THE POLICE ON REVIEW.—None who witnessed the review and disbandment of the Metropolitan Police, in front of the Mechanics' Institute, subsequent to the funeral of Lieutenant Governor Dunn yesterday, will hesitate to testify to their splendid deportment and efficiency in drill. Marching into the square by platoons, they wheeled in line and "dressed" like veteran soldiers, subsequently breaking into column and marching in the direction of the various precincts with admirable step and time, although without music. New Orleans ought to be proud of her police force.

Leaves—General Inundation.
BAYOU GOULEA, November 22, 1871.
EDITOR REPUBLICAN:
Serious and numerous breaks—"leaves"—in the levees have occurred and are still occurring on the west bank of the river, in the parishes of Pointe Coupee, West Baton Rouge and Iberville. In the latter named parish there has been nothing like it since 1852.

The Governor has been here, and told us that we must help ourselves. It is to be presumed that he knows what he says, if it be poor comfort. Well, we are doing so to the best of our ability, and we have no doubt that we are doing so better than he is. We have no doubt that we are doing so better than he is.

NINE HOUSES BURNED.—The bells sound an alarm of fire about seven o'clock last evening, sent from the corner of St. Louis and Marais streets. Fire was first discovered in a one-story frame house, owned by Mr. H. F. Starcken, and occupied by Sparicio as an oyster shop. This building was entirely destroyed; insured for $1000. The fire extended to the adjoining two-story frame house, No. 165 Marais street, also owned by Mr. Starcken; occupied by Ehardt as a barber shop; insured for $1000 in the Cavaroe office. No. 17 was burned; owned and occupied by widow Saloy; insured for $200 in the Union office. No. 109 was also completely destroyed; owned by George Metz; occupied by G. G. Kneisel as a jewelry store; building not entirely destroyed.

Local Intelligence.
The flames extended the other side of Marais street to the corner of St. Louis street, to a double two-story house owned and occupied by Mr. Wain. A grocery, larder and stock badly injured; building insured in the Germania and the stock in the Union. The fire then reached No. 221 and 223 St. Louis street, owned and occupied by Mr. Starcken; wholly destroyed; insured for $1000 in the Cavaroe office. An adjoining two-story frame, Nos. 225 and 227, owned and occupied by Mrs. Crozat. Mr. Cahill and Mrs. Gallagher resided in this building, which is a complete ruin. The losses will amount to about $31,000. It is thought that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

A SINGULAR REQUEST.—Those among us who are so fortunate as to have comfortable homes and kind friends, should just now remember the poor, those whose financial conditions are at the ebb. Little Randolph Doyle is in a sad plight. Calling at the first precinct stationhouse he stated his case, saying that his parents are given to drunkenness and other bad habits, and his personal appearance vouches for the truth of his words. As a relief from the miseries of his home, he begged that Recorder Houghton would send him to the Boys' House of Refuge for a short term, as such a course would be preferable to what he now endures. The reader can judge if his case is not indeed a sad one, when he makes such a singular request. His desire was gratified, but he will be permitted to go forth when he desires. Lads who have indulgent parents should think of Randolph, pity him and be thankful that they are favored. If you can, boys, try in your minds to simulate yourselves as he is, and then you will appreciate your present fortunate circumstances.

IN THE RING.—Now that Jim Mace and Jo Coburn are in our city, admirers of the flat arena are all agog; muscle riles the day, and even billiards for the nonce are almost forgotten, although Dion the great slings a cue as is usual, while Miller follows in the wake of a respectful distance. Emile's Union house, No. 17 St. Charles street, is the point of attraction for all who wish to take a look at Mace. He is in splendid health, a trifle too heavy for fighting, but he will wear off his extra pounds by the last day of this month. Emile sold dozens of Mace punches and Coburn smashes to visitors who just stepped in to look at the colors of the two noted fighters. Mace stock has taken a rise since his arrival. O' Baldwin and Kelly are making a flying trip to Texas, and will be here to see the sights. Coburn will give the public an opportunity to judge of his powers by sparring in Turner Hall in a night or two. Mace will not appear until after the thirtieth instant; then he will accept an ovation of some sort, provided his friends wish to honor him.

CHIMINAL COURT.—Judge Abell adjourned this court after making a few appropriate remarks concerning the death of Lieutenant Governor Dunn.

AN ESCAPED CONVICT.—The Attorney General entered a nolle prosequi in the cases of James W. Smith and James Lindsay, charged with having murdered E. F. Chandler. Jacob Dipert, the main witness, having died some months ago, the State was without sufficient evidence to make a conviction. In fact, it is very doubtful if they would have been found guilty, even had Mr. Dipert appeared. While these men have been in prison, Captain Malone has had an opportunity to hunt up the pedigree of one—Smith—and now arrests him as an escaped convict.
