DEATH OF SAMUEL RAINEY.

SHOT DOWN AT HIS DESK. CORONER'S INVESTIGATION.

Yesterday morning, at ten o'clock, Samuel Rainey, Esq., book-keeper of the New Orleans National Bank, while standing at his desk was shot through the lungs and killed by William Boyd, an old business associate and former partner.

Immediately on the shot being fired there was a stop put to the business of the bank. Doors were closed, but drawn together as if by some invisible agency, the building was soon surrounded in front by an eager and expectant throng, and the wildest sort of rumors and the most extravagant stories were rife.

The crowd of acquaintances who thronged within the bank building saw in the glass partition or casing the hole made by the pistol bullet which ended a life. It was a comminuted fracture, and so close was the pistol to the glass that there was a smut of powder on it.

It was a severe trial to the friends and relatives of the deceased, who had gathered at the first news of the murder to witness the post mortem examination, which, however, the law demanded should be done.

On the conclusion of this examination the coroner and jurors, the friends of the assailant and assailed, the relatives, officers of the bank, of the police, of the city, representatives of the press, all congregated in the president's room, and it was around the long green table that the examination of witnesses by the coroner took place, of which full details are herewith presented:

TESTIMONY BEFORE THE CORONER. Richard Jones, No. 156 Felicitee road—Testified that he was settling his exchanges, about 11 o'clock, and saw two pistol shots; he turned and saw Rainey staggering into the vault, which is in the rear of the general book-keeper's desk; outside of the bank he saw three men, one of whom he could recognize, one of whom appeared to be restraining one of the other men; he heard no difficulty or altercation.

Coroner—Did you know any of the three men? A. No. Question—Did you hear any angry words? A. No; none at all. The examination of the witness was here discontinued.

A pistol was here shown which, Boyd had on his person when searched at the station. There was but one shot out of the pistol. Richard F. Jones—He could not recognize the faces of any of the three men; I was sitting at my father's desk when I heard the shot, about eleven or twelve o'clock; I heard the first, looked up and saw him fire the second shot; I saw him stagger, and I saw Mr. Rainey stagger, and he went to go to the vault.

Coroner—Is it the first or second shot which went through the glass? A. I think it was the first; I saw him, Rainey, stagger to the vault; he then came out and met Mr. Wheeler at the door; he fell right outside of the door of the vault; he fell then and died. Mr. Wheeler holding his head; I do not know the man who fired the shot. The witness then stated that two pistol shots were fired; he stated that the accused, Mr. Boyd, now before him, looks like the man who fired the shot.

In answer to interrogatories the witness stated: The pistol looks like the one fired before the hand of the one who fired the shot was knocked up. He heard no altercation, no loud words, no discussion before the shot.

A grand military picnic is to take place at the Oakland Course on Sunday and Monday next by the Second Regiment of Louisiana Militia, and from the spirited arrangements made, there will no doubt be a large fund of enjoyment. Besides the military exercises and dress parade, there will be mule races, foot and sack races, greased pole and pig, and a variety of other sports.

A passage can be obtained from New York to Troy, just at present, for nothing. The competing steamboat lines are making it lively for each other on the river, and the traveling public gratefully appreciate the situation.

Mrs. Meredith Reed, wife of the American consul at Paris, was in that city during the recent bombardment, and at the height of it was hid in a closet, after part of the house had been knocked to pieces.

Mr. James A. Oates, the theatrical manager, and husband of the favorite burlesque actress of the same name, is at the Grand Central Hotel, New York, in a very precarious state of health.

An elaborate report from Mr. J. D. Carter, Division Superintendent, was received and ordered to be printed for the use of the board. The president called Mr. Longstreet to the chair, and taking the floor, offered the following resolutions.

Resolved, That the committee on teachers be requested to report, at the next meeting of the board, the names of such changes of teachers as the several districts, previous to the opening of the schools in September.

Resolved, That the Superintendent be requested to transfer to the primary school from the Webster and Jefferson grammar schools. Resolved, That the Superintendent be requested to transfer to the primary school, properly belonging to a primary school, from the Webster and Jefferson schools into the Second Ward Primary school.

Mr. Tracy called the attention of the board to the condition of the schoolhouses in the Fifth District (Algiers). The matter was referred to the committee on schoolhouses. Mr. Pinchback offered a resolution that the committee on schoolhouses be instructed to notify the owners of the building used for the Customhouse school that said building was no longer needed.
