GRAND MARAIS GIRL MARRIED SATURDAY IN DULUTH

Miss Edith Monker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Monker of this place, and Glenn Coffey, of Ely, were married Saturday in Duluth, the ceremony being performed at the rectory of the Episcopal church, Dr. Ryan officiating. The bride's mother, and two cousins of the bride, were the only relatives present. It was a surprise to everybody. The bridal party came to Grand Marais last night on the America, a large party of young people meeting them at the boat, and a still larger crowd following them in automobiles to the home of the bride's parents, with tin horns and tin pans. They made a lot of noise, but the bride was not afraid, and the groom, becoming accustomed to noises in France during the world war, did not get scared either, and the two returned to the village with the bride's friends of long standing, and a dance to phonograph music, smokes and other refreshments at the expense of the groom, congratulations and well wishes extended to the bridal couple, and the party ended.

Miss Monker grew to womanhood in this vicinity, and went through the Grand Marais school. She taught for a number of years in District No. 1 and has been teaching in Ely the past year. She is an estimable young woman and very popular with the young people.

Mr. Coffey is one of the promising young men of Ely, and a son of Chief of Police Coffey of that place. He is a steam engineer, an ex-service man, serving three years and doing duty in France during the big war. He is respected and popular at home and is to be congratulated on the choice he has made for a wife.

Everybody joins in wishing this newly-married couple unbounded happiness and prosperity and long life.
