairy story, nicely told in songs and recitations, and presented in very pretty costumes. Six girls were dressed as poppies who danced and frolicked in their garden. The little gardener girl wished to become a poppy and the fairy queen changed her into one, and one of the poppies, who wanted a pink parasol, became a girl. When neglected the flowers withered and died, but were revived again by the fairy queen.

A drill, The Dance of the Dunces, was given by eight boys, who were dressed in clown costumes.

The whole program was very creditable to the school and was much appreciated by the audience.

Big Work Ahead for N. M. D. A.

The annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held at Bemidji December 9 and 10.

A good program—not too long this time, and tending rather to brevity than length—has been prepared; but we are not so much interested in that as we are in the opportunity that lies before the association to make the Bemidji meeting the beginning of one of the most fruitful and profitable campaigns this live wire organization ever undertook—a campaign no less important than its first great campaign for reapportionment.

For at this meeting plans will be made for the fight to put over amendment No. 1—the reclamation amendment, which was "Amendment No. 3" last year.

In this fight is bound up the future of state development, the future of Northern Minnesota and of every county, township, city, village, hamlet and settlement in it.

The reclamation amendment, as put through the last legislature by such hustlers for Northern Minnesota as Senators McGarry, Nord and Vibert, and Representatives Miner, Searis, Bessette and Peterson of Coleraine, is a vastly more important proposal than it was as it came before the people last year.

This time, besides providing for setting aside a reclamation revolving fund for making firebreaks and roads in and around state land, the amendment provides also for clearing state lands. Under it it will be possible for the state to begin an intelligent policy of development by clearing a part of each tract offered for sale, adding the cost to the price of the land, and thus enormously hastening the sale of lands and the settlement and development of the north country.

No more vital, no more important, no more profitable an opportunity ever confronted Northern Minnesota, and the N. M. D. A. never had a greater chance to be of high service to the state than it has in this campaign for Amendment No. 1.

The N. M. D. A. should begin this campaign with every ounce of energy behind it that Northern Minnesota possesses.

To that end, the Bemidji meeting should be attended by the best hustlers in every Northern Minnesota county and every northern Minnesota community.

The job before the N. M. D. A. is a big job, and it needs every hand and brain that can be mustered into the service. To succeed in it means to put ahead the development of Northern Minnesota twenty years. To fail in it means to delay that development perhaps twenty years. To win the fight for Amendment No. 1 means to begin a new epoch in the fight for settlement and development, an epoch that will enormously profit the state and every man, woman and child in it.

Every county, every community, in Northern Minnesota should begin now to see to it that the biggest and most earnest meeting the N. M. D. A. ever had is held in Bemidji December 9 and 10.—Duluth Herald.

HAD A LONG FAST.

Edwin Gewalt Lost in Woods Four Days While Hunting Moose.

Edwin Gewalt, of Breckenridge, Minn., who was hunting moose around Elbow Lake, as a guest of C. N. Ashford at his trapping camp there, lost his way while out alone last Wednesday. Mr. Ashford had gone to town for his mail and supplies, and Mr. Gewalt, who is not used to the woods and is not acquainted in this region, went out in quest of game. When Mr. Ashford returned to camp the next day Gewalt was missing, and there was no sign of him being there for some time. After hunting around for some time without finding any trace of him, Ashford went to the Kasper sawmill camp and telephoned to town for help to hunt for the missing man.

Five men, headed by Spencer Ashford, left here at two o'clock Saturday morning, arriving at the camp about daybreak. About noon that day he was found by one of the searching party on the lake shore a short distance from the camp.

Mr. Gewalt says he started out Wednesday morning intending to go for a short hunt, so did not take any food with him, when he lost his course completely. He did not do much traveling but wandered around slowly, trying to find something he would recognize. He climbed to the top of a high hill, thinking he would see something by which he could locate himself, but failed. He then started due west as near as he could judge, hoping to strike the Gunflint road, when he came to an old logging road and followed it for some distance, where he got a glimpse of Elbow lake, he then made for the lake and was walking around the shore to get to the camp when he was met by one of the searchers.

Mr. Gewalt had had nothing to eat for nearly four days, and had spent three nights in the woods. He says he found a piece of a hollow log, just wide enough to cover his body, which he crawled under and built a fire in front of him. He spent two nights in this way. The hunger bothered him considerably the first two days, he says, but after the second day he did not mind it so much.

After spending a couple of days in the camp and taking some light nourishment to start with and later increasing his portions, his strength soon returned. He came down Monday evening intending to take the America for his home, but did not get here early enough to catch the boat.

Mr. Gewalt did not get his moose, but had an experience that he will not be apt to forget for some time.

Veterinary Aid Given by State.

Minnesota livestock-owners should understand that their state has provided for free veterinary service in connection with serious infectious diseases of livestock, says Dr. M. H. Reynolds, veterinary division, University Farm, and a member of the state livestock sanitary board.

If a stock-owner is in trouble on account of a supposed infectious disease he should report either to the local health officer, to the chairman of the town board, or directly to the livestock sanitary board office at the Old Capitol, St. Paul. The board will send expert veterinary service to the relief of the owner and the public as promptly as possible.

Another feature of Minnesota's plan which owners should understand is that there is provision for reimbursement to owners of glandered horses or tuberculous cattle when the disease is reported and the fact that such disease exists has been proved.

Appraisal limits are fixed by law, $60 for graded cattle, $150 for purebred and registered cattle, $125 for grade horses, and $150 for registered horses. If cattle are killed on account of tuberculosis, the owner receives whatever the carcass may bring plus three-fourths of the difference between such returns and the appraisal.
