the study of music specially pedagogy is disgusting, and that a general routine of instruction will only produce indifferent performers, he will use all his endeavors to place himself on a level with the intelligence of his pupils,—encouraging rather than disheartening their efforts, while adthe best masters; he will continue as heretofore to tune Pianos. His prices will be—$10 for twelve lessons of one hour each, and
