SAWMILL AT CASCADE LAKE

Alger Smith Company to Move a Large Mill to This County and Extend Railroad

Mr. F. A. Wells, land commissioner of the Alger Smith Co., was in the village on business last Monday. He informs us that a crew is now engaged clearing a site for the Rices' Point sawmill which will be moved to Cascade Lake this summer. He is also authority for the statement that daily (ex. Sunday) trains will be in operation by the 1st of October, running to Cascade Lake.

The logs are to be hauled in and dumped in Cascade Lake from different parts of the county and there sawed, the lumber being hauled to Knife River or Duluth on the D. & N. M. R. R.

This will mean the marketing of most of the forest products of Cook county within the next fifteen years.

In regard to the possibility of putting in a road to Grand Marais and shipping their product through Grand Marais, Mr. Wells said that for the present they would ship through the Head of the Lakes, but that it might work out that they would ship through this port later on.

At the County Board meeting on Monday he appeared before them and so informed them, inquiring as to the possibility of the county building a road from Grand Marais to Cascade Lake. This matter will be taken up at an early date by the county board.

ROAD INSPECTION TRIP

County Board Inspects Road to Pigeon River and Visits Canadian Road Camp

On Tuesday morning Commissioners Bally, Jacobson, Allen, Pederson and Chairman Engelsen, accompanied by Engineer Hughes, County Surveyor Berglund, Oscar Olson, William Olson and C. G. Stubstad made a trip to Pigeon River for the purpose of inspecting the road which is practically completed. The road was very good, opening a territory which will, in time, become one of the banner farming communities of the county.

The site for the bridge is a canyon about fifty feet deep, with good substantial rock walls ninety feet apart, requiring a 120 foot bridge to secure good footing.

The party, with the exception of Commissioners Engelson and Bally, forded the river and followed the Canadian survey and the Pigeon River tote road to the Canadian road camp, a distance of about four miles. The right of way was cleared about a half mile this side of the camp, leaving about four miles of clearing to be done.

Another half mile down the road the advance grading crew of about twelve men and four teams was encountered. Their work seemed to be to clear out a passage way for another grading crew, which was a couple of miles farther down the road, and was using a large steam grader, capable of doing a great deal of work if conditions were favorable. The total number of men employed at the two camps visited was about fifty.

The road, as laid out on the Canadian side, leaves the river and goes through about four miles of rich agricultural land, lightly timbered, then striking the Pigeon again and following the river for a distance of nearly four miles. From the road, as laid out along the river, the view is gorgeous. One hundred feet below is the river, nearly five hundred feet wide, visible in places for two or three miles. Across the river, on the American side, you see great towering mountains covered with light timber. A little farther on is a beautiful cascade and still farther on a mighty water fall. This part of the road has no doubt been selected on account of the scenic grandeur, as the cost of making a good road on this location will be tremendous. As it looks at present their road will not connect with ours for some time, and it is possible that they will be unable to finish until the early part of next year. In that event it is possible that the present idea of a temporary crossing will not be necessary, as there is no reason why the permanent bridge cannot be constructed by July 1st next year.

One pleasant feature of the visit on the other side was the visit at the cook camp, with the chef, David DeRosie, who treated the party to an elegant lunch. Most of the party also enjoyed a swim in a large pool in Pigeon river.

A stop was made at the Bayle camp at Little Brule, inspecting work being done there, which is progressing very rapidly and will be completed in a few weeks.

The road on the Reservation is practically completed, four or five men being employed in putting on the finishing touches.

A visit was made at the Earl Roberts farm. Mr. Roberts has cleared about thirty acres and surely will become one of our largest farmers at the rate he is clearing, he having only been on this farm a few years. Mrs. Roberts treated the party to lunch, which Commissioners Bally and Engelsen thought much of while waiting for the rest of the party to return from their Canadian visit.
